Ace Dillinger Killer, 'Baby Face' Nelson, Surrounded

Accused Killer of D. C. Agent in Cottage Near Milwaukee.

Swarm of Police Speed to Scene

Youthful Outlaw Last 'Seen' in Flight at Chicago.

Milwaukee, May 1 (AP).—Reports were received here by local authorities late today that George (Baby Face) Nelson, John Dillinger mob member and accused slayer of a Federal agent, W. Carter Baum, of Washington, D. C., had been surrounded in a cottage not far from Wisconsin Rapids, about 150 miles northwest of here.

Federal officers in Chicago and St. Paul were silent on reports that several automobile loads of men from the Bureau of Investigation had been dispatched to the scene.

Later, it was learned that two carloads of Federal agents, headed by Inspector W. A. Roer, were speeding southward from their headquarters at Manitowish, Wis., to assist in the capture of the beleaguered gunman. The party passed through Merrill on Highway 51 at 6:30 p. m.

Nelson was one of the seven Dillinger men who shot their way from an abortive Federal police trap in the northern Wisconsin resort section over a week ago, leaving two dead and four injured.

Since that time, the diminutive gangster has been named in dispatches from San Antonio, Tex., as contact man to purchase machine guns for the Dillinger desperadoes, and has been "sighted" in various places, including a Chicago suburb early yesterday.

Alien Property Job Abolished

Roosevelt Signs Order Shifting Functions to Attorney General.

The office of alien property custodian, vestigial survival of the World War, will be abolished July 1 under an Executive order signed yesterday by President Roosevelt, which transfers its functions to the Department of Justice.

This action was taken in accordance with powers of governmental reorganization invested in him last spring by Congress. In so doing, he ended an agency which has handled millions of dollars in property of foreign nationals, principally German.

When the present alien property custodian—Urey Woodson, of Owensboro, Ky.—took office last April 24, he was under instructions of the President to wind up its affairs as soon as possible, it was learned. All that now remains is some $10,000,000 in property which will be administered by the Attorney General.

Abolition of the office, which contributed to the scandals of the Harding Administration, was ordered in the interest of economy. Its personnel, records, etc., were shifted to the Justice Department, together with its functions, which concern settling property claims.

Former Insull Aid Takes Drug Potion

Willard C. Sharp Rushed to Hospital in Time.

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Willard Caulfield Sharp, 56, former vice president in charge of operations of Middle West Utilities Co., keystone of the once great Insull Utility Empire, was taken to the County Hospital today suffering, attaches said, from an overdose of a narcotic. Physicians said he would recover.

Although there was only a few cents in his pockets when he was found unconscious in a small Loop hotel, Sharp said he was in the electrical business for himself. A letter in his room from a law firm indicated that his wife, the former Loretta Hackett, of Des Moines, Iowa, was about to sue for separate maintenance.

Sharp resigned from his Middle West post February 1, 1932, before the company went into receivership.

Calcutta, May 2 (Wednesday) (U.P.).—At least 20 persons were reported killed and many injured today in a terrific tornado, which struck the town of Sylhet in Assam Province.

A government launch and many other boats were sunk in the Surma River. Details were lacking, but it was believed the death toll would be higher than first reported.

Food Menaced Jobs Tied Up By 2 Strikes

Bakers' and Carpenters' Walkouts in Capital Gain Impetus.

Two strikes, jeopardizing the Capital's bread supply and completion of the Federal building program here, were in full sway yesterday, with scant prospect of early settlements.

By 7 a. m. every union baker and baker's helper had deserted their ovens. The strike order was issued six hours earlier.

Simultaneously, union carpenters were starting their strike and an estimated 1,500 men were refusing to report for work at the Justice, Labor-I. C. C., Archives, Supreme Court and other construction jobs, Government and private, throughout the city.

Compromise Is Rejected.

Hopes for a last minute agreement between Bakers' Union, No. 118, and the Employing Bakers Association collapsed when the former flatly rejected a compromise offer within a nickel of the present wage scales.

The local, representing 500 bakers and helpers, who make 85 per cent of all bread, cakes and rolls turned out by Washington bakeries, refused to accept $1 an hour for day work, $1.20 for night work and 50 and 60 cents for helpers on the respective shifts.

The men are determined not to return unless their demands for $1.05, $1.25, 55 cents and 65 cents, respectively, are met, a union spokesman declared. Under their contract, which expired yesterday, they were receiving 90 cents, $1.08, 45 cents and 55 cents.

While hundreds of pickets, recruited from the idle bakers and carpenters, were being assigned to see that none of their fellow members returned to work, fresh charges were hurled in both Houses

School Teachers End Walkout of One Week

Scranton, Pa., May 1 (AP).—A strike of 32 school teachers in Mayfield Borough, which began last Wednesday when the school board announced all teaching contracts would be canceled in June, ended today. The teachers returned to their classes and the 1,100 pupils ended their "vacation."

Settlement of the strike was reached when the board informed the teachers no drastic salary slashes are contemplated for the next term.

Church Board Votes Ouster For Cannon

Episcopacy Ballot 43-28 as Bishop Is Hailed by Delegates.

Jackson, Miss., May 1 (AP).—The long-reported move in the Methodist Episcopal Church South to retire militant Bishop James Cannon, jr., at this time, four years ahead of his automatic retirement under the age-limit rule, came to a head today.

Almost simultaneously with a thunderous ovation accorded the veteran dry crusader on the floor of the church's General Conference, in quadrennial session here, members of the committee on episcopacy disclosed that the committee had recommended his superannuation by a vote of 43 to 28.

The bishop received the news of the committee action with an expression of surprise.

"I have no statement to make," he said. "Even though I had been informed that the committee had taken such action, I still would have no statement."

Asked if he would fight the recommendation, the bishop sternly replied:

"Do you know what 'no' means? I have no statement."

Word of the vote spread among the delegates fast on the heels of Bishop Cannon's first appearance on the speaking stand where as head of the important church board on temperance and social service he called on Methodism to fall in behind a campaign for a new Federal prohibition law and challenged the church to make the wet and dry issue a test for every candidate seeking election to the National Congress.

Cabbages and 'Kinks' of Art Scandalize Staid N. Y. Market

New York, May 1 (AP).—There was "art" among the vegetables for patrons of historic Washington Market today.

With cabbages and carrots and beans and spinach on one side, and great shoulders of beef on the other, unemployed artists opened a show in a vacant meat stall.

And for the first time since it was opened 125 years ago, the market was threatened with scandal, and indignant officials ordered the removal of one of the 150 pictures shown.

"You put that out on the counter" said Aloysius Malloy, who directs the market for the city, "and I'll put you all out. It's too hot for my customers. I'll tell the world."

After conferences, artists bravely announced their first sale. They banded together and scraped up the $5 necessary to purchase the banned picture.

It was a line drawing of a nudist colony at a beach reading newspapers. The artist was Jan Martyak, of New York.

Until Malloy appeared, artists were selling secret looks at the picture to the butchers and clerks for a penny. It was then Malloy issued his ultimatum.

The exhibition and sale of pictures came about through a CWA artists' project, which included decoration of the market for its 125th anniversary. Malloy, in appreciation of the work being done, offered the booth for sale of pictures.

Forest Fire Rages Over Montgomery

Homes Menaced While Several Hundred Men Combat Spread.

200 Acres of Timber Destroyed; CCC Aids in Fight.

Sending forth billows of smoke that obscured the sun for miles, a forest fire late yesterday raged across eastern Montgomery County, destroying more than 200 acres of timberland.

Volunteer fire companies from Silver Spring, Kensington, College Park, and a detachment of Civilian Conservation Corps men from Beltsville were still fighting the blaze last night. The flames, however, were believed under control.

The main blaze, of unknown origin, started on the Makal Farm, 5 miles north of Silver Spring, about 3 p. m. On a hilltop, and fanned by a stiff breeze, the fire quickly spread through the heavily-timbered land to the north and west.

Homes Are Menaced.

Although no buildings had been reported burned last night, one small unoccupied farmhouse was completely encircled by the flames, narrowly escaping destruction. About ten other residences were in danger.

The volunteer fire departments fought the blaze from the westward side of the main woods, starting backfires to prevent the huge flames from enveloping the residences, most of which lay to the west. A narrow dirt road separated them from the wooded area.

The Civilian Conservation Corps men, under the leadership of Deputy Forester R. M. Walker, fought from the north side to prevent the fire from continuing to the denser woods of the Vincent and Peter Farm. Trenches and "fire line checking" failing, a back fire was started along the bank of a small stream that proved effective.

Hundreds See Flames.

Thousands of Washingtonians, attracted by the dense volume of smoke that could be seen for 15 or 20 miles in all directions, drove to the scene. Many residents of the countryside and individual volunteers from nearby towns assisted in the firefighting.

The Makal Farm of 250 acres, once owned by the late Dr. Makal, well-known Washington physician, lost about 150 acres of timber in the flames. About 50 acres of the William T. Gray Farm were also destroyed.

Mrs. Preston Plans Divorce

Hawes Daughter to Sail for Paris; Estranged Three Months.

Recalled as one of the loveliest debutantes of Capital society, Mrs. Eppes Hawes Preston, daughter of former Senator Harry B. Hawes, of Missouri, is expected to sail soon for France to obtain a divorce from her millionaire sportsman husband, Lewis Thompson Preston.

Estranged for the past three months, Mrs. Preston has been making her residence with her parents at 2548 Massachusetts avenue northwest. Her husband, of New York and Palm Beach, is in Florida.

Their marriage November 14, 1930, was regarded as one of the most brilliant social events of the year, comparable only to the marriages of Andrew Mellon's daughter, Ailsa, to David Bruce, of Baltimore. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis, because Senator and Mrs. Hawes had not opened their Washington residence.

The bridegroom arrived here by chartered train, bearing cases of champagne, a jazz orchestra and a retinue of servants, including his barber, valet and chauffeur.

Mr. and Mrs. Preston sailed from New York for a honeymoon of big-game hunting in Nairobi, East Africa, but decided to remain in Paris. After several months abroad, they returned to New York, where they made their residence until their estrangement.

Japan Curbs Hot Feeling Against U. S.

Government Orders No Demonstrations; Avoid Further Discussion.

Patriotic Groups Hit Foreign Minister for Hull Incident.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

Tokyo, May 2 (Wednesday) (U.P.). Resentment against "American interference in affairs of the Orient" deepened today as leaders of Nationalist societies studied reports of the United States' declartaion in opposition to a "Japanese Monroe Doctrine."

Police were on the alert for anti-American demonstrations.

The usual police guard was maintained around the United States Embassy in Reinanzaka, near the foreign office and other government ministeries.

There were no outward evidence of anti-American feeling, but the chief of the metropolitan police, remembering the anti-American demonstrations of 1924 following adoption of the Japanese exclusion clause in the United States immigration law, ordered all his men to be on the alert.

Warn Against Demonstrations.

It was understood that orders were sent out to leaders of the big nationalists organizations, including the Black Dragons, the Purple Cloud Society and the nationalist clubs sponsored by retired Army officers, that any manifestation of anti-American feeling must be "strictly avoided."

Nationalist leaders, meantime, were looking to Mitsura Toyama, noted patriot, for guidance. It was understood Toyama counseled against demonstrations.

The general policy decided by leaders of the Government and the Army appeared to be something as follows:

1. Japan will not answer, in any public document at least, the representations of the United States Government as revealed in Washington by Secretary of State Cordell Hull. Equally Japan will not publicly retract her informal declaration that she should be consulted in matters of military and aviation aid to China.

2. Cultivation of United States friendship will remain a cardinal point in Foreign Minister Koki Hirota's policy. An effort will be made to "explain" the Japanese viewpoint—that any foreign activity in China which tends to aid disturbances of the peace in that country should be avoided by all countries.

3. The effort for an eventual treaty with the United States, which would recognize the "reciprocal and noncompetitive nature of Japanese-American trade" will be dropped for the time being. It may be renewed, however, if and when the United States shows a more sympathetic attitude toward Japan's thesis that all nations must adopt a "realistic attitude" with regard to China.

To Continue Relations.

4. Outwardly Japan will preserve an attitude that the customary

Reich Blames Reds For Fire in Hall

Building Burns on Eve of Youth Meeting.

Augsburg, Germany, May 1 (AP).—Destruction by a midnight fire of the huge Singer Hall here was attributed to "Bolshevistic arson" by authorities today, and the government offered a reward of 10,000 marks for the arrest of the incendiaries.

As the charges were made, 48 persons already were under "protective arrest" as suspects. The blaze came on the eve of a huge mass meeting of Hitler youth, and the hall was decorated with flags and greenery for the gathering.

The blaze and the subsequent accusations against Communists recalled the famous Reichstag fire, for which one man was beheaded, on the eve of the inauguration of the Hitler regime.

Witnesses told police that an explosion was heard in the hall while the fire was raging. The loss was estimated at $100,000.

Paris Rioting Flares Anew; Police Targets

Communists Figure Prominently in Disorders in U. S. and Abroad Which Take Toll of Lives; Searchlights Spoil Sniper's Aim.

Paris, May 2 (Wednesday) (AP).—Rioting flared anew in a workers' district on the left bank of the Seine in Paris at midnight, just when authorities thought their May Day troubles were over.

Communists tore up pavng blocks and started to build a barricade, but the maneuver was checked by arrival of police.

The demonstrators then took refuge in houses and fired revolvers and rained missles on the officers.

A police sergeant was wounded by a bullet, whereupon a strong force of police was thrown around the whole block, but was kept out of bullet range.

Communists, besieged in a blind alley, dug a trench and raised a barricade at the entry. Bonfires were made, lighting up the area. In the hope of avoiding bloodshed authorities decided to wait until morning before storming the reds' citadel.

Roger Langeron, prefect of Paris police, arrived at 1:30 a. m. and took command of the 2,000 police laying siege to the communists.

Hundreds of shots were fired by rioters, but police kept out of range, playing searchlights on windows which dazzled the snipers and spoiled their aim. The fire was not returned.

Further reinforcements of republican guards and gardes mobiles were arriving to occupy the whole district, to prevent a spread of rioting.

World-wide celebrations of May Day brought disorders, bloodshed, riots, and milder demonstrations despite careful police precautions.

Shootings occurred in the United States, Cuba and Austria that

Goal of NRA Called Free U. S. Industry

Self-Government Wanted, Harriman Says, to Surprise Many.

Self-government by industry was pictured yesterday by W. Averill Harriman, ranking assistant to Recovery Administrator Johnson, as the goal of NRA.

In a speech before the American Trade Association executives at the Mayflower Hotel, Harriman outlined the essence of recovery administration policy as a desire to have American business govern itself without employment of "coercive methods" by the Government.

Many in the audience were surprised at the future course charted by the special assistant NRA administrator. The whole tone of his speech was regarded as in sharp contrast with the warning of Johnson at a recent code authority conference when he said:

"You ain' seen nothing yet!"

Racket Approach Claimed.

Earlier, Wilson Compton, retiring chief of the NRA trade association division, told the executives he had been approached three times by men evidently connected with some association who "promised to make me rich if I would engage with them in some industry organization racket."

Harriman was outspoken in his review of NRA aims.

"I wish most emphatically," he declared, "to point out that those of us who have been in NRA have the sole wish to bring about this true industrial self-government in the shortest possible time. There is no intention, expressed or implied, to force industry to act according to NRA insistence. To the contrary, the wish is to help industry properly to govern itself. There is no desire to employ coercive methods.

He added NRA participated actively in code administration be-

Senate Votes Municipality Bankrupt Bill

Wilcox Measure Approved 45 to 28 After Long, Bitter Dispute.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

In an effort to afford some measure of relief to cities and other taxing districts burdened with debt, the Senate yesterday by a vote of 45 to 28 approved, in an amended form, the Wilcox municipal bankruptcy bill, thus ending a year's bitter controversy.

The easy margin by which the measure was approved fails to reflect the sharpness of the controversy which has been waged over its provisions. Passed by the House a year ago, this bill has been buffeted about in the Senate, which acted only after its provisions were modified to safeguard minority groups holding municipal securities.

Not only did the measure cause party lines to be sharply broken in the Senate, but it also divided into disputing camps stock brokers, bankers, life insurance companies and lawyers.

Ruinous Tax Curb.

On one side the argument was made that unless this bill was enacted thousands of men and women would lose their homes through exorbitantly high taxes, which would have to be levied against them to pay the debts of their cities, counties, school, water and other districts, some of which were extravagantly contracted in the pre-1929 days of the "new economic era."

The other side of the argument was that such legislation was unnecessary, would injure the credit of solvent and well-managed municipalities and tax districts and would cause a depreciation in the investments held by widows, orphans, "insane persons" and others

Trade Hit, Immediate Lifting Of Parking Ban Is Demanded

Declaring that yesterday was the worst May Day in years from a business standpoint, Frank R. Jelleff, leading F street merchant, issued a statement last night in which he demanded immediate suspension of the parking ban without going through the procedure of a public hearing before the District Commissioners tomorrow.

In a castigation bristling with irony, Mr. Jelleff said that "if it is the desire of the traffic director and the Police Department to keep F and G streets clear of all traffic they certainly have succeeded admirably today (May Day)."

While Mr. Jelleff was expressing these views, the committee of trade body representatives which subsubmitted a substitute plan to the District Commissioners a few days ago was making plans for a council of war to be held at the offices of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association at 10 a. m. today.

Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the committee, said that a general review will be given the recommended substitute plan and that definite plans for maneuvers at tomorrow's hearing will be decided upon. He indicated that the committee will adhere to its original recommendation for suspension of parking only at the busy early morning and evening hours, that parking space be reserved for shipping and that one-hour parking be enforced during the remainder of the day.

The committee has recommended also that all cars parked overtime be impounded.

Mr. Jelleff said he would appear at the hearing tomorrow if it is held, but expressed hope the Commissioners would suspend the ban without further delay.

"Why is it necessary to delay for a public hearing when a situation is so apparent as it was today to anyone who would care to survey the district involved in this unnecessary parking ban? Why can't we have quick, decisive action?"

Places $154,000,000 of Senate Proposals in Revenue Bill.

Conferee Report Wins by 252-106

Minority Outcry Loud; Money Is Declared Unnecessary.

By Robert C. Albright.

Over the loud opposition of a bipartisan minority, the House yesterday added $154,000,000 in Senate tax levies to its loophole plugging revenue bill, then stolidly balked at slapping a flat 10 per cent increase on incomes.

Rejection of the Couzens horizontal 10 per cent tax came by a decisive vote of 282 to 77, after agreement was reached on a conference report raising revenue totals of the bill to $417,000,000.

Charging undue burdens on taxpayers in excess of Treasury demands, minority members of the House Ways and Means Committee, who refused to sign the conference report, fought it bitterly every inch of the way through the House.

Broken Faith Alleged.

One majority member of the committee, Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, joined with them, charging a "complete surrender to the Senate on all major items." Another group, reputedly reflecting White House views, led by Representative John McDuffie (Democrat), Alabama, declared the bill "broke faith with the Philippines" in imposing coconut and sesame oil levies.

But when the report was forced to a vote, it won hands down, 252 to 106. Only 29 Democrats joined with 77 Republicans in opposition to the measure, while 14 Republicans and 4 Farmer-Laborites voted with 234 Democrats for it.

The Couzens' amendment, added in the Senate, and disagreed to by the House conferees, was voted on separately in two separate ballots, and convincingly rejected both times. But the Senate must yet recede from its stand before the bill goes to the White House for scrutiny.

Hill Urges Rejection.

Representative Samuel B. Hill, (Democrat), Washington, one of the House conferees, called up the

D. C. Cabs Halt At Maryland

State Liability Act Arrest Causes Companies to Be Wary.

District taxicab men have been advised to stop carrying passengers into Maryland until their status under the new Maryland liability act is established. The Diamond Cab Co. has notified all its members that they go into Maryland at their own risk.

The orders followed arrest Monday night of a Diamond cab driver, Frank Tralins, of the 2500 block of K street northwest, by Takoma Park, Md., police on charges of failing to comply with the insurance law. Tralins was released on $50 bond and is to be given a hearing May 11 in county police court at Rockville, Md.

Other taxicab companies directed their drivers not to go into Maryland after passengers, while several said they had not decided what action they would take.

Harry Davis, president of the Diamond cabs, said his company will fight the charges against Tralins.

State's Attorney Stedman Prescott, of Montgomery County, said yesterday that an interpretation of the law by Attorney General William Preston Lane, jr., of Maryland, held that Washington drivers can bring passengers picked up in Washington into Maryland without violating the law, but that they can not pick up passengers in Maryland without obtaining the Maryland insurance.

A Washington taxicab driver arrested a month ago by county police was released without trial on the basis of Lane's ruling.

Tralins was arrested by Sergt. Earl Thomas and Policeman Al Thomas, of the Takoma Park town police, when he brought a Washington passenger into Takoma Park.

House Fights Uncontrolled U. S. Spending

Permanent Appropriations Are Threatened by Revolt.

By Raymond Clapper.

Rebelling against what it regards as a usurpation of Congressional functions, the House Appropriations Committee yesterday reported a bill to repeal a large number of long-standing permanent "backdoor" appropriations under which the Government spends millions of dollars annually without the approval or scrutiny of the sitting Congress.

Chairman Buchanan of the Appropriations committee said he expected to call up the bill Monday and ask for its passage under suspension of the rules. Although this will require a two-thirds vote, there is no party opposition and its passage is predicted at the Capitol.

Some of these permanent appropriations have their authority in laws passed years ago. The naval hospital fund dates back to a law passed in 1798. The Appropriations sub-committee headed by Representative Anthony J. Griffin (Democrat), New York, discovered 370 of these "backdoor" appropriations touching almost every line of Government activity from river dredging to war monuments, from land inspection junkets to the Coos Bay wagon road grant fund.

Total, $2,300,000,000.

In all they add up to more than $2,300,000,000 a year. But the committee, in order to avoid stirring up opposition which might kill the whole enterprise, concentrated on the accretion of many small items and refrained from touching the several major ones, such as the interest on the public debt, debt retirement, processing taxes and agricultural extension and vocational education work. In fact, the exempted items total about $2,000,000,000, whereas the items it is proposed to repeal total only about $300,000,000.

The fine Italian hand of Comptroller General McCarl is seen in the recommendations. He gave the committee much useful advice during its inquiry.

The move is regarded as symptomatic of a new inclination on the part of Congress to assert itself against executive domination. These permanent appropriations are drawn on by Executive departments year after year without action by Congress and without administrative officers having to render any accounting to Congress as to how it has spent the money.

Congress Is Restive.

Congress is becoming increasingly restive under the wide latitude given in much of the emergency legislation. Chairman Buchanan of the Appropriations Committee protested earlier in the session against expenditure of Public Works money on projects which had not been approved by Congress, and which in some instances had been rejected.

The White House is about to ask Congress for $1,500,000,000 in a lump sum to be used at the President's discretion for public works, relief, naval construction and other purposes.

During the earlier part of the emergency there was a general agreement on the part of Congress that the Administration needed broad latitude so that it could act quickly. And, though the repeal of permanent appropriations just recommended has nothing to do with emergency expenditure, it discloses a changing temper on the part of Congress and a desire to reassert itself as the guardian of Federal pursestrings.

Heavy Withdrawals Hit.

"Our statutes have become literally cluttered with laws through which millions of dollars automatically go out the back doors of the Treasury every year without the knowledge, consent, or approval of the sitting Congresses," Representative Griffin said in reporting the bill. "The committee crystallized its conclusions into the maxim that whatever goes into the Federal treasury shall not be drawn out of it except by the sanction of the sitting Congress.

"It is maintained that neither by ethics, by logic, nor by constitutional authority has any one Congress the right to bind the hands of posterity by the enactment of laws mandatorily calling for automatic withdrawals from the Federal Treasury without annual examination, approval, and supervision of succeeding Congresses.

"It is the conclusion of the committee, after hearing numerous witnesses, that permanent appropriations are a vicious usurpation and invasion of the rights of sitting Congresses."

Seek Yearly Scrutiny.

The committee frankly stated it did not touch permanent appropriations for agricultural extension work, land-grant colleges and vocational education because "of the power of the propagandizing agencies interested in these appropriations to perhaps defeat the entire bill on the strength of the inclusion of these items therein."

Last winter when an attempt was made in the Senate to apply a flat 25 per cent cut to these agencies Senators were deluged with letters by the hundreds, many coming from school children.

It is not the purpose of Congress necessarily to eliminate all of these appropriations but only to get control of them so that they can be passed on and scrutinized each year and eliminated or reduced as the need seems to require.

Loss of Control Cited.

The committee cites as a striking example of the loss of Congressional control over Government expenditures the method of financing examinations of National banks. For years assessments levied on banks to finance examinations were deposited in a special fund which was dispensed under a permanent appropriation. But in the banking act of 1933, a provision was inserted declaring such funds were not to be construed as "Government funds or appropriated moneys."

"The committee," the report said, "is unable to follow any form of reasoning that takes from Congress the right to appropriate moneys to cover the cost of any Governmental activity or to pay the salaries and expenses of Government employes, in which class examiners of National banks certainly fall."

Likewise, the committee feels that funds for the education of the Sioux Indians, for refund of some $7,000,000 in customs duties each year, for pulling snags out of the Mississippi River, and for nearly 400 other items should not be paid out of the Treasury year after year without benefit of Congress.

House Balks Income Tax Rise, But Accepts Others

amendment, which would force everybody now paying an income tax to go down in their pockets for $55,000,000 more in Government revenue.

Hill moved at once that the House insist on its disagreement.

"We feel that this increase is absolutely unwarranted and an unnecessary burden on every individual taxpayer," he said.

He was interrupted by Representative Thomas O'Malley, of Wisconsin, a leader of the House Democratic "young liberal" group, who offered a preferential motion that the House recede and concur in the amendment.

"Any man or woman who objects to paying 10 per cent of their income in the interest of recovery, when they are fortunate enough to have an income, are not desirable citizen," he said.

Just Starter, Is Warning.

Representatives Lewis, (Democrat), Maryland, Truax, (Democrat), Ohio, and McGugin, (Republican), Kansas, supported his position.

"And this is not a starter on the taxes you are yet going to levy to finance this Administration's expenditures," McGugin told the House.

But the O'Malley motion was badly beaten on a standing vote, and a roll-call ballot was demanded on the Hill proposal to reject the amendment. Seventy-five Republicans joined 207 Democrats in support of Hill, while 17 Republicans, 55 Democrats and 5 Farmer Laborites cast their ballots against his motion.

Earlier, Representative McDuffie, House sponsor of the Philippine independence bill recently enacted, told members the $417,000,000 conference reports violates solemn promises made to the islands, in levying poundage taxes on coconut and sesame oils.

Exemption Bill Planned.

Echoing the plea of Pedro Guevara, resident commissioner of the Philippines, that this Government "keep faith" with the islands, McDuffie said a bill will be offered before Congress adjourns to exempt the Philippines from the tax.

This proposal is said to have White House backing, the President at one time seriously considered vetoing the tax bill, if it carried the coconut and sesame oil levy.

Attacking the report on broader grounds, Representative McCormack opposed Senate income tax publicity features written into the bill, as "destructive to business" and criticized conference action eliminating consolidated income tax returns for all corporations except railroads.

Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, and Representative Bacharach, of New Jersey, minority House conferees, who refused to sign the report, assailed virtually every Senate increase accepted by the House.

Taxpayers' Burden Charged.

"The main object of the bill was to stop legal loopholes which had developed in the administration of the law," said Treadway. "The Senate bill, which was the basis of the conference, goes far beyond these stop gaps and places an entirely unnecessary burden on the taxpayers."

Treadway charged Administration "inconsistency" in reenacting capital stock and excess profits taxes imposed in the recovery act, was the understanding they would be repealed with the eighteenth amendment.

He said the House committee was "flooded with professional doctrinaire opinions of departmental assistants, but when practical information was wanted on Treasury needs it has not been at our command."

He said the bill will "shatter faith, deprive industry of confidence, and lead to chaotic conditions."

Representative Bacharach said never before in his House service on committees had he failed to sign a conference report.

"We were told and the country was assured that there was not to be any increase in Federal taxes, but instead additional and sufficient revenue would be raised by plugging up the holes through which the rich and wealthy taxpayers were escaping payment," he said.

"Yet our taxes have been substantially increased in many instances, and practically no attention has been paid to the recommendations of our special committee as embodied in the House bill."

Drive to Pass 30-Hour Week Being Speeded

Law Needed With High Unemployment, Says Bill's Sponsor.

The drive for 30-hour work week legislation this session will be speeded up, Representative Connery (Democrat), Massachusetts, sponsor of the bill, said yesterday.

He indicated he would press for action despite failure of President Roosevelt to give immediate backing to the measure at a White House conference Monday.

Representative Connery said a decision as to what method he would pursue to force a House vote would be determined at a conference later this week with NRA Counsel Donald Richberg and Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

"It is absolutely necessary to get legislation of this kind immediately in view of the fact that more than 10,000,000 persons are still out of work," said Connery.

"Organized labor is demanding this bill be enacted and is prepared to press even more strongly for action," he continued.

It was indicated that administration sources were prepared to suggest as a compromise that a resolution be passed placing Congress on record in favor of a shorter work week, but not making mandatory action by industry necessary.

Connery said that type of a resolution "is out."

Various methods could be resorted to by advocates of the bill, if Administration support for it at this time is lacking. A petition which would force a House vote if signed by 145 members was one method.

RFC January Loans Total 758 Million

Report to Congress Says Banks Received Greater Part.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation authorized loans totaling $758,337,080 during January, almost a peak period in the lending agency's activities, the monthly report to Congress revealed yesterday.

Banks received the most aid, the corporation authorizing purchase of $141,847,100 in preferred stock of 1,063 banks and trust companies and note and deneture purchases of $258,543,750. In addition, $95,378,300 was authorized as financial loans to banks, building and loan associations and railroads. Loans amounted to $2,320,750 were authorized to banks, secured by stock.

The corporation authorized $49,015,000 in loans to the Commodity Credit Corporation and other farm product agencies under the emergency relief act.

For purchase of stock under the farm mortgage act $13,278,266 was provided, while $120,953 was authorized for relief and construction payments to States. The corporation also authorized direct loans to farmers under the farm mortgage act amounting to $65,000,000.

Other items included $10,000,000 for Home Owners Loan Corporation stock, $2,000,000 for Home Loan Bank stock.

Senate G. O. P. Maps Assault On Tariff Bill

Hearings End With Attack on Measure by Trade Representative.

Senate Republicans yesterday were laying plans for united opposition to the bill giving the President power to enter into reciprocal tariff agreements. Senator McNary, Oregon, Republican leader, announced he would call a party conference this week similar to the meeting held by Democratic Senators Monday night.

At the same time, the Senate Finance Committee concluded its hearings after listening to a statement by James A. Emery, general counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, opposing the bill and asking that Congress be given the right to ratify agreements. The committee expects to report the bill tomorrow.

Secretary Roper told members of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce last night that the measure offers the only immediate channel for expanding foreign trade and the only method of giving the United States a seat on the "world reciprocal trade exchange."

Amendments Planned.

Senate Republicans are expected to offer numerous amendments to the measure, one of them prohibiting the President from lowering tariffs on farm products. Republicans also are expected to demand that hearings given industries prior to reduction in rates be public. A Democratic amendment provides for such hearings.

Emery in testifying before the committee recalled a statement by Democratic members of the Finance Committee in 1929 opposing granting of further tariff powers to the President.

"No greater element of uncertainty could be added to the present difficult economic situation than the prospect of various industries being vitally affected, not only in themselves but in their relation to all other industries, by the prospect of tariff changes made without their knowledge vitally affecting their employing capacity," Emery said.

Holds Jobs Jeopardized.

"Neither the jobs of employes nor the investment of individuals, partners or stockholders should be subjected to the uncertainties of agreements modifying foreign competition without a day in court."

M. J. Flynn, speaking for Mathew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, told the committee:

"America's industrial workers opposing entry into reciprocal trade treaties with foreign nations without first having the opportunity of a public hearing, and secondly, without ratification by the Senate of any treaties entered into with foreign nations, contend that our one assurance for safety, our assurance of providing employment opportunities for America's unemployed millions, our assurance of providing and maintaining a market for the products of our farmers, lies in substantialy increasing the mass purchasing power of our 50,000,000 workers."

Roper told members of the International Chamber of Commerce that the argument that the bill will operate to the disadvantage of American labor is fallacious.

Tells Aim of Bill.

"It is the specific intention of this bill," he said, "to bring about the sale abroad of products which a great many of our people should be engaged in producing, and to let in at the ports only such products as are now excluded or burdened with excessive duties, without contributing to the unemployment of many of our people."

Senator Henry D. Hatfield (Republican), West Virginia, told the Senate committee that he was opposed to diverting the attention of Congress to tariff reform when its energies should be exerted for relief.

"Surely it can not be contended," he said, "that our 'brain trust' here in Washington can know or understand the needs of the individual man and the individual industry in all the districts of the 48 States as well as the Senators and Representatives who are elected to represent them."

F. X. A. Ehle, former commissioner of customs, representing the match industry, said he understood his industry was to be used for bargaining purposes and that any tariff reduction on matches would be ruinous.

on Capitol Hill against existing conditions in the building trades.

Representative Louis T. McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, obtained permission to include two affidavits by striking carpenters in the Record and stated "this is further evidence of the need for a Congressional investigation."

McFadden, who achieved notoriety two years ago when he attempted to have President Hoover impeached, recently introduced a resolution providing for an inquiry into contractors' wage relations with employes here.

In the upper House, Senator Arthur Robinson (Republican), Indiana, and one of the Administration's severest critics, declared the "kick-back" system is being practiced widely in defiance and violation of the Bacon-Davis prevailing wage law.

"Kick-Back" Explained.

"Kickback" is the term applied to contractors' evasion of the statute in compelling workmen, by various means, to return part of their wages under penalty of discharge. Several such cases have been investigated here in the last few months. One involved a subcontractor at Walter Reed Hospital, whose contract was canceled.

Senator Copeland, New York, agreeing with Robinson, said one "kick-back" system is to place matches in workmen's hatbands when they go to collect their pay. Two matches means they will get $4, three means $5, &c.

Senators Joseph T. Robinson, Arkansas, and Borah, Idaho, also voiced opposition to unfair practices and recommended investigation and remedial action. A resolution, similar in purpose to the one offered by McFadden, was introduced Monday by Senators Davis and Walsh.

Nonmember contractors on Federal construction have been invited to attend a meeting at noon today called by the Master Builders Association, local contractors' organization, whose wage agreement with union carpenters expired Monday.

They are expected to put up a united front against carpenters' demands for a six-hour day at $1.37½ an hour. The old agreement which had been in force for the last year was for an eight-hour day at $1 an hour.

The carpenters' district council maintains the contract is invalid because it was not voted on by the full membership. In reply, the Master Builders Association produced the signed agreement and correspondence to prove the committee which represented the union in negotiations, had been authorized to represent the membership.

No Sympathy Strike.

There will be no sympathy strike or other related action on the part of other union workmen, it was announced unofficially yesterday by the Washington Building Trades Council, which represents every organized building trade in this area except the carpenters.

Varying estimates of the number of carpenters who have been taken off jobs have been announced by the union's district council. At a midnight conference Monday, when the walkout was voted, the figure was set at 3,000. Yesterday, it was put at 2,000 and, later, at "1,500 or more."

Albert Caya, business agent, said five or six contractors have agreed to the union's terms, but declined to name them. He said he believed the Washington Building Trades Council would support the strike.

The new Archives and Supreme Court buildings will not be seriously affected, for the time being, said an official of George A. Fuller Co., contractors, but completion of the Justice building may be held up because considerable carpenter work reserved for the last stages of construction is ready to be started.

Edward A. Burnap, construction superintendent for James Stewart & Co. on the Labor-Interstate Commerce Commission Building, where approximately 25 carpenters were employed until yesterday, declared the strike might result in a total shutdown if it is not settled soon.

Even dedication of the new Pharmaceutical Building at Twenty-third street and Constitution avenue, scheduled for next Wednesday, is affected. A speaker's platform and stands are to be erected, but if the strike is not settled by the end of this week no union carpenters will be available for the work.

Unveiling and dedication of the William Jennings Bryan memorial statue tomorrow, at which President Roosevelt will speak, will not be prevented because necessary stands and seats will be put up by employes of National Capital Parks, who are not affiliated with the carpenters' union.

Spy Hill Records Sensational Trial

New York, May 1 (AP).—Spy Hill, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Kentucky Derby hope, turned in a sensational trial this morning at Belmont Park as his final workout before leaving for Churchill Downs Wednesday.

With Silvio Coucci in the saddle, Spy Hill stepped the full Derby route of 1¼ miles in 2:04 1-5. Carrying approximately 118 pounds, 8 less than Derby weight, he reeled off the first half in 48 seconds, the 6 furlongs in 1:12 2-5 and was caught at the mile pole in 1:38 1-5. Still going easy he turned the 9 furlongs in 1:51 and finished out the distance full of run.

Louisville, Ky., May 1 (U.P.).—Mata Hari, fleet filly which Charles T. Fisher believes will carry big Dixiana Stable silks to victory in the Kentucky Derby on Saturday, breezed an easy mile in 1:44 2-5 at Churhill Downs today. She is at the peak of her form and her handlers are confident the Peter Hastings miss will give a good account of herself in the big stake.

Ickes to Probe N.Y.C. Contract With Wierton

PWA Loan Protested in Plan to Purchase Steel Tie Plates.

Secretary Ickes, the Public Works Administrator, yesterday served notice that he intends to "inquire into the circumstances" of the contract given the Wierton Steel Co. by the New York Central Railroad involving funds borrowed from the PWA.

The Wierton firm, accused by the National Labor Board of violating collective bargaining provisions of the National industrial recovery act, was awarded a $47,400 contract for steel tie plates by the railroad. The plates were to be paid for from a $2,500,000 rail-purchase loan advanced by the PWA.

Under the terms of the rail-purchase contract, the PWA requires that all materials bought with the funds be purchased from firms complying with codes of the President's blanket agreement.

Asked whether he would allow Asked whether he would allow the Wierton contract with the railroad to stand in view of the citation of the steel firm by the labor board, Secretary Ickes said that he intended "to inquire into the circumstances of the contract."

Under the contract covering the original loan to the railroad, the PWA has the right to disapprove subsequent sub-contracts before they are made, or can demand cancellation of contracts where they already have been signed.

The PWA was informed recently by the railroad that it intended to enter into the contract with the Wierton firm. Because the steel firm's Blue Eagle status was in dispute, with a decision pending, no attempt was made to take action on the subcontract.

Hearings are now under way on the Wierton citation in Wilmington, Del., U. S. District Court. Whether Secretary Ickes will await the outcome of the Justice Department inquiry was not disclosed.

Hull Speedily Ends Japanese Note Incident

Department Serene in Maintaining Friendly Relationship.

Having made its Far Eastern position unmistakably clear, the State Department hastened yesterday to drop the controversy aroused by Japan's recent assertion of primary rights in Asia.

At the same time, it was announced that the Japanese Ambassador, Hirosi Saito, intends to return to Japan for a visit at the end of June. Saito intends to visit China and Manchukuo as well as his homeland in the course of a two month's trip, it was added.

While home he will have an opportunity to acquaint his government with the development of Japanese-American relations. It will be his first visit since taking over the Washington post early this year.

For years Japan has professed a desire to maintain cordial and friendly relations with this country, it was pointed out yesterday, and this Government intends to cooperate to the fullest extent in realizing this aim.

Discussion Foregone.

Continued discussion of what is termed a closed incident could only hamper reestablishment of what may appear to have been slightly marred relations, officials feel.

Emphasis was placed again on the exchange of friendly messages between Secretary Hull and the Japanese Foreign Minister, Koki Hirota, early in March. It was made clear the department would prefer to have future discussions with Japan proceed on this friendly plane rather than in the somewhat blunter manner of the past two weeks.

An indirect hint to Japan that no grudge is harbored was seen in this expressed desire to wipe out the recent past.

At the same time the Administration is keeping a close eye on Far Eastern developments, wanting to make sure its restatement of adherence to treaties will be observed. The Administration meant what it said about intending to respect its own obligations and expecting others to respect its rights in return, the inference is, but it also wishes to avoid acrimony over what, translating from diplomatic language, might be termed the well-deserved spanking just administered.

In view of this expressed desire to drop the incident, excitement died down here rapidly yesterday. Reports from London and Tokyo indicated a similar willingness to forget.

Japan Gains in South.

Meanwhile, a Department of Commerce survey just issued, shows rapid gains of Japanese products in Latin American markets, indicating possibly where the next rub in Japanese-American relations may appear.

Increases in sales ranging from 100 to 1,000 per cent in a majority of South American countries are reported for numerous Japanese products, largely at the expense of competing American goods.

All consular officials in Latin America have been instructed to send in frequent reports on Japanese trade activities, it was disclosed.

Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, Haiti, Panama, Mexico, Puerto Rico, and the Central American republics are understood to be the lands most favored by the Japanese merchants. Sales in 1933 totaled approximately $12,000,000, it was estimated.

2 Men Caught In Pistol Battle

One Shot Fighting Police After Alleged Store Holdup Attempt.

Two armed colored men, after an alleged attempt to rob the grocery store of Ike Kaufban in the 200 block of C street southwest, were captured early yesterday after a gun battle with police. One was shot in the leg.

Attracted by Kaufman's shouts, Policemen Rubin Nichols and W. W. Hall, of the Fourth Precinct, caught the men after an exchange of shots.

Kaufman said he was attacked in his store when the pair entered and demanded money. One of them, he said, struck him on the head with a gun. The men fled without loot. They were overtaken by the policemen several blocks away.

During the gunfire, Allen C. Jackson, colored, 19, of the 1300 block of U street northwest, was shot in the leg. His companion gave the name of James Burroughs, 21, of the 1800 block of Fifteenth street northwest.

Safe Tubs

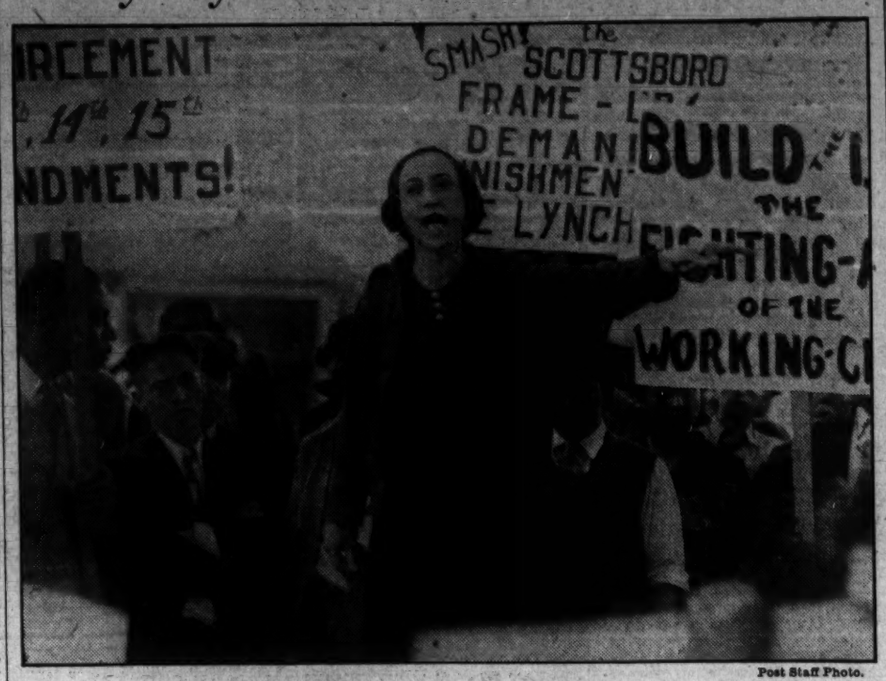

Plumbers to Demonstrate Latest Styles.

The modern bathroom, 1934 model, is the safest room in the home, and the safest spot in the bathroom is the bathtub, according to the National Association of Master Plumbers, which will demonstrate many conveniences of modern plumbing at their fifty-second annual convention at Washington Auditorium, May 28-31.

An exposition devoted to such displays will be one of the main features of the sessions. The old four-legged bathtub, according to Robert J. Barrett, president of the association, is as obsolete today as the first two-cylinder "horseless carriage."

Due to its better bathing position and flat sides and bottom, the 1934 tub is reducing the number of bathroom accidents. Last year there were only 557 of them in the Nation, the association says.

May Day Demonstration Here Is Peaceful

World's May Day Observance Marred by Bloodshed, Rioting

claimed casualties. A short-lived riot broke out after a Communist mass meeting near Paris, when 1,500 Reds sought to march on the capital.

At Lake Charles, La., one man was seriously hurt when 15 shots were fired into a meeting of 300 persons gathered to discuss the strike of longshoremen. Communists were held responsible for the burning of the famous Singer Hall in Augsburg, Germany, scene of Adolf Hitler's early attempts to raise a following.

In Havana bullets fired from housetops into a parade of 10,000 Communists killed one man and wounded six others, and created a bedlam while authorities used teargas guns and the marchers scurried for shelter.

In many places military and police chiefs had girded themselves for disorders in view of fiery manifestoes and alleged revolutionary plots. In these localities the day passed comparatively quietly.

This is how the world observed May Day:

New York.—Communists and Socialists, carefully kept apart by 1,500 policemen, paraded and heard their respective orators call for discipline. Norman Thomas, Socialist, urged Americans to support a boycott against Austria to protest the Fascist dictatorship.

Chicago.—Thousands of Communists and their adherents paraded through Chicago's Loop. In the main, the demonstration was orderly. A few fist fights were halted promptly by police lining the way. Sidewalks were massed by watchers and thousands of others leaned from skyscrapers.

Boston.—Thousands thronged about Boston Common to attend a Communist meeting and a gathering of the women's auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and to watch a demonstration of police efficiency.

Quiet In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia.—All available police were on duty to keep order during a series of mass meetings and parades.

Scranton, Pa.—More than 2,000 persons from several nearby places conducted a peaceful demonstration.

Rio De Janeiro.—President Vargas inaugurated a group of dwellings, the first constructed under a government plan to build 2,000 cottages for laborers and civil servants.

Oviedo, Spain.—Eleven were injured when civil guards charged into rioting Socialists and Communists; the few shops that remained opened were stoned by demonstrators. A mob attacked headquarters of the popular agrarian faction.

Paris.—Red flags were much in evidence; a scheduled Communist-sponsored general strike hampered normal service but little; clashes between manifestants and police in the suburbs resulted in arrests; fiery speeches were given, but 10,000 especially mobilized soldiers and 30,000 police had little to do but look on.

Austrian Communist Killed.

Vienna.—One Communist was reported killed near Nuerzzuschlag by a member of a motorcycle troop of 170 Fascists from Italy en route to Vienna to participate in celebrations.

Madrid.—Commerce was shut down, and a holiday spirit prevailed. Police cars and mounted guards patrolled Madrid ready for emergencies that did not arise.

Berlin.—The high point of Germany's "day of labor" was the speech of Chancellor Adolf Hitler to 2,000,000 workers.

Moscow.—A military display of picked troops, 600 tanks, and airplanes marked the Russian May Day. American Ambassador Bullitt was among the diplomats who watched a huge procession through the Red Square.

Tokyo.—Under the surveillance of 3,000 police, 7,000 persons marched with banners demanding "pay labor wage scales befitting people of a first-class power."

Belgian Police Prepared.

Brussels.—Police and gendarmes who believed they had smashed plans for an uprising by the arrest of ten Communists in recent raids, were prepared for trouble. Peaceful parades, however, caused them no concern.

Rome.—No disturbances were reported in Italy.

Geneva.—Communists' efforts to force a merchant to close his store was the only May Day disturbance here.

Buenos Aires.—A "state of siege" prevailed in Argentina as workmen paraded and assembled, and otherwise enjoyed a general holiday.

Warsaw.—May Day passed quietly throughout Poland, except in Wilno, where groups of Nationalists smashed windows in a number of shops owned by Jews.

Athens.—Police arrested 300 rioters.

Antwerp.—Celebrations of Communists and Laborites were marked by minor clashes between small opposing groups.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Add to Problems For White House

Arrival o fthree baby robins to add to the problems of the White House yesterday received the attention of Mrs. Roosevelt and her grandchildren, Buzzie and Sistie Dall.

Advised that a young robin couple had elected to set up housekeeping in one of the most conspicuous spots of the White House lawn—only a few yards from the Executive offices of the President himself—Mrs. Roosevelt went to investigate.

With her were Mrs. Anna Dall, her daughter, and the two children. The latter were shouldered up for a glimpse at the nest, containing three very unlovely little birds whose open mouths ket their parents busy looking for worms.

D.C. Physicians To Meet Today

Inquiry Sought On Insurance Hush Campaig

House Committee Is Told of Fund to Spread Propaganda.

Reports that a mysterious $75,000 "propaganda fund" was being raised to prevent inauguration of the Government's permanent deposit insurance plan next July were passed on to the House Banking Committee yesterday with recommendation an investigation be made.

A witness before the committee, Thomas B. Love, of Dallas, Assis tnat Secretary of the Treasury during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, said he understool the Chase National Bank of New York City, was one of the contributors to the fund, with a donation of $6,000.

Love appeared in opposition to a bill which would postpone inauguration o fthe permanent insurance plan from July 1, 1934, until July 1, 1935. After explaining his opposition, he testified:

"Some step should be taken to investigate this association of Reserve city bankers."

That association, along with Administration officials, is urging a one-year extension of the existing temporary Federal deposit insurance plan, under which deposits up to $2,500 are insured 100 per cent. Committee members, among them Representative Hancock (Democrat), North Carolina, said they had known of the association's campaign.

He expressed the opinion, however, the House committee would not agree to a one-year extension of the $2,500 guarantee, but would raise it to $5,000.

The permanent plan would put a 100 per cent guarantee behind deposits up to $10,000; 75 per cent on those from $10,000 to $50,000, and 50 per cent on those over $50,000.

Roosevelt Hits Postal Aid Pay Bill in Veto

Vetoing the act to provide minimum pay for postal substitutes, President Roosevelt yesterday declared it "contrary to public policy, in that it provides compensation to a certain class of employes, regardless of the need for their services."

Moreover, "it is discriminatory and establishes a precedent which, if followed, would undoubtedly lead to many abuses," the President said in his message to the House. Such a relief measure, he added, is "not in the interest of good administration of the public business."

Accompanying the veto was a letter from Postmaster General Farley, who detailed his objections to a measure which sought to compel the Postoffice Department to pay the 26,000 postal substitutes for a minimum of 100 hours a month service.

"The elimination of the furloughs and restoration of vacations, together with the resumption of normal service to meet the essential needs of the patrons," Farley stated, "will provide immediate employment for substitutes, particularly in the large cities, where the unemployment of this group has been most noticeable."

Mr. Roosevelt informed Congress that the depression decreased postal business to such an extent that the department no longer needed thousands of employes. Among those suffering were the substitutes, who have vigorously demanded relief.

Fight on Sugar Bill May Prove Futile

President Expected to Sign Today Despite Isles.

Despite opposition from Puerto Rico and Hawaii on provisions of the Costigan-Jones sugar-control bill enacted last week by Congress, indications yesterday were President Roosevelt would sign it today.

Gov. Blanton Winship, recently appointed Governor of Puerto Rico, voiced objections during a long conference with Mr. Roosevelt in which Puerto Rican affairs were gone over in detail. Puerto Rican Representatives likewise protetsed to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Among plans of Gov. Winship for Puerto Rico is the development of its tourist possibilities. He will leave Washington on the return Friday.

friendly relations between Nippon and the United States are unchanged.

Meantime, Foreign Minister Hirota found himself in a difficult position. His enemies charged he is responsible for what most observers now consider was the indiscreet revelations of Eiji Amau, his spokesman, regarding Japan's overlordship of eastern Asia. They said he has proved himself "not sufficiently adroit" for the difficult task of handling the empire's foreign relations. Reactionaries favoring a military dictatorship sought to demonstrate that the incident proves again "the futility of parliamentary government."

Foreign office comment on the Hull statement, which set up the thesis that "no nation can make its will conclusive in the Far East," was notably reserved.

League to Continue China Rehabilitation

London, May 1 (AP).—The London headquarters of the League of Nations revealed today that the league intends to go forward with its work of collaborating in the reconstruction of China.

The league will proceed in the face of Japan's objections to its activities on the basis of the statement of Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon that the Japanese statement of position would not prohibit employment of foreign advisors by China.

China Asks British To Amplify Policy

London, May 1 (U.P.).—The Chinese Minister, Quo Tai-Chi, is requesting the foreign office to elucidate Sir John Simon's reference yesterday to Japan's "special rights", in China, it was learned today.

The British foreign secretary made this unexplained reference in a statement in the House of Commons yesterday designed to clarify the recent crisis aroused by Japan's unofficial declaration of a "hands off China" policy affecting all other powers.

Sir John said Japan had assured Britain she had no intention of violating the traditional "open door" policy of equal economic opportunity in Asia or the Nine-Power Treaty, but added that he acknowledged "Japan's special rights in China, which are recognized by the other powers and unshared by them."

Minister Quo said this reference might be taken several ways.

McLeod Bill To Cost Nation Billion, Claim

Morgenthau Says U. S. Loss Would Be That on Deposit Payments.

Payment of deposits of $2,500 or less in closed banks, as provided in the amended Mcleod bill, would result in a net cost to the Government of approximately $1,083,311,746, Secretary Morgenthau estimated yesterday.

The estimate was made in a letter to Representative Brown (Democrat), Michigan, who had asked for the figures.

Morgenthau explained that the figures were based on deposits in National banks and estimates of those in State banks and banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System.

The Secretary estimated that it would be necessary in order to carry out provisions of the bill to advance $1,807,299,942 to the banks, with the possibility of the Government recovering $724,088,196, leaving the net cost still above a billion dollars.

The estimates covered 1,581 National banks, 281 State member banks and 5,554 State non-member banks.

Fascist Army Chief Is Named Aid to Dollfuss

Austria Uses Planes to Suppress Socialist May Day Rallies.

Vienna, May 1 (AP).—The leader of the Fascist army which put down the Socialist rebellion in February today became second in command in Austria, as the nation celebrated its new constitution and the government used airplanes to suppress Socialist May Day meetings.

Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, iron-fisted chieftain of the Heimwehr—Fascist Home Guard—was made vice chancellor, and his colleague, Emil Fey, was transferred from that position to minister of public security. The latter appointment assures Heimwehr control of the police, the gendarmerie and the auxiliary and security troops.

The appointments came after Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss had proclaimed the new corporative constitution in a nation-wide broadcast in which he declared that May Day must "again become the true day of all workers."

The government positively forbade the Socialists to hold meetings in observance of the day. Barred from the historic Ringstrasse, where they had paraded on May Day many a year in the past, the Socialists took to the woods.

Among the trees numerous mass meetings were held, but the government sent out airplanes which spotted the gatherings for the gendarmes, who broke them up and arrested numerous persons.

The only fatality reported in connection with May Day in the country was the killing of a Communist near Neurzzuschlag in a clash with a group of motorcycling Fascists coming from Italy to join in the celebration of the new constitution.

Tobacco Crop Curb Backed

Tobacco production control was approved by a House Agriculture sub-committee yesterday, but some Administration leaders indicated they preferred to have the Bankhead cotton control act prove its worth before embarking on a similar experiment with another of the South's great crops, the Associated Press reported.

In approving the Kerr bill the sub-committee adopted several important amendments, one of which would reopen the voluntary reduction plan to give all qualified farmers another opportunity to escape the 25 to 33½ per cetn advalorem tax the measure woud levy on all tobacco sold by noncooperators.

This is a feature not contained in the Bankhead measure, which automatically closed the door to noncooperators for this cotton crop season. Kerr bill supporters may use it to win a favorable report from the full Agriculture Committee.

Cumberland Adopts Antiliquor Ordinance

Cumberland, Md., May 1 (Spl.).—The mayor and city council yesterday passed an ordinance covering the illegal sale of liquor in the city. It provides from $100 to $300 fine or 30 days in jail.

The city previously had no ordinance which empowered city officers to enter a place and make an arrest for illegal sale. This law empowers an officer to make an arrest on sight. Previously a warrant was necessary.

Administration Money Policy Shift Rumored

Change to Spur Trade, Industry, Observers of Move Assert.

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

The Administration has swung toward more orthodox and tried methods as regards monetary policy, a high officials said yesterday.

The new program is oposite to the experimental money policy represented by such technique as the recent gold price scheme which has not been entirely satisfactory in lifting the level of domestic commodity prices.

Official intimations of the shift away from more experimental plans was borne out by several recent and prospective monetary developments.

The reported change is believed to have resulted from the not too satisfactory effects on commodity prices of the recent boost in gold prices from $20.67 to $35 as advocated by Prof. George Warren, a Presidential monetary advisor.

Advisors Absent.

Warren has been seen less frequently in Washington and one of his associates, Prof. James Rogers, recently went to China to conduct a silver money investigation for the Treasury Department.

Absence of these Presidential advisors was believed by some to indicate that their theories were not being followed as closely as recently and that other steps were contemplated in the Administration's monetary program.

Among the pointers to a revised and a more orthodox monetary program are listed the following:

1. Opposition of President Roosevelt to various mandatory silver rehabilitation and dollar cheapening proposals at this time.
2. A prospective budget deficit for the current year of about half the estimated $7,309,000,000.
3. A slowing down of Governmental expenditures with consequent reduction in borrowing needs and stronger Government credit.
4. Indications that no further experimental boosts will be made in the Government's $35 per ounce bid price for gold, which may indicate no further reductions at this time in the gold content of the dollar.
5. Setting in readiness of the Government's $2,000,000,000 exchange stabilization fund through which it may be possible for the Administration better to control domestic commodity prices without resort to more experiments.

Followed Great Britain.

Establishment of the exchange fund followed the successful operation of a similar fund set up two years ago by Great Britain. The latter country has been able to maintain a steady commodity price level partly through use of the fund in guiding foreign exchange quotations.

The shift, it was believe, would not necessarily occasion any change in the Administration's objective of raising domestic commodity prices close to the 1926 levels, nor would it necessarily denote any change in President Roosevelt's ultimate objetice of a "managed currency," or one that would retain comparatively equal purchasing power from year to year.

On the contrary, observers says, a more orthodox money policy might contribute to rising prices by restoration of confidence, which in turn would further aid in increasing business and employment.

Church Body Votes Ouster for Cannon

applause swept the conference hall as he came forward and explained that his appearance at the conference had been "unavoidably delayed."

He otherwise made no reference to his trial in Washington, which was under way when the conference opened and which resulted in his acquittal on charges of conspiracy to violate the corrupt practices act in connection with anti-Al Smith activities in 1928.

Speaking with characteristic vigor, the 69-year-old bishop told the conference in his report today that he blamed "the downfall of prohibition on the shocking failure of the Federal Government to enforce the prohibition law, lack of State cooperation, the Catholic hierarchy and the wet press."

It was learned that the episcopacy committee's decision to seek Bishop Cannon's retirement was reached late yesterday.

The bishop served notice several weeks ago that he would vigorously fight any such move.

Members of the episcopacy committee, called into further special session tonight, declined to discuss the case.

Under the present church discipline, bishops under the age of 72 can be retired only for infirmity or on charges involving character.

Senate Passes Municipalities Bankrupt Bill

Bitter Controversy Ended With Approval of Wilcox Plan.

who bought such securities on assurances that they were gilt-edged.

Senator Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, chairman of a judiciary sub-committee which held hearings on the bill, branded it as the "opening wedge in repudiation of State and Federal obligations." He maintained it was the duty of State governments to assist their distressed cities.

Florida Boom Blamed.

Van Nuys contended that, although there are now more than 2,000 municipalities and tax districts in default, in whole or in part, on the principal or interest of their indebtedness, the inspiration for the bill came from Florida, as an aftermath of the bursting of the "real estate bubble" there.

The bill as passed by the Senate, for a period of two years, would permit any municipality or taxing district, that is insolvent or unable to pay its debts, to petition a Federal court for a readjustment of indebtedness.

This petition must be accompanied by a plan for readjustment which has been approved by creditors holding at least 51 per cent of the amount of bonds or other obligations affected by the plan. Within 90 days if holders of 5 per cent or more of that class of obligations protest against the plan, the court is required to hold hearings.

Majority to Rule.

The plan of readjustment will become effective and binding on all security holders only if it is accepted in writing by holders of 66 2-3 per cent of the class of securities affected and by creditors holding 75 per cent of all classes and when the court decides it is fair, equitable and for the best interest of all classes of creditors.

Under the bill, as it passed the House, a petition to have its indebtedness readjusted could be filed by a municipality with the consent of 30 per cent of the creditors who would be affected. The plan might be subsequently worked out and would become effective when approved by .62-3 per cent of all classes of creditors.

The bill passed by the Senate was in effect a substitute offered by Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, for the House measure. While the McCarran amendment rewrote the House bill, it provided for substantially the same objective.

The measure was supported by 33 Democrats and 12 Republicans and was opposed by 14 Democrats and 14 Republicans. The conservative and progressive lines were forgotten as notably as party labels. Conservatives like Senators Barbour and Kean, of New Jersey, voted for the measure along with such progressives as Senators Frasier and Nye, of North Dakota, and Norris of Nebraska.

Borah Is Opposed.

On the other hand, the progressive Republicans, Borah, of Idaho, and Capper, of Kansas, were found coting against the measure with conservatives like Senators Davis, of Pennsylvanit; Goldsborough, of Maryland, and Keyes, of New Hampshire.

In some quarters the view was taken that the passage of the municipal bankruptcy bill was another step toward the liquidation of some of the Nation's excessive indebtedness, piled up during the seven fat years preceding the depression. A previous step was the bill ermitting financial reorganization of railroads adoted a year ago.

A third measure in this general category probably will be approved by the Senate today. It is the so-called corporate bankruptcy bill, which would permit insolvent corporations, or those unale to meet current obligations, to petition for a reorganization when approved by 25 per cent of its security holders and creditors in the classes affected, and by 10 per cent f all security holders and creditors.

The reorganization plan, however, would not become effective until accepted by two-third of security holders and creditors in the classes affected, and by a mojority of all stockholders.

Industrial Self-Government Declared to Be Goal of NRA

Majority Compliance Asserted.

"As to complaints about noncompliance," he said, "most of them have related to a few industries or trades with many small units and not to the majority of industries.

"Good news too frequently is not news. We hear very little about the tremendous good the codes are doing. But I have yet to learn of a single industry or trade signifying that it wishes to give up its code.

"In conclusion, I believe that the greatest need for the success of NRA is for long-time, thorough thinking on the part of industry as to its present and future problems. By facing these problems intelligently and honestly industry will be able to administer itself, with certain necessary supervision from the Government which industry itself requested."

Claims 92 Per Cent Codification.

Harriman said the NRA had codified 92 per cent of industry. He declared if much criticized price-fixing provisions were to be included in codes it would be necessary for NRA or some governmental agency to supervise their operation.

Compton offered a detailed account of the manner in which he was "approached."

"I console myself," he said, "that these men were all strangers to me and I to them, for I should hate to think that among those who have known me and have known such imprint as I may have made upon industry organization during the past decade and a half, I could have left an impression that I would trade an honorable reputation for 'thirty pieces of silver.'

Sinister Efforts Seen.

"But the episodes themselves were rather revealing and impressive to me. They signified that efforts were going on, and I presume are still going on, to attain self-advantages by crucifying the very spirit of public and industry fair-play without which NRA can not stand.

"We have been freely criticizing NRA—and much of the criticism I think is justified—but, gentlemen, we have some things to clean up in our own back yard before we seek too many distant worlds to conquer."

Compton said the country should "thank God for a man like Gen. Johnson."

Another speaker, Donald Richberg, NRA general counsel, said effectiveness of Code Administration would determine the permanent value of the recovery program.

Safety at Dinners Assured.

"Political self-Government," he added, "was, of course, a revolutionary idea in 1776, and so industrial self-Government may seem equally revolutionary to the Tories of 1934.

"But let me hasten to reassure you that you are not really engaged in starting a revolutionary movement. You may talk freely, even humorously, at private without feeling that some publicity hound included among the guests will accuse you later in the newspapers of planning red revolt."

He said America's real revolutionaries for more than 100 years "have been groups of scientists working quietly, almost secretly, in the laboratories of our universities, and developing there through experimentation those powers of mankind to exploit the natural resources of the earth that now actually threaten our destruction unless we are able to subject them to intelligent control.

"These are the professors on whom should be poured the wrath of those who are affrighted by the hobgoblins of revolution."

The meeting of the executives was held in conjunction with the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Relationship of business to Government will undergo minute scrutiny today at the Chamber convention proper, which will have before it a detailed report telling the manner in which the Government's recovery program is affecting business, and indicating that all of the results have not been favorable.

Legislation May Be Urged.

Legislation defining fair business practices and considerably modifying the recovery act may be recommended before the sessions close Friday. Meanwhile, Government representatives and representatives of business will be given a full opportunity to be heard at general meetings and at numerous smaller conferences representing particular kinds of business.

At the opening meeting of the general session today Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., will be the speakers.

At the dinner meeting tonight Recovery Administrator Johnson will speak.

Allen Presses For Nullified Welfare Board

Despite Resignations, He Hopes to Leave Only Advisory Powers.

Faced with the prospect of further resignations from the Board of Public Welfare, Commissioner George E. Allen yesterday reaffirmed his intention of pressing for legislation which would strip the board of its administrative power and relegate it to an advisory unit.

W. W. Millan, chairman of the board, yesterday wired his resignation. Judge Michael M. Doyle expressed the intention of quitting if pending legislation is enacted. Other members are expected to do likewise.

The resignation of Millan was generally construed as arising from resentment to Commissioner Allen's refusal to accept the nomination of Robert W. Kelso as successor to George S. Wilson, welfare director, and of the Commissioner's insistence that the Board of Commissioners be vested with full power over welfare matters, which it does not now possess.

The Welfare Board met yesterday and appointed a new committee to select a nominee for Wilson's post. This committee is expected to select Elwood Street, director of the Community Chest, who is favored by Allen for the post to be vacated by Wilson.

Frederick W. McReynolds, who heads the committee, is inclined to go along with Allen on the Street selection, but the position of the other members of the board is unknown. All members have privately expressed their displeasure of Allen's move to divest them of their administrative powers and more resignations appeared imminent if Allen's legislation is passed.

Millan has been a member of the board since its organization in 1926. He was named vice chairman at the time of its institution, but became chairman about a year and a half ago, succeeding John Joy Edson. Doyle has also been a member since 1926.

Sidney F. Taliaferro resigned last week after the committee of which he was a member submitted Kelso's name for the post of welfare director. The nomination was shelved by Allen. Several months ago, Taliaferro offered his resignation after criticizing transient relief expenditures as "prodigal."

Dakota Grain Embargo Injunction May Hold

The Supreme Court indicated it would dismiss the appeal by which Gov. William Langer of North Dakota sought to set aside an injunction prohibiting enforcement of the North Dakota grain embargo act until its constitutionality could be determined, the Associated Press reported.

Ritchie Ready To Enter Race For Fifth Term

Tydings Now Expected to Aid Mayor Jackson, of Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 1 (Spl.).—Despite warnings by Senator Millard E. Tydings and others that a bitter primary will spell probable defeat and extensive damage to the Democratic party in Maryland, Gov. Ritchie was reported here today to be planning to announce within a week that he will be a candidate to succeed himself.

His principal opponent, when and if he does announce his candidacy, will be Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, himself a power in the Democratic party.

A contest for the nomination between these two party leaders would be "little short of suicidal," Senator Tydings said today. The Senator, the third of a political triumvirate that has stood together in previous elections and always won, has advised the Governor not to run again, and the belief here is that if Ritchie does, Tydings will support Jackson for the nomination.

Gov. Ritchie has asserted that he is "just as conscious of my responsibility" to the Democratic party, which has four times elected him to the Governorship, as is Senator Tydings.

The impression is that Dr. Charles H. Conley, of Frederick, who also has filed for the gubernatorial nomination, will retire from the race in favor of Jackson. Such a move would mean added strength for the mayor, for Dr. Conley has a large following.

Robbery Effort Leads to Jail

H. Carl Hall Arrested After Alleged Assault on Cashier.

Peterstown, W. Va., May 1 (AP). Charged with an attempt to rob the First National Bank of Peterstown, H. Carl Hall, 45, of Peterstown, yesterday waived to the Monroe County grand jury and was committed to the county jail at Union by Justice of Peace M. W. Harvey.

Officers said that Hall, who was unemployed, entered the bank at noon yesterday, carrying a hammer, and presented a check for $500 which the assistant cashier, R. V. Ballard, refused to honor.

Ballard related that Hall then said he wanted to rent a deposit box and when he entered the vault, the man followed him. Ballard said as he was attempting to get out a box for Hall, the man struck at his head with a hammer, Ballard dodged and received the blow on an arm.

Fleeing, Ballard was followed by Hall. Ballard went to the postoffice, where he summoned the aid of several citizens, later going to Hall's home, where he was placed under arrest on a warrant charging attempted murder and attempted bank robbery.

Contract Protest Is Ignored by PWA

Fredericksburg Firm Loses Dormitory Award.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 1 (Spl.). The protest of Lucas Construction Co., against award to the Doyle & Russell firm, of Richmond, of the contract for dormitory construction work at Fredericksburg State Teachers College, was overruled by PWA officials with award to the Richmond firm. Protests were sent to the State PWA engineer and the office of the PWA in Washington.

The local contractors submitted a base bid for the addition to Virginia Hall dormitory $210 lower than that of Doyle & Russell, but the Richmond firm was $239 lower on the supplementary bid, making a net difference in their favor of $29.

The Lucas Construction Co. agreed to complete the work in five months, against a working time of 190 days proposed by Doyle & Russell.

Crop Loan Time Extended.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 1 (Spl.). The period for receiving applications for crop loans through the Emergency Crop Loan office has been extended from April 30 to May 15, J. Gray Beverley, field supervisor, announces.

Veteran Who Slept on Walk In '64 Back in Frederick

Washington Man, 91, at Encampment of Sons of G. A. R.

Frederick, Md., May 1 (Spl.).—A Union soldier who 70 years ago slept on one of Frederick's brick sidewalks returned today to take part in the forty-ninth annual encampment of the Maryland Department, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, embracing Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, District of Columbia and Dealware, which began today and will continue tomorrow.

He was Maj. E. R. Campbell, 91, of Washington, past commander in chief of the organization. The distinction which Maj. Campbell holds is shared by Michael Casey, 93, of Washington, who also is here.

The principal event tonight was the annual banquet, at which Col. D. John Markey, commander of the First Maryland Infantry, M. N. G., made an address on "The Battle of Antietam."

About 50 delegates attended the opening session and others are expected tomorrow. This afternoon the delegates visited the Antietam battlefield at Sharsburg.

Maj. Campbell disclosed that he was the only living resident of Washington who was a member of the corps which participated in the battle of Fort Stevens in the extension of Georgia avenue in that city. He also participated in the Shenandoah Valley campaign under Sheridan, and fought in 14 battles altogether. His brigade led the charge that broke the Confederate line at Petersburg in 1864—"the beginning of the end."

The committee in charge of the encampment consists of Past Commanders O. A. C. Oehmler, Washington; Howard Michael, Baltimore, and Elmer P. Corrie, Smyrna, Del. Mr. Corrie is secretary of the department council.

Notables attending the session include Commander in Chief Park F. Yengling, Bay Village, Ohio; Past Commander in Chief Maj. Edward F. Campbell, Clearwater, Fla.; Past Commander in Chief E. C. Ireland, Baltimore; Commander George W. Weldin, Delaware Department, G. A. R.; Commander William Leach, Maryland Department, G. A. R.

Norris Is Seen As Angling for Fisheries Job

Virginia Senator Believed "Dark Horse" Candidate for Board Post.

Norfolk, May 1 (Spl.).—Senator Robin O. Norris, jr., Lancaster, is looked upon as a "dark horse" candidate for commissioner of fisheries as a result of developments that may eliminate Richard Armstrong, Hampton, incumbent, from consideration for reappointment, as well as O. A. Bloxom, of Isle of Wight and Newport News, who is backed by a considerable political and oyster tonging faction.

At the same time, a reorganization of the commission of fisheries and its staff would not be unexpected as a result of the audit of its operations now being completed by the auditor of public accounts, L. McCarthy Downs, whose report is expected to be in the hands of the Governor soon.

Senator Norris was named assistant attorney general by former Senator A. P. Staples, who was appointed to succeed the late John R. Saunders, and was understood to have accepted the post. Later, however, it developed that he would not qualify and reports at Richmond and in Tidewater have been to the effect that Norris might prefer to be commissioner of fisheries.

He served as a member of the commission in 1930-31-32, and was co-patron of much of the new fisheries legislation enacted in 1930.

Gov. Peery has been keeping his own counsel on the fisheries situation and is understood to be awaiting the report of the auditor before appointing the commissioner and the four associate members of the board, all of whom serve now at the "pleasure" of the executive.

Appointments may also be delayed until the special legislative commission named to investigate policies of the present commission shall have had an opportunity to study the situation, as well as the report of Downs.

Crisfield Jury May Expedite Stabbing Case

Patrolman Daugherty Dies of Wounds Following Knife Attack.

Baltimore, May 1 (Spl.).—Officials of Somerset County are considering summoning a special session of the county grand jury to consider the case of Howard McClellan, colored, accused of fatally stabbing Patrolman Harry Daugherty, of the Crisfield Police Force, last Sunday night. Daugherty died in Crisfield early today.

McClellan is now in jail here, where he was brought yesterday after Sheriff Luther M. Daugherty arrested him about 15 miles from the scene of the crime. A posse of several hundred men had searched marshes and thickets for the man and he was finally located at the home of a relative. He surrendered peaceably and denied stabbing the policeman.

Sheriff Daugherty announced today that McClellan will be kept in jail here until his case has been considered by the grand jury, because of the danger of lynching. Somerset County was the scene of one lynching last October, and two years previously another colored man was lynched at Salisbury, in adjoining Wicomico County.

The Somerset County grand jury ordinarily does not meet until September, but for the purpose of expediting McClellan's trial, county officials expect to hold a special session, possibly next week. A warrant charging murder will be sworn out against the prisoner by Sheriff Daugherty tomorrow.

Funeral services for Patrolman Daugherty will be held tomorrow at Crisfield. He is survived by his widow and seven children. A son, 23 years old, was seriously hurt in an automobile accident early Sunday and is under treatment at his home.

Senior at Stanley Writes Class Play For 1934 Season

Stanley, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—The senior class of Stanley High School will present as its graduation play a drama of the Virginia Blue Ridge, written by one of its members, Miss Catherine Judy, 16, who is also valedictorian of the class. It is entitled "The Last Frontier."

The play is based on the establishment of the Shenandoah National Park and the removal of the hill people from their homes. It was written as a term paper, when the seniors were given their choice of writing either a story or a play, and was selected for production by the high school faculty.

Miss Judy has taken as her hobby the study of the mountain people in this area, and all the characters of the play are drawn after persons living in the vicinity. In several cases actual names have been used, with the permission of these named.

The cast recently made a trip to the hills and selected a mountain cabin as a model for the setting, and rehearsals have been started.

Karl Jenkins, Miss Judy's English teacher, declared that the play was entirely her own work.

Thief Loots Open Safe of Securities Worthless to Him.

Hagerstown, Md., May 1 (Spl.). Nonnegotiable notes and securities valued at $25,000 were stolen from the office safe of Leo Miller, lawyer, some time yesterday, authorities disclosed today.

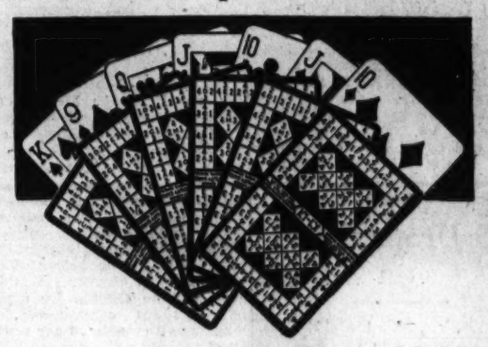

The notes and securities are of no value to the thief, said Miller, who offered a reward for their return, with no questions asked. The securities were in a box in the safe, which was unlocked. Entrance to the office had been gained by use of a jimmy on the door.

The door to the office of Robert McCauley, attorney, was also jimmied open, but the thief is believed to have fled when he saw McCauley at his desk. McCauley said he was engrossed in work and heard some one open the door, then close it, but thought it was his stenographer.

It was the second time in three years the Miller safe was ransacked. Three years ago a $1,000 negotiable bond was stolen and later traced to New York, where it had been sold. No arrests, however, were made.

Warming Sun Bursts Apple Festival Buds

Eleventh Annual Fete Is Set Thursday, Friday at Winchester.

Winchester, Va., May 1 (Æ).—Apple orchards of northern Virginia were bursting into bloom today under the influence of a warming sun and will be at the height of their fragrance and glory during the eleventh annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival Thursday and Friday, authorities at the Winchester Research Laboratory said.

Cool nights during the last two weeks had retarded the blossoming period until now, orchardists said. But they predicted an abundance of pink and white blooms on the hillsides surrounding this community during the festival days. Under normal conditions the trees will remain in bloom until early next week.

Damage done recently by freezing temperatures was confined, a detailed survey revealed, to relatively few scattered low-lying areas. Orchards on higher, well-drained land escaped.

While nature thus set the stage for days and nights of pageantry and brilliant social entertainment, a score of committees worked feverishly under the direction of J. Pinckney Arthur, director general, to perfect arrangements for the highlights of the official program.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, noted American horsewoman, who is to reign as "Queen Shenandoah XI," is scheduled to arrive in the blossom realm Thursday morning from her estate, Llangollen Farm, near Upperville, Va. State motorcycle police will escort her to her faery realm. She is to be entertained by Mrs. Richard Evelyn Byrd, official hostess of the pageant.

Two More Princesses for Apple Fete

Commonwealth's Attorney George Bendall entered a nolle prosequi when Luck wavered in his identification of Mrs. Boswell and said that he could not be certain she was the fortune teller.

Naval Academy Starts Festive Week May 26

Roosevelt Is Invited to Present Diplomas to Midshipmen.

Annapolis, Md., May 1 (Spl.). Officials of the Naval Academy today announced the program of festivities leading up to commencement day, which this year will be May 31.

President Roosevelt has been invited to address the graduates and present their diplomas, but indications are that coming battleship fleet review in Atlantic waters will conflict. A class of over 400 midshipmen will be eligible for diplomas and perhaps commissions, but whether all or only 50 per cent will be commissioned is dependent upon action of Congress on the Vinson bill.

The week of gayety and ceremonies will get under way on May 26, when the West Point cadets and midshipmen will stage their annual field and track games meet and at baseball. Another athletic event will be a tennis contest with the University of Pennsylvania.

The lone event on the program for Sunday, May 27, will be the baccalaureate sermon to graduates by Chaplin William N. Thomas.

Monday will be a big day from the standpoint of drills and social functions. At 10 a. m. two battalions of the regiment will stage a drill on Werden Field, and at noon presentation of minor athletic awards will take place in Thompson Stadium. Following this a band concert at 4 p. m. and a regimental dress parade at 5:30 p. m., with presentation of colors to the most efficient company will take place. From 9 to 11:30 p. m., there will be a garden party in honor of the graduates by Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent, and Mrs. Hart, the second class ring dance in Luce Hall, and a dance by third classmen in MacDonogh Hall.

The Tuesday program will open with another physical drill at 10 a. m., band concert at 3:30 p. m., dress parade at 5 p. m., to be featured by presentation of prizes for proficiency in the professional branches and major athletic awards; recital by the midshipmen's orchestra in Mahan Hall from 9 to 10:45 p. m., and from 9 to midnight, the "N" dance will be held in Hubbard Hall, the boathouse.

The Memorial Day holiday of May 30 will be appropriately observed, although band concerts are scheduled for morning and afternoon, and at night the farewell ball to the graduates will be held in Dahlgren Hall. Commencement exercises, May 31, will be held in Dahlgren Hall at 11 a. m.

Inquiry Bares Faulty Reports On City Utilities

Virginia Plants Disparaged, Trade Commission Is Informed.

The story of how a Chicago concern's reports on Virginia municipal power plants made for the Insull interests were designed to be disparaging, was told to the Federal Trade Commission yesterday in its inquiry into utility publicity.

Documents introduced at the hearing showed that A. W. Higgins, in 1930 president of the Seaboard Public Service Co., Alexandria, itself an Insull concern, exposed the reports as faulty. The reports were made on plants at Harrisonburg and Farmville, Va., by the Utility Publication Co.

H. J. Gondon, president of the publication firm, admitted at the hearing his company made the reports, and identified letters showing that he had furnished information about similar reports to Merle Thorpe, of Washington, editor of Nation's Business, for radio purposes.

A letter signed by Higgins entered in evidence asserted about the Harrisonburg report that "the author of the analysis of the plant has apparently made an effort to show plant in as poor a light as possible." He said the report showed a net gain for a year of $7,547 instead of $57,635. Of the Farmville plant, Higgins asserted the Gondon report showed a loss of $10,190 instead of a net income of $11,308.

"The reports of the Utility Publication Co.," Higgins wrote, "on these two plants, as well as other municipal plants, are presented in a very logical manner, but it is plain to the unprejudiced reader that invariably there is an attempt to disparage the showing made by municipal utilities."

The reports were made for various utility concerns by the publication company in return for extra subscriptions to its magazine. Gondon testified the reports sometimes were distributed to libararies and colleges.

A native of Manassas, Dr. Ashton resided for six years in Charlottesville, where he attended local public schools. He received his dental education at Georgetown University, graduating in 1911. Locating in Alexandria, he became a member of the State dental association three years later.

Dr. Ashton enlisted in 1917, with the rank of lieutenant, and became the following year division surgeon general of the Sixth Division. He went overseas, served in France until the armistice and accompanied the army of occupation into Germany. After his discharge at Camp Lee in June, 1919, he was assigned to the Reserve Corps as a major, and since that time has been made a lieutenant colonal.

Dr. Ashton is prominent in Masonry, a past master of Alexandria-Washington Lodge, No. 22, and a member-elect of the Alexandria City Council.

In his annual report, Dr. John M. Hughes, of Richmond, secretary of the Board of Dental Examiners, asked that the executive council be empowered to expend such funds as necessary in assisting localities in the prosecution of illegal corporations, individuals or organizations.

Papers were read at the afternoon session by Dr. Dudley C. Smith, of the department of dermatology at the University of Virginia; Dr. Z. L. Edwards, of Washington, and Dr. Paul J. Aufderheide, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The association voted overwhelmingly to oppose any effort to remove the State license tax on dentists.

Speakers on tonight's program were Dr. Charles S. Webb, of Bowling Green, and Dr. Sidney S. Jaffe, of Washington.

New U.S. Judgeship Urged in Richmond

New District Would Cut Burden on Court.

Richmond, May 1 (Æ).—Creation of a new Federal judgeship in Virginia to relieve the strain now imposed on District Judge Luther B. Way, of Norfolk, has been recommended by the Richmond Bar Association.

The local bar, acting through a committe headed by Thomas B. Gay, has sent a petition to Representative Andrew J. Montague asking him to introduce a bill to this effect in Congress.

The United States District Court for Eastern Virginia, presided over by Judge Way, holds sessions in Norfolk, Richmond and Alexandria. Richmond lawyers feel that the creation of another judgeship with a judge living in Richmond and holding court in Richmond and Alexandria would relieve the district court.

Sound Inmates Under 16 Leave Almshouses

West Va. to Place Mentally Normal Children in Private Homes.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 1 (Spl.). What is characterized as one of its most important undertakings has been started by the State Department of Public Welfare, under the direction of Francis W. Turner, State welfare director, in the removal of mentally normal children under 16 from all almshouses of West Virginia.

It is planned to send the children to a CCC camp in Tucker County for a three-months' "conditioning period," at the end of which they will be placed in private homes through the dependent children's division of the welfare department.

A survey is being made by the department, Mr. Turner states, to ascertain how many normal children are inmates of the almshouses. Negotiations have been made with Federal officials for taking over the Leadmine CCC camp in Tucker County, which is not now being used by the Government.

A staff taken from the unemployed will be placed on duty at the camp for the conditioning period, during which time the children will receive academic training as well as instruction in hygiene, sanitation and behavior. Effort will be made to correct undesirable faults they may have contracted, so they will be made more acceptable in private homes.

The welfare department is now in better position to look after this project, Turner says, since its recent separation from the Federal State relief organization, which separation was approved by the relief administration at his request.

Auto Tire Code Signed; Paves Price-Fixing

Industry, Under 40-Day Truce, Is Unable to Discern Profit.

With the signing of the retail rubber tire and battery code yesterday, President Roosevelt opened the way to one of the most drastic price-fixing programs yet undertaken by NRA.

The code provides establishment by NRA of minimum prices in event of an emergency in the industry. An emergency is expected to be declared and prices fixed when the code becomes effective, May 14.

The tire industry is operating now under a 40-day "truce," arranged for the purpose of eliminating "cut-throat" competition. The truce was arranged by agreement of manufacturers with NRA officials and expires when the code becomes effective and prices are fixed.

Cut Under Profit.

The new prices will be based on the "lowest reasonable cost," and admittedly will not give dealers what they consider a fair profit. They are expected, however, to remain in effect until the industry can reach some satisfactory agreement and, according to Leon Henderson, head of NRA research and planning division, they have purposely been fixed at low figures so that the industry will be spurred into making a satisfactory arrangement of its own.

Prices, which already have been determined and which will go into effect with the code, start with $5.20 for a class C tire for use on smaller cars. The highest priced fixed for these small tires is $6.70 for class A tires.

While it is admitted that these prices will not guarantee a profit to the trade, it is pointed out at NRA they will eliminate unfair competition from manufacturers and dealers selling at a loss, and they will force competition between tires on the basis of their relative quality, thus protecting consumers from "bargain" tires of inferior quality.

Mail Order Competition.

The prices are below list prices now prevailing under the "truce." NRA holds there is no question of the existence of an emergency in the tire business, and points out that manufacturers have admitted they are unable to handle the situation which has arisen largely from the practice of mail order houses underselling local dealers to such an extent that the local dealers can not continue in business.

In previous instances, prices have been fixed under NRA codes, but these prices have been based on a fair measure of profit above manufacturing and selling costs.

While some manufacturers have agreed to the price-fixing procedure, it is understood that others have objected and that court action to determine the right to fix prices below a figure guranteeing a fair margin of profit can be expected.

Norfolk, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Three Lamberts Point youths were ordered held for the corporation court grand jury on charges each of robbery by force of arms and two charges each of grand larceny, after they waived preliminary examination in police court today.

The boys, Frank Spring, 17, and Charles Spring, 18, both of 841 West Forty-fourth street, and Carl Dudley, 19, of 1252 West Forty-fourth street, have admitted, police say, holding up and robbing four couples in parked automobiles, and taking two automobiles in which to commit the robberies over the weekend.

The youths were arrested by Detectives R. W. Adams and J. G. Wright yesterday after the officers followed them from a pawnshop to the navy yard. At the pawnshop one of the trio tried to pawn a watch said to have belonged to one of the holdup victims.

Post Writer and Spanish War Hero Reunited at Walter Reed

C.M. Shepperson, Reporter Compares Notes With Charles G. Sonntag.

After a lapse of 35 years, two old Spanish-American War "bunkies" were reunited when Charles M. Shepperson, Post reporter paid a visit at Walter Reed Hospital to Charles G. Sonntag, whose name appears on the honor roll of the United States Army as one of the heroes who voluntarily risked his life in the investigation which settled for all time the question of how the dreaded yellow fever was transmitted.

Sonntag, who was serving in the Second Division Hospital, Seventh Army Corps, at Camp Columbia, Cuba, under Maj. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, w s one of more than a dozen enlisted men of the Hospital Corps who volunteered for service with the yellow fever board of the medical officers, of which Maj. Walter Reed was head. This valiant band, at Camp Lazear, near Havana, subjected themselves to inoculation by being bitten by mosquitoes, and practically every one contracted "yellow jack." Of this band of volunteers, Dr. Lazear, for whom the camp was named, was the only one to lose his life.

Sonntag was bitten by two mosquitoes. These two, insects were kept in a double-screened room, and also bit and infected another member of the party. Upon his recovery, and when the temporary yellow fever camp was being razed, Sonntag secured possession of the two dangerous pets which had almost taken his life. He placed them in a test tube, with creosote as a preservative—and he still has them.

Shepperson and Sonntag had a grand reunion. Although noted for his truthfulness under all conditions, Shepperson considered it advisable to take his wife with him, for he has been regaling her for some 30 years with tales of what transpired when he, too, was a member of the Hospital Corps, serving at Camp Columbia, with Sonntag and his comrades. The precaution was justified, and surely happy, for after the good wife had listened to the reminiscing of these two veterans for an hour, she, for the first time, began to credit the tales she has been doubting for so long.

Shepperson is always careful to say that had he known the yellow fever was going to break out, he would, of course, have stayed in the service and become a hero, too. Be that as it may, he missed the "fun," and perhaps he owes his life to that fact.

Darrow's 'Wonder if I'm Dead' Caused NRA Job Acceptance

Sure He's Not in Grave, He Writes Iowan; Drafts Report.

An urge to let the world know he is still alive drove Clarence Darrow to accept the chairmanship of the National Recovery Review Board.

In a reminiscent mood yesterday at his Willard Hotel suite, the noted criminal lawyer confided to a reporter why he decided to emerge from retirement on the eve of his seventy-seventh birthday.

"It all happened," he explained, "after I received a letter from a resident of Iowa who wanted me to settle a bet. He wrote, 'let me know whether you are dead.'

"I replied I sometimes wonder whether I am dead.

"That's a question that has bothered me a great deal. I wrote my Iowa friend that I meet so many dead people who're walking around I wonder whether I'm dead too. I told him I was certain of one thing—I'm not in a grave yet."

Looking very much alive as he laughed about the inquiry of his Iowa correspondent, Mr. Darrow added:

"So I came to Washington and put myself at the mercy of you newspaper reporters. Maybe you will be able to supply the answer for my Iowa friend."

Mrs. Darrow, attractive wife of the barrister, entered and displayed a long letter from a would-be New York client involved in a mortgage suit. A crisp $1 bill was pinned to the message.

"What do you think of that retainer?" Mrs. Darrow asked.

"If I take the case, I'll have to send the dollar back," the husband responded.

"He didn't know you or he wouldn't even have sent the dollar," Mrs. Darrow remarked.

Mr. Darrow discredited published rumors that a report he has prepared on the work of NRA bristled with criticism. He denied President Roosevelt had asked him to "tame down" the document. The report will be sent to the White House in a few days, he said.

Reply To Japan.

"Treaties can lawfully be modified or be terminated only by processes prescribed or recognized or agreed upon by the parties to them."

In these ringing words, a part of the statement of policy which our Ambassador in Tokyo has delivered to the Japanese foreign minister, the United States has given effective answer to suggestions that Japan is seeking to broaden her responsibilities at will in the Far East. The reply drafted by the Department of State is succinct, timely and tactful. It concentrates directly on the major issue involved, which is the Japanese intimation that the whole structure of treaty obligations may be demolished if a single party to a contract feels it advantageous to do so.

The statement made to Mr. Hirota by Mr. Grew was necessary. Silence gives consent, and delay in clarifying our position for the benefit of the Japanese foreign office would have been interpreted as meaning that the United States admitted the claims advanced in the recent manifesto on China. Such interpretation would destroy the policy of stability in the Pacific on which American diplomacy has concentrated since 1922.

Nobody in this country knows what, if any, specific Japanese intentions towards China are hidden behind the informal manifesto which claimed a right for Japan to "act single-handed, on her own responsibility" in east Asia. The manifesto was, in effect, a blank check, to be filled in later in such denomination as occasion might warrant. This blank check, Tokyo has now been warned by Washington, must not be an overdraft of the limits established by the Nine-Power Treaty and the Pact of Paris.

After a delay which was brief, considering the magnitude of the issues involved, the present Administration has for the first time aligned itself formally and definitively with the Far Eastern policy developed by its predecessors. This is in the best tradition of American foreign policy, in which developing continuity is unaffected by political changes in Washington. The Nine-Power Treaty and the Pact of Paris have been reaffirmed as the basis of our attitude in the Orient. They are thoroughly constructive treaties which Japan accepted willingly, and for which the world will expect observance except as they may be modified by agreement of all signatories.

A Great Personality.

The hardest thing to believe about Dr. William H. Welch is that he is dead, still young at 84. The brilliant scientist acknowledged as the most eminent of American pathologists; the patient researcher who isolated the organism of gas-gangrene; the inspired educator whose name will rank at least with that of Osler; the bon vivant known to his host of friends as "Popsy"—here were at least four great personalities combined in one; here was a man whose firm and ardent step kept pace with all that is rich and resolute in life.

Welch the booklover—Welch the urbane epicure—Welch the fighter saving thousands of soldiers in the A. E. F. by tearing through red tape—the diplomat Welch originating the proposal which placed the "Red Cross Article" in the covenant of the League of Nations—the crusader Welch never faltering in his allegiance to the league ideal—about this heroic figure there has accumulated a collection of affectionate anecdote and legend nearly as large as the great Medical Library in Baltimore named after him.

Few in his alert profession have ever been more alive. Few, in that calling which exacts so much from its adherents, have ever given more freely. None, in any walk of life, has left behind at his departure a finer intimation of the potentialities which lie in human personality.

"Shut Up, You . . ."

Sir Thomas Beecham was not the first conductor to turn upon his audience with a peremptory demand for silence. If memory serves, Serge Koussevitsky did the same thing some years ago, and shocked the Brahmins by warning them not to babble through the Brahms. But in the long run they learned he was right and now none will hear chattering in Boston's Symphony Hall on a Friday afternoon. He also trained the listeners not to interrupt between the movements of a symphony with handclapping, claiming that there should be nothing to break the sequence of the music until the last strains had died into nothingness. And then? Ah, then, applaud, and the more the merrier!

Sir Thomas should be given a vote of gratitude on the part of all music lovers. For there is nothing more exasperating than to hear whispers from the pit during the rendition of any music. He was right when he referred to such rudeness as an "incredible piece of barbarism." He said that if it ever occurred again he would "stop and address the house, asking them if they are savages or the fine flower-audiences of the greatest city in the world."

There is a time to talk of Mrs. Smith's hat, to make remarks about Mrs. Jones' gown ("This is the second Friday afternoon she has worn that thing!"), and that's why they have intermissions. But the time is not while Stravinsky's dissonances are wailing the rites of spring, or even while, on request night, the orchestra is pounding its way through the Polonaise of 1812. So, three cheers for good old Beecham and may his admonition to "shut up, you——" ring in the ears of all dowagers who feel the urge for expression more than the desire to bask in sweet music's strains. His words should be engraved above the busts of Beethoven and Bach in music halls everywhere.

The Stabilization Fund.

The quiet and unobtrusive way in which the Treasury has chosen to inform the country of the fact that it has formally set up the huge exchange stabilization fund, provided for by the gold reserve act of 1934, in no way detracts from the importance of the step at this particular time.

In the absence of any official explanation, the precise reasons which have actuated the Treasury are necessarily a matter of surmise. It may be that the action is of purely routine nature—that the Treasury has only just completed the details of organization and has recorded the fact in its accounts. But it is more likely that there is a close connection between the setting up of the fund and the pressure to which the foreign exchange rate of the dollar has been lately subjected, and that the work of organization was hastened by this development.

In either case, the clear intimation that the huge fund is ready to be swung into vigorous operation at a moment's notice—if, indeed, it is not already in operation—would seem to indicate that the Administration is really in earnest in its determination to maintain the foreign exchange value of the dollar stable. There is, of course, a possibility that preparations are being made for further devaluation of the dollar, but in the light of recent developments stability rather than further manipulation would seem to be the goal.

Evidence has been accumulating lately that experience is impressing the Administration with the futility of manipulating the monetary standard. There seems at last some recognition of the all-important lesson that there is more to be gained, in terms of economic recovery, from stable exchanges than from alterations in the gold content of the dollar.

The purpose of any exchange-stabilization mechanism of the type set up by the Treasury is to absorb the shocks of abnormal international movements of funds, resulting mainly from flight and return of capital. When the gold reserve act went into effect the pressing problem was to handle the possible return to the United States of the substantial amounts of capital that had gone abroad during the preceding months of monetary instability. That process took care of itself through an influx of gold into this country. In the last few weeks, under the influence of the new inflation crusade, a flight of capital from this country has again developed. Under its influence, the exchange value of the dollar weakened sharply on April 21, although it recovered over that week-end and has been steady ever since.

There is no doubt that the recovery and the subsequent steadiness have both been accomplished by Treasury intervention. For this purpose, the Treasury possessed a visible resource in the form of its officially reported gold holdings, and an invisible one represented by the gold stocks held abroad by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the amount of which has never been made public. It may well be that the operations of the past ten days have exhausted the second resource, and that this fact has hastened the work of formally setting up the stabilization fund.

Regimentation Vs. Celebration.

The marching feet of 2,000,000 German men and women tramped to the Tempelhof field in Berlin yesterday in one of the most astounding "demonstrations" of national loyalty the world has ever seen. From early morning until late at night the National Socialists presented the spectacle of regimented humanity paying tribute to the ideal of the authoritarian state. In other sections of the country similar celebrations were held. But over them all hovered the dark wings of fear.

The effective propaganda agents of the Hitler regime saw to it that these were "peaceful" demonstrations. Uniforms were barred, except for those assigned to police the many lines of march to the field where Hitler himself was scheduled to speak. But even if civilian clothes were the order of the day, this made the outpouring of citizens no less an army of conscripts.

No one could have looked upon this turnout of factory hands, professors, shop girls, clerks, and other ordinary souls, without misgivings over the demands made upon its subjects by the dictatorship. Threats accompanied the orders which brought forth the marchers. Fear as well as patriotism forced on the wearied feet. Indeed, to the outside world at least, the ceremony had many appearances of coercion. And it gives rise to wonder as to how long Germany will goose-step to command. There must be smoldering fires of revolt in the hearts of many of these regimented citizens forced (with pay, it is true) to assemble for the greater glory of the Third Reich. Sooner or later may come realization that celebrations ordered from high places are a mockery of the word.

The underlying significance of yesterday's manufactured demonstration in Berlin was directed not to the legions there mobilized, but to the peoples of countries which still are free. And from the loud but childish outbursts of "Heil Hitler" we may learn, while still there's time, that degradation of the individual goes side by side with deification of the state. That is the lesson taught by those who stood on Tempelhof field on May Day, 1934, and, remembering what they had been told to do, roared their obeisance while the world did not quite believe the sincerity of what it heard.

What Price Independence?

Approval by the Philippine Legislature of the Tydings-McDuffie act, granting independence to the islands after a transitional period of ten years, is reported as accompanied by misgivings no less grave because not loudly voiced. Outwardly, of course, the event was a joyous occasion in Manila. For 36 years the Filipinos have anticipated and worked for this event. But now that independence is within their grasp, the insular leaders are properly awake to its responsibilities and hazards.

Independence has been for many years the foremost tenet of nearly every faction in the islands. Senator Quezon and his colleagues were able to defeat the Hawes-Cutting act last year, but their opposition was directed against only those provisions which were considered inimical to real independence. By their last visit to Washington this group was able to secure only one concession—removal of our military bases from the islands after the new government attains full autonomy. The most controversial issue—concerning economic relations between the two countries during the transitional period—was not even reopened. But the Filipino leaders are convinced that they have obtained the most liberal measure that can be enacted at Washington. Consequently, they are determined to drive on toward their ideal, in spite of the hardships and dangers ahead.

Even those who emphasize the absence of practical plans to make the Philippines independent, in fact as well as name, must credit these men with a high degree of political courage. Something more than courage, however, is needed to create and maintain a new nation in the turbulent modern world. Where will the Philippines find new markets for the vast quantities of sugar and coconut oil that have been shipped to the United States free of duty? How can this infant power maintain its economic independence against the encroachments of Japan? For the first time, it appears, these problems are really weighing heavily upon the Filipinos' enthusiasm for independence.

Economic adjustments are the most immediate hurdle. The Legislature's resolution of acceptance quotes President Roosevelt's recent assurance: "Where inequalities exist, I am confident they can be corrected after a proper hearing and in fairness to both peoples." It would seem that the Filipinos place undue reliance upon this conciliatory observation. They must also face the fact that Congress recently passed legislation with the effect of curbing Philippine sugar imports and of heavily taxing coconut oil. Congress appears anxious to hasten the severance of special economic ties between the States and the Philippines, which would mean sweeping and devastating adjustments in all of the island's major industries.

Aside from these onerous economic questions, Philippine international relations will be extremely delicate from the very beginning. It is generally assumed that the neutrality of the Philippines will be guaranteed by an international convention. It is not inapposite to observe that the integrity of China has for the last 12 years been similarly guaranteed.

Improvement In Cuba.

In view of this country's delay in extending material assistance to the Mendieta government it has done well to maintain order in Cuba and to lay a foundation for recovery. When the present regime came into power, about three months ago, Cuba was economically as well as politically demoralized. The little republic is still a long way from stability, but progress toward that end is unmistakable.

American aid for Cuba is now in sight from three different sources. Credit in the amount of $4,000,000 has been extended to the Mendieta government through the Second Export-Import Bank for the purchase of American silver. Coins minted from this silver will be used to pay salaries to government employes, to relieve the unemployed and to advance the rehabilitation program.

Enactment of the sugar bill gave assurance to Cuba's principal industry that it will have a stable, if somewhat curtailed, market in the United States for its product. Because of the chaos in this industry Cuba's refining plants were undergoing rapid disintegration. It is now possible for Cuban growers and manufacturers to make definite plans, and reports from Havana indicate that they are following that course.

Meanwhile progress is being made in the negotiation of a new reciprocal trade agreement with Cuba.

In each of these undertakings the United States recognizes its partial responsibility for the restoration of Cuba, resulting from the Platt amendment and reciprocity treaty. The Administration's policy of helpfulness without trying to dominate Cuban affairs has already become an influential factor in the improvement of our relations with all Latin America.

Answering "I Prefer Air."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A recent letter in The Post signed "I Prefer Air" created laughter mixed in with a few cuss words.

Such critics are usually an obnoxious bunch—things they dislike should not be allowed. Critic enters an eating place and sees pie on the table and he doesn't like pie, so pie should go, never to return.

I. P. A. was in a boat on the Tidal Basin viewing the "beauty of the cherry blossoms" and the wonder is how I. P. A. could see beauty in nature's handiwork. The boat is far from land—far out in the great wide open space. Three girls light cigarettes and a tiny bit of the smoke gets up I. P. A.'s nose much to I. P. A.'s discomfort.

I. P. A. also mentions a "smoke consumer" for us smoking girls and we would like I. P. A. know that much of the enjoyment and pleasure of smoking comes from seeing the smoke curve and curl away.

On the tail-end of I. P. A.'s letter he says something about an American revolution. Now just what does I. P. A. mean by "revolution?" If he means by that to stop smoking by means of another "noble experiment," more widely known as the eighteenth amendment, he will also find by that, that legislation does not regulate appetite, thirst or desire. Parking Ban—Pro and Con.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish to congratulate D. C. Pfeiffer on his all-night parking letter published in a recent issue of The Post.

Recently we had guests from New York City who were anxious to visit the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. They told us they drove round and round for blocks, but could find no place to park their car and met the same condition at other buildings, so they left the city much disappointed.

The abolition of all-night parking will do much to remedy this state of affairs and make the Capital City more attractive to visitors. M. D.

Washington, April 25.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The storage garage interests have not been making as much money lately as they should like to make, and now we begin to see a lot of agitation to ban all-night parking.

One article (not in your paper) very insinuatingly quotes Director Van Duzer as saying that garages now suffice for 86 per cent of the cars. But what if they do? The question is not: Can the garages absorb all the cars? It is why should they absorb them? What's wrong with all-night parking? Whom does it hurt?

It saves the poorer fellow, besides a lot of trouble, some $50 dollars a year! Isn't it just too much of a shame not to bleed the car owner for this and hand it to them who would so love to sell their space!

Of course, one doesn't give that as a reason. One argues instead that it would in some vague way help the police. In some of the cities where, alas, the garage interests have succeeded in getting all-night parking banned, the police no doubt were helped—but, one fears, not in the way these propagandists try to make out.

In short—just why ban all-night parking? Who is really in back of this agitation? AUGUST J. APP.

Lincoln Fears Well Founded.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In this fifth year of depression the plain people need to hear again and again the ringing and prophetic words of the Great Commoner, Abraham Lincoln, uttered just before his assassination: "I see in the very near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. Corporations have been enthroned, an era of corruption in high places will follow, and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people, until wealth is aggregated in a few hands, and the Republic destroyed."

America must have a controlled capitalism or else our Constitutional form of government is doomed and the masses reduced to penury. That is why we should abandon all this lettered program bunk (more and more it is restricting the people's liberty) and return to the beaten path for the only sure and permanent solution of the Nation's problems. That solution, in the main, lies in undoing the very things that Lincoln said would happen and which things actually have happened. W. R. HOWARD.

A Queston for Mr. Hines.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: After reading a recent article in your paper announcing a decision had been handed down by the veterans' administrator, Frank T. Hines, his statement shows that 179,000 veterans share pension funds and the compensation increases for those who were victims of the economy slashes of March, 1933. Now, there are many deserving soldiers who served at home and abroad who would, no doubt, like to know where they stand on this bill, as they were under the general law and got their disability in line of duty with the Regular Army. This group was wiped out entirely to maintain the credit of the United States Government. What about this statement of Gen. Hines? It has been asked a thousand times, but from what can be inferred from Mr. Hines' decision, I can not see that he will deceive any good soldiers that were on the honor roll for pensions in March, 1933, whether he was in the war or otherwise, so long as his disability was due to service in the Regular Army under what is called the general law.

"Tough Guy."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a recent issue of your paper the article under the caption, "Tough Guy," by Mr. Paul D. Ziegler, found quick response in the repugnance I had felt when reading the President of the United States had designated himself in so vulgar a manner. And it stung me that the Americans right here at home, are let down to a lower pitch when the elected chief of the Government shames us by cheapening his high office by such language.

I have lived many years in Europe and my mortification is increased that other countries can not maintain the respect formerly held for our Presidents, when one has such low esteem of himself as to ascribe "I'm a tough guy, and the time has come for the President to get tough."

NELLIE VAN METER.

Criminals and Firearms.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Every once in a while we hear from some one who sees firearms as the root of all crime, and who blissfully believes that Federal prohibition of their manufacture, import, &c., would at once offer a full and final solution to our crime problem.

Mr. Pahnke, whose letter appeared in The Post the other day, should consider the actual facts. Banning the sale of firearms to the general public merely places the public at the mercy of the criminal element. Firearms can always be imported or manufactured illegally, and this the criminal would not hesitate to do. The average man obeys the law, so he would become defenseless under such a situation.

We all know the inadequacy of our conscientious but undermanned police, and the citizen should surely be allowed the means to defend himself and his home, since the law largely fails to protect him.

We in America today need less laws, a straight-shooting citizenry, and plenty of vigilante committees. Most of the deafening howl about firearms comes from individuals who know nothing about them and would be afraid to touch a gun with a 10-foot pole. Cain killed Abel and used no firearm in doing so. The lesson is plain.

Gov. Ritchie's Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your valuable paper has a large circulation in the nearby counties of Maryland, and naturally you are interested in the promotion of the best interests of that section.

The renomination and reelection of Gov. Ritchie is, therefore, a matter of public interest. He not only has been a great Governor of Maryland but an unusual friend of Washington. His intimate knowledge of and active work to benefit the sections of Maryland adjoining Washington have contributed in no small measure to the progress of the suburbs. The people generally are enthusiastic in their support of him for another term. Some of the smaller politicians, from purely selfish reasons, are trying to make his candidacy for a fifth term appear as detrimental to the welfare of his party but there is little logic in this contention. The high character of the service he has rendered as Governor is the answer to all of such objections.

Pertinent Paragraph.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The other day I came across a paragraph that seemed to me very pertinent to our present day maelstrom and very applicable to the demogogic claims that issue from Washington so frequently these days, even though the paragraph was written in 1922.

"The perpetual howl of radicalism is that it is the sole voice of liberalism—that devotion to social progress is its field alone. These men would assume that all reform and human advance must come through Government . . . The most trying support of radicalism comes from the timid or dishonest minds that shrink from facing the result of radicalism itself but are devoted to defense of radicalism as proof of a liberal mind."

From a Sports Fan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Allow me, as a proverbial lover of clean sport, and one who really appreciates a good sports sheet, to express my appreciation of Mr. McCormick's work.

I can't help expressing my enjoyment received from McCormick's columns, which are full of pep and real dope, although I don't always agree with him. I feel he writes as he sees it. There seems also to be some intimate connection in the underlying trend between him and the cartoonist, Pierotti, who I feel is one of the cleverest artists today. I might say that even though I like news items, I'm always scrambling for sports facts, and through you, as just one individual, may I express my keen appreciation of good sports news, with all its zip their works contain.

The Post certainly has improved in this department.

The Post Impressionist

His Friends The Senators.

Postoffice, Wednesday.

"HAVE you ever noticed one thing about Washington?" asked Howard.

"People from other parts of the country don't look at Washington the way they look at any other city. You can live for years in New York, and your friends from Akron don't expect you to know LaGuardia; but if you've lived a month in Washington and don't call the Speaker by his first name, they think there's something queer about you. Got me into a jam last week."

Howard has been a Washingtonian since Christmas-time. He has a job on the best newspaper in the city—not to mention its name—but his work is office-work; it keeps him busy all night. When he can, he sleeps all day.

"A few weeks ago," said he, "I thought I'd better get my summer-clothes together. Most of 'em were in a Jersey village where I go fishing. So I used my day-off for the trip and put up, the way I always do there, at Hank Hanover's. He runs the general store and lets out rooms over it. Always charged me double rates, too, because he knew I wouldn't fish anywhere else.

"Well, this trip, he and I and all the village boys were sitting around the store in the evening, and they began asking me about Washington. May be the apple had more authority than usual. Anyhow, I became pretty free with the names of a good many public men.

"Hank said: 'Why, you must know near everyone worth knowin' down there.'

"I said: 'Well, no—not quite. But I know about all I want to.'

"I never thought of the thing again till, here bright and early one morning last week, Hank turns up at my hotel with a blushing bride on his arm. He'd married the sister of the man who rents me boats back in Jersey, and they were making the Washington honeymoon trip—they still make it from Jersey.

"He got me away from her for a minute, and whispered: 'It'll be a kind of wedding-present from you, if you'll just fix it so's Jen can shake hands with a few of your Senator friends. I want her to remember this trip long 's she lives.'

"Well, you can see where that left me. I didn't know even the junior Senator from my own State, but I'd bragged about being buckcats with everybody on the Hill; and yet, if I told the truth, I wouldn't only disappoint the lady; I wouldn't ever dare go to my old fishing-grounds again. I was just going to say Congress wasn't in session, when Hank said:

"'We went down to the Senate public-gallery yesterday, but Jen wants something kind of more personal.'

"Finally I said, all right—we'd walk there, it was such a nice day. I figured that would take more time. Maybe I could think of some lie meanwhile.

"But I couldn't. I couldn't think of a single lie that would wash. I'd stop and make up history about every big building we passed; I even stopped at the store-windows. But all the time, out of the corner of my wary eye, I could see Jen squeezing Hank's arm, to hurry him. A lot of bewildered men have gone up those steps to the Senate-wing of the Capitol in days past, but I'll bet none of 'em was ever more bewildered than I was.

"And then what do you think happened? A real live Senator came buzzing toward us. I won't mention his name, but I knew him by the newspaper pictures. What seemed worse, so did Hank.

"'Isn't that Senator Soanso?' he asked in a stage-whisper.

"I said yes, hush, it was. But of course the Senator had heard his own name, and he looked at us and kind of half bowed. I was so rattled, I bowed back. I even mumbled a 'Good-morning'—and at that he put out his paw and asked me how I was, anyway!

"Well, I was quick enough to get what it was all about, and I was quick enough to stop Hank from guessing. Those Senators meet so many people that they don't remember 10 per cent of 'em, and this Senator thought he'd met me: thought I was a constituent of his. Right off the bat, I heard myself saying I was fine, and how was he, and do let me present my friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hanover. I bet we talked as much as three seconds about nothing at all—all but the bride; Hank was delighted, but she was so delighted she couldn't speak.

"After that, it was easy. All I had to do was just stand around with my visitors. Whenever there came along a Senator that I knew by the pictures, even if I didn't remember his name, I'd say, 'How-do, Senator,' and he'd be sure to say 'How do you do?' as if we were old comrades-in-arms. And then I'd present the happy pair. Believe it or not, the racket worked with even a Cabinet Undersecretary—not a mere Secretary, mind you: an Under. I'd have tackled anything, 'most. Hank did ask me to 'phone the White House, and I started to, but then I said I remembered it was Cabinet-meeting day.

"When the Hanovers finally tore themselves away, blushing Jen asked if I didn't want to kiss the bride, and Hank volunteered to lodge me for half-rates next vacation. He said: 'You sure know 'em all, don't you?' I said: 'Oh, we newspapermen have to know 'em. It gets to be a bore sometimes, but it's part of our business.'

"And," Howard concluded meditatively, "I wonder if there aren't some other Washingtonians who've made the same discovery I've made—and made acquaintances the same way."

Along the Potomac

With Carlisle Bargeron

THIS year's meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which began yesterday, is, I suppose, in the nature of a festival after the fashion of the rich harvest celebrations of old. There may still be distress about the country, sickness, despair and unemployment, but for the chamber the depression is definitely over. It is once more feeling its oats.

Its profound and exhaustive reports on the varied activities within the Nation may not be all one word of cheer; there are legislative matters pending of which the chamber does not wholly approve.

BARGERON.

But on one thing there will be unanimity of opinion and prolonged applause. That is that the trade association business is on the up and up, that it is, in fact, flourishing as it has never flourished before. It is 1929 and still more for the trade associations, of which the chamber is the parent and bids fair ere another year or so has passed to become quite an authoritative one.

* * * *

There is something heartening for all of us about the chamber's comeback whether one approves of the organization and its doings or not. Its accomplishments since March 4, 1933, are definite evidence that Yankee ingenuity is not dead.

Fewer institutions were hit harder by the depression than the chamber. After all it was what might be termed, in hard times when one's budget is being steadily tightened, a luxury. So as its members dropped out or become delinquent in dues it had sharply to curtail its activities and, what was more poignant, its salaries.

My recollection is that up until the chamber made its first salary cut Mr. Hoover had been having fair success in his contention there was no serious depression. With the salary cut at the chamber the heart was taken out of his most ardent supporters. After that there was no doubt anywhere that a depression was on.

* * * *

But those who put the chamber out of mind as a discarded institution reckoned without the up-and-at-'em-again spirit that has made it what it is. Even as the banks were closing, as the clouds were getting darker there in the first days of the present Administration, as the atmosphere was becoming oppressive, the chamber was being reborn.

While the rest of us were groping in the fog, its head, Mr. Henry I. Harriman, was moving quietly around, fixing up what big business had been trying to get for 20 years—relief from the antitrust laws. Other hands figured in the formation of the NRA, but his, I shall always believe, was the real guiding one. If the attainment of this thing isn't a cause for rejoicing on the part of the chamber, it is difficult to understand what would make such an organization rejoice.

* * * *

Of course, the NRA caused it some uneasiness at the outset. It did look for awhile as though organized labor had the upper hand and that big business, in spite of all it could do, would have to carry out its side of the NRA bargain and permit its employes really to organize. But this was only a passing cause of uneasiness.

The chamber again has the upper hand. The position of the organized labor movement seems to be not much better than it was before the NRA.

Trade associations, organizations of business, on the one hand, are now demanded by the Government instead of being frowned upon, and in some instances prosecuted, as they were in the past.

The good work of the chamber is not yet at an end, though. The accomplishment it is working to now is to have itself recognized as a great superstructure over the innumerable trade associations. It will be a great day for the chamber when that is done.

If this year's meeting is rightly celebrated festival-like for the progress made over the past year it will be something even grander when the superstructure idea is finally put across. The meeting then will be an orgy of delight.

Teacher Invents 'All-Work' Clock

Charleston, W. Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Getting up in the morning will be much more pleasant if Hector D. Frame, a teacher in the Chamberlain Public School, at Kanawha City, has his way. He has applied for a patent for an electrical attachment to an alarm clock that will do the following things:

Start the radio at the time for which the alarm is set, instead of ringing the alarm bell; switch on the current in an electric stove to heat the cereal and fry the bacon while one is dressing, and switch on the lights in any part of the house desired.

Frame has a clock so equipped now in use in his house.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

SO THIS IS REPEAL.

Bootlegging is being conducted on a bigger scale under repeal than under prohibition, declares Joseph H. Choate, jr., director of the National Alcoholic Control Administration.

* * * *

Now that liquor has been made legal the sale of illegal liquor is at a new high.

* * * *

The consumers have suspected as much from the taste, the prices and the funny shaped bottles, but Mr. Choate's report shows conditions worse than they feared.

* * * *

The capacity of the bootlegging plants in America today exceeds the capacity of the legal distillers, he says, and the ultimate consumer is getting a rougher deal than ever.

* * * *

Under prohibition he knew what to expect, but under repeal he raises his hopes, only to discover that he is being double-crossed under Federal auspices.

* * * *

Mr. Choate intimates that the bootlegger, instead of being wiped out, has merely changed from a checked suit, gum shoes, pearl derby and a loud necktie to the regulation business suit and stopped talking out of one side of his mouth.

* * * *

He has expanded his plant, put on more trucks, stopped calling himself "Tony" and is now delivering in carload lots instead of by suitcase.

* * * *

The only major difference under repeal is that there are more stamps on the bottles, and the caps come off with less trouble.

* * * *

Even the perfumery we are getting since prohibition makes a poorer cocktail, and a desperate drinker can't trust a good hair tonic or rubbing liniment any more.

* * * *

The situation is so chaotic it's amusing. Under prohibition everybody had a good idea what real whisky ought to taste like, but under repeal not even the distillers agree.

* * * *

"It's all done by blending."

* * * *

In the Volstead era they had another name for it, but it's "blending" now.

* * * *

Blending covers a multitude of chemical monkeyshines, and after a quart has been through the blending process today it is like the oyster that has made six journeys through an oyster stew.

* * * *

Before repeal came the consumer knew at least that he ought to be careful.

* * * *

But under repeal he has had a tendency to trust anything in a long bottle with three or more stamps on it.

* * * *

Mr. Choate says there must be a drive against illegal distillers if the public is to get a square deal.

* * * *

So let us arise and join the battle. We may ultimately get back something as fit to drink as it was under prohibition!

IN MEMORIAM.

(To Joe Villa, one of the best known sports editors in the country, who died at the age of 67 "in harness" last week):

Rest from the daily turmoil,
Called from the dust-filled path,
Home from the frenzied cheerings,
Far from the shouts of wrath.

Peace from the whir of presses,
Far from the office roar,
Peace from the runs and errors,
Charts and the final score.

Gone where the fight is ended,
Home from the race well run,
Called by the ump's last ruling,
Hearing a voice "Well done!"

From the life competitive,
(Sportsman from head to toe),
Through with the clash of battle . . .

BLOW THE BUGLE.

If we don't win the war against Dillinger pretty soon we may have to issue a second call for recruits.

Daylight saving is around again, giving everybody an extra hour in which to worry over what to do with leisure time.

The Administration may have to admit the depression is over before long, and gosh, how it is going to hate it!

Dentist Never Makes You Suffer as Imagination Does

By Robert Quillen

A soft and artificial civilization has made us a race without physical or moral courage.

The apparent courage of the few is nothing more than absence of fear and results from a feeling of security.

Stevenson once said that good breeding increases courage, but that is probably an illusion. Breeding usually is a product of inherited wealth, and the wealthy may be free of fear because a sheltered life has taught them that they are immune to harm.

The football player, the experienced boxer, the man uncommonly big and the small man who has used a weapon may be fearless without being brave. They aren't afraid because some experience or advantage gives them the assurance that nobody will hurt them.

Some women are free of fear for the same reason. Their sex gives them protection and they dare much, but it is the daring of a snake charmer who knows the snake's fangs are gone.

Almost everybody is afraid of something, and his fear is a handicap that robs him of success or happiness or self-respect.

The ordinary man is afraid to face his employer and ask for more pay, or afraid to discharge his employes, or afraid to speak in public, or afraid to defend his rights in the presence of a bully.

And there are millions who are afraid of responsibility or afraid of losing their jobs, and these live in terror of imaginary disasters that are somewhere in the future.

Once fear has poisoned the mind, there is no way to be quit of it except by removing the cause.

If the cause is imaginary, as it usually is, it may be removed by changing the mind—as a false idea is displaced by learning a true one. The tool may be either common sense or religion.

But the quickest method and surest is deliberately to do the thing or invite the disaster that is feared, and thus by experience learn that no experience is so dreadful as living in fear of it.

William Lyon Phelps

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

Cursing in Rhyme.

The English writer, Hugh Kingsmill, has published two prettily bound volumes, which look as if they contained "keepsakes" or sweet sentimental sugary sonnets. As a matter of fact, they contain only insulting and abusive remarks that various writers have addressed to the quick and the dead. These two white-bridal-bound volumes are called, respectively, "An Anthology of Invective and Abuse," and "More Invective," and are cleverly edited by the accomplished author.

Now, just as we enjoy on the comic stage a good slapstick farce, where tremendous blows are given with gusto, so there are many people who would far rather read a violently abusive review of a new book or play than they would one written in admiration or appreciation; provided always the victim is not a member of their own family.

I therefore recommend these two volumes, being sure they will be read with delight. But I can add some choice morsels that were apparently overlooked by Mr. Kingsmill.

There is cursing, with bitterness and venom, and there is cursing with robust joy. There is no doubt in my mind that the old omnibus drivers in London used to enjoy cursing each other; and apparently the recipient of the curses often had a sincere admiration for the other's technique.

It is, I believe, in this hearty spirit that much of the fluency of Irish invective is expended; and I wonder that Mr. Kingsmill did not include the following georgeous attack by a thirsty man on a barmaid who refused him a drink. It is written by the Irish poet and novelist James Stephens.

Righteous Anger.

Tha lanky hank of a she in the inn over there
Nearly killed me for asking the loan of a glass of beer;
May the devil grip the whey-faded slut by the hair,
And beat bad manners out of her skin for a year,
That parboiled imp, with the hardest jaw you will see
On virtue's path, and a voice that would rasp the dead,
Came roaring and raging the minute she looked at me,
And threw me out of the house on the back of my head!
If I asked her master he'd give me a cask a day;
But she, with the beer at hand, not a gill would arrange!
May she marry a ghost and bear him a kitten, and may
The High King of Glory permit her to get the mange.

Johnson Acts To Curb Waste By Code Heads

NRA Chief Specifies Limits Within Which Costs Must Be Kept.

Protests against assessment of industry and business, to support code authorities, drew a statement yesterday from Gen. Hugh S. Johnson designed to curb such "taxation."

NRA officials informally explained the recovery administrator acted to "block any wild runaway" in the budgets of the administrative bodies. He made no effort, however, to prevent collection of what he termed "fair and equitable" assessments.

Johnson suggested the code authorities should prepare their budgets on tight lines, to prevent "racketeering or extravagance." The letter contained a veiled warning that he would refuse to approve any plan of assessment which smacked of impropriety.

He laid down specific limits under which budgets were to be drafted. He directed that salaries should be grouped as either executive secretaries, other executive officers, clerical employes or other employes by classes.

Office Expense Outlined.

Boundaries of office expenses were fixed as rent and light, office equipment, supplies, stationery and postage, telephone and telegraph and miscellaneous. Provision also was made for traveling and incidental expenses, the latter to include legal fees, accountants' fees, insurance and miscellaneous expenses.

Complaints from business men who feared they would be assessed by two or more code authorities brought official announcement that NRA headquarters would review any differences which might arise between members and the overlapping authorities.

Several plans of assessment were indorsed by Johnson. The first would be based on volume of sales either in units or dollars. Another would be figured from a production standpoint, while a third would be computed through the average number of employes or a base charge per plant.

Truckers Protest.

The tentative trucking code authority budget of approximately $3,000,000 has been characterized as excessive by interests due to be assessed for each truck in operation. The proposal called for payment of an annual fee of $3 on each "for hire" vehicle and a registration fee of 90 cents on each "not for hire" truck.

The retail code, one of the first to receive Johnson's approval of its budget and assessment plan, will tax members a maximum of $1 a year per employe.

Officials insisted Johnson's statement was prepared before publication yesterday of a protest by Senator Hastings (Republican), Delaware, co-chairman of the Republican Joint Congressional Campaign Committee, against the assessment of business for operation of the authorities. The administrator's comment, however, was made public after the Hastings criticism appeared in print.

No End of Books

By Theodore Hall

WELL, the city room scooped me Saturday with a bright review of the new city directory, and the editorial department has taken to writing about books. If this is to be a free-for-all, count me in.

Saving the presence of several gentlemen, I have never yet seen quite the editorial I should like to see in a 1934 newspaper. To my taste, editorials do little but twist and turn ingeniously around the mulberry bush. I should like to look a moment at the bush itself. The only way, obviously, is for me to write my own personal editorial—herewith presented. It's even got a "news lead," which proves it's modern.

THEO. HALL.

Where Was Mencken?

In the dear distant year 2134, when scholars are poring over the works of Mr. H. L. Mencken (why not? They now read Colley Cibber), they are going to ask in a paraphrase of the perennial jape: "Where was Mencken when the light went on?" And the traditional answer will then serve: "In the dark."

For the gentleman from Baltimore, who for so many years has taken delight in taunting the yokelry for their dim parochial ideas, committed himself in his Friday night radio address to some opinions beside which the "early Mississippian" culture he abhors becomes indistinguishable.

If you remember, Mr. Mencken compared the National Government to a man whose health was in a sorry state from too much guzzling, boozing, overexercise and late hours. His family doctor told him simply to cut out these indulgences. But the man insisted on calling in "wizards" with "sure-fire" cures.

In the parable, declared Mr. Mencken, these "wizards" are the "brain trust" worthies. Uncle Sam was very ill. "The regular doctors down at Washington told him he was living too fast and advised him to slow down a bit." But he would have none of them—in came the "amateur healers," agreeing only on one thing: "They all send in tremendous bills."

Then said Mr. Mencken: "Has all this waste of money done us any good? I doubt it. We have moved toward recovery, not because of it, but in spite of it."

All of which is parish thinking at its lazy best.

To bring in an analogy between the human body and a government is to point unwittingly at the excellence of an integrated and cooperative structure beside which the Soviet state, radical as we find it, is a clumsy makeshift. For the sake of his arguments, no Tory should attempt the simile.

And may I ask what "regular doctors down at Washington" advised Uncle Sam in 1928 and 1929 that he was "living too fast?" Or, granting the supposition, how much of that advice was taken and acted upon?

And when the matter of bills is brought up, why not mention the overwhelming costs of our present condition of society—the direct waste of battleships and pensions, the vast social waste of industrial chaos?

And what do the terms "wizardry and amateur healers" really represent but the time-honored attitude of yokelry toward every brave and thoughtful advance man has made upon his environment?

And, finally, just how much can a blind and unconsidered "recovery" amount to in a world whose absolute imperatives now include social vision and social planning?

But it is not these items to which I particularly object in Mr. Mencken's remarks. Far more is it his underlying implication that the spectacle of mankind's trying to think and plan for its own total good is something essentially ludicrous. You see this belief on every hand—"brain trust" is held to be funny; "planning and control" are hilarious will-o'-the-wisps. The very word "professor" is good for a laugh any day in the week.

Which is nothing if not pathetic. For the mulberry bush about which most of our vocal gentlemen revolve aimlessly and miss completely is this—the frontier is gone; the rising population curve of Western peoples is leveling off; the machine is here to stay and to be used wisely. We must now learn to get along with ourselves and each other on what we have. If human intelligence built the water turbine and the A. T. & T., it can build an organic and efficient society for the sheer sake of human welfare.

Whatever their immediate mistakes, the men who see and attempt that are at least not laughable. For these are beginnings in the right and only possible direction. If we don't yet know how they will succeed, the year 2134 will know—by simple rule of thumb. Either a segment of 1934 American thought will be praised for the advances it has made, or there won't be any American culture left to praise anything.

Now I'll go back to the insulated realm of books.

CCC Prepares Glider Field In Blue Ridge

Work Pushed on Area Near Harrisonburg for International Meet.

Harrisonburg, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Work is being rushed to prepare "Big Meadows," a plateau in the Blue Ridge Mountain in Shenandoah National Park, for an international glider meet to be held sometime in July, it was learned here today.

CCC boys attached to the Big Meadows camp are now clearing this level stretch of mountain land of trees and obstructions. Rough places are being smoothed over. This work extends from Skyline drive and the Hoover Rapidan Camp road for a distance of between a half mile and a mile along the top of the Blue Ridge.

National Park Officals and aviators trained in gliding, have held that the Blue Ridge is an ideal spot for holding meetings of motorless airplanes. One of these meetings was held in Rockfish Gap section a year ago and one of the flyers piloted his glider as far as Frederick, Md.

It is known that the National Park Service officials in their plans for the development of the Shenandoah National Park, have under consideration the establishment of a mountain airport in the park area. It is expected that this airport will be established at Big Meadows near the center of the park.

Bausells' Second Trial Postponed

Bristol, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Trial of Henry F. Bausell, 56, and his son, Bernace, 26, of Bristol, on charges that they shot to death T. Eugene Cornett in an altercation at Rural Retreat, Va., on January 13, will not begin until May 14. Ordered originally to begin today, the case has been postponed two weeks because of the illness of two defense attorneys, Stuart Campbell and Burt Wilson.

The Bausells, meanwhile, have been transferred from Wytheville to the Roanoke, Va., jail, following their acquittal last Friday on charges of slaying Virginia Cornett Bausell, estranged wife of Bernace Bausell.

It was learned yesterday that the Bausells were moved from Wytheville to Roanoke last Friday night. Hostile feeling against the father and son was apparent at Wytheville during the first trial. Commonwealth Attorney Paul Parsons said the prisoners were moved as a precaution.

WelchAttorney Seeks Virginia Senator's Post

Graham Sale Backs NRA; Haymond to Run for Seat in House.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Graham Sale, an attorney of Welch, today formally announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator at the August primary election.

In his announcement, Sale stressed the NRA as the "greatest piece of legislation ever passed by Congress," which has "delivered the Government into the hands of the only ones to whom it belongs—the people," and is "rapidly restoring our country from a condition of chaos and depression into one of hope, happiness and prosperity." He said he wanted to be Senator in order to stand 100 per cent behind the President in the recovery program.

Sale, a native of Wythe County, Va., has been practicing law in Welch for 31 years and has been active in civic, church and business affairs of McDowell County.

Announcement was also made by Frank C. Haymond, a Fairmont lawyer, that he would oppose Representative Robert L. Ramsay, of Follansbee (Democrat), for the Democratic nomination for the First District seat in Congress. Ramsay has already filed his candidacy. Haymond was defeated for the nomination two years ago by Ramsay by 33 votes.

The only other formal entrant for the senatorship is J. Alfred Taylor (Democrat), Fayetteville editor, former Representative, former speaker of the State House of Delegates, and former party nominee for Governor.

Welch's Funeral Of Simplest Nature

Service for Noted Doctor Today in Baltimore.

Baltimore, May 1 (Spl.).—Funeral services of the simplest nature will be held at Old St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church here tomorrow for Dr. William H. Welch, dean of American medicine, and one of the founders of the Johns Hopkins University Medical School.

There will be no pallbearers. No eulogy will be preached, and no invitations have been sent. Friends of Dr. Welch believe that no invitations to the leaders of thought in science, medicine and the arts are necessary.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur B. Kinsolving, rector of the church, will be in charge of the services. He will merely read the ritual for the dead, after which Dr. Welch's body will be taken to Norfolk, Conn., for burial. He will lie in the family plot at Norfolk, his birthplace, beside his father and grandfather, who also were physicians.

Grafton Dam Site Surveys Nearing Close

Preliminary Work Over, Contract Will Soon Be Let.

Grafton, W. Va., May 1 (Spl.).—Lieut. W. R. Winslow, resident engineer for the Tygarts Valley flood control dam to be erected south of Grafton, reports that preliminaries for the project are rapidly being completed. A force of 200 men now at work ultimately will be increased to 2,200. The dam will require approximately four years to complete.

The contract will be let either in June or July and actual construction will get under way by August 1.

The dam will be 1,770 feet long, 215 feet high and will create a lake with a 78-mile shoreline. The dam will be 250 feet thick at the base.

Core tests at the site of the dam have been completed. Provision will be made in construction of the dam for possible utilization of the water power.

Removal of homes from the 4,000 acres to be flooded will not be started for some time, but much timber is being cut from the area. The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at present has a force of engineers at the site making surveys looking to the relocation of the Grafton-Belington division of that railroad.

Five Boys Watch Firemen Search For Their Bodies

Baltimore, May 1 (Spl.).—When 5-year-old Frances Hodges saw her brother and four other small boys enter an open manhole of an abandoned sewer, she warned them she was going to tell their parents. But when they failed to come out after a reasonable lapse of time, she called the police.

The police summoned a fire department rescue squad, and for half an hour firemen wearing gas masks and carrying electric torches made their way up and down the sewer tunnel, seeking the bodies of the boys. A large crowd collected.

Suddenly a small boy in the crowd piped out:

"Here're the boys you're looking for!"

Three of them, Arthur Hodges, Edward Wanhoff and Andrew Hughes, all between the ages of 9 and 13, were standing by, wondering what all the excitement was about.

They explained that they had climbed out another sewer opening about two blocks away. Frances hadn't seen them emerge.

The other two boys, Vincent Johns and James Ferguson, also were safe, the firemen were assured, so they packed up their equipment and departed.

College Plans To Drop Dean

Dr. Altstetter Will Leave Fredericksburg at Close of Term.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—The office of dean of instruction at Fredericksburg State Teachers College will be abolished next year and Dr. M. L. Altstetter, who has served in that capacity for five years, will end his connection with the institution at the close of the session on June 4.

Dr. Morgan L. Combs, president of the college, has been empowered by the State board of education to proceed with a reorganization of the administrative department of the school. Administration has remained on the same general plan followed when the school was established in 1908 and has not kept pace with the growth and requirements of the institution, Dr. Combs states. A revised system of administration to meet the needs of the college was approved by the State board.

Dr. Altstetter came to the local college in September, 1929, from Peabody College, of Nashville, Tenn. His first connection was as acting dean of instruction, registrar, head of the department of education, and director of teacher training, in which capacities he succeeded Prof. B. Y. Tyner, then on leave of absence. Following resignation of Prof. Tyner, Dr. Altstetter was appointed permanently to the positions, which he has since held. Dr. Altstetter has been asked to submit his resignation to become effective with the close of the present session.

BLACKIE BEAR

Where Has Jay Bird Gone?

"Where is Jay Bird?" asked Blackie one night as they all sat down to supper. "Don't know where he went," said Jenny; "but this morning while Benny and I were down at the spring catching grasshoppers he stopped to wash his face and get a drink of water, and then he flew off down the mountain."

"I'll bet he has gone back to Bear Creek," said Dr. Coon, "for yesterday he was talking about Mr. Man and Uncle Joe, and was wondering whether they ever got Blackie Bear that day when they went to hunt for him. He said he would like to know if they were still hunting for him." That seemed so funny to Blackie that he laughed till Bettie told him to please stop and eat his supper.

"Poor Mr. Man," said Blackie, "he said he wouldn't stand old Blackie Bear's doings any longer. I wonder how he enjoys doing without his donkey? Maybe he is learning what it is to have to work for his living, like Blackie Bear does, instead of just riding behind his donkey.

"Well, let him work awhile; it will do him good. I reckon he and Uncle Joe hunted more for Hee-Haw the next day than they did for Blackie; but if they had been as wise as Who-Who Owl they would have hunted for both of them at the same time.

"Talk about a man having sense. If I didn't have more sense than Mr. Man has, he would have had my hams in the smokehouse long ago and my skin on his back for an overcoat. He didn't even have sense enough to keep me from getting out of his wagon that day. And he certainly hasn't got as much sense as Billie Possum, or he would not have gone off and left him up his tree that day when he caught Billie milking Mrs. Moo Cow. The old sleepy head.

"To think that he would leave his donkey and load of things in the road while he took a nap. Don't ever talk to me again about having sense like folks. And I wonder what Rover Dog is doing? I'll bet a bag of tobacco that Mr. Man can't make him hunt for Blackie Bear. He hasn't forgotten his high dive yet, and I reckon he even remembers how Blackie's paw felt that day when it kept him from killing Dr. Coon. Poor Mr. Man! Maybe even a man can learn something after a while. Yes; I'm pretty sure that it's just where Jay Bird has gone, and I certainly am anxious to hear what he sees and hears about Mr. Man."

After supper they all went out on the porch for a smoke, and then Blackie began to laugh just like somebody had said the funniest thing in the world. "What is the matter with you?" said Dr. Coon. "Nothing much. I was just thinking about that day at the well when Mr. Man beat his fist down so hard that he knocked the bucket in the well and said he wouldn't stand any more of Blackie Bear's foolishness. I was just wondering how it feels to have to do a thing that you won't do."

"Well," said Dr. Coon, "I believe Jay Bird will be back tomorrow, and he can tell us how Mr. Man is standing it." And he knocked the ashes out of his pipe and went off to bed.

Popular Stars Coming to Fox In Clever Act

Last Visit Two Years Ago; Cobbs Comfort Studios; Theater Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Although Washington moviegoers have been practically agog or two over the coming of Lupe Velez to the Capital, in person, the week of May 18, it now appears that they are to be equally favored in advance of that date.

Word was received yesterday by the Loew executives in Washington that beginning May 11 the stage bill at Loew's Fox Theater will be headlined by Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, also in person.

It has been about two years since these charming stars appeared in Washington and, even then, the stage appearance, officially, was of Ben Lyon only, Miss Daniels—who in private life, of course, is Mrs. Ben Lyon—appearing only occasionally to take a bow when she happened to be seated out front where Ben could spot her.

Have Real Act.

The booking for the week of May 11 is of both Bebe and Ben. They will present a well-seasoned act in which they have been appearing throughout the country with success since their last visit to this city.

The announcement of this engagement is one that fills this department with the utmost enthusiasm, for it might as well be divulged now as any time that Mr. and Mrs. Lyon I number among the most charming people who have ever come to the shores of the Potomac from the studios of Hollywood. It will be a very great and very genuine pleasure to see them again.

And you may rest assured they will put on an act that will be well worth seeing. They couldn't do otherwise.

In addition to being a prominent candidate for appointment to the District Boxing Commission, old Col. James J. Lake, manager of the Gayety Theater, also is stepping out as a burlesque impresario. It comes to this column's attention that there is a project afoot which bids fair to establish the good Col. Lake in Norfolk, Va., in a burlesque enterprise of some proportions just as the U. S. Battle Fleet puts in to the Roads for shore leave. This, ladies and gentlemen, is what is known in the vernacular—and even out of it—as a "natural."

Restive Irene Returns.

Irene Castle, who first came to fame as dancing partner of her husband, the late Vernon Castle, who lost his life in the War, and latterly has perpetuated her renown as one of America's best-dressed women, recently took a screen test in Hollywood with a view to reentering the films, according to wire reports from Hollywood, date-lined Sunday.

Alan Crosland, who gave her the test, was the director of the last picture in which she appeared, a release bearing the title of "Slim Shoulders."

Her stay in Hollywood was cut unexpectedly short when she was called back to Chicago by the serious illness of the mother of her present husband, Maj. Frederick McLaughlin. Studio officials, however, expressed the belief that she would be signed to a contract in the near future.

Either the dear old New York Morning Telegraph is slowing up, or Maxine Doyle, former mistress of ceremonies at the Earle Theater and, since last September, reputedly under contract to both Paramount and Warner Brothers, has been concealing something from her Washington friends.

It has been the impression here for some time that Max has been under contract to Warner Brothers. The Telegraph has it, however, that she has just been put under a long-term agreement by that company as a reward of merit for performance in "Isle of Fury." She is described, furthermore, as having been previously m. c. at the Stanley Theater in Pittsburgh.

Miss Derle, at the moment, is supposed to be playing in/on the stage on the West Coast with Olsen and Johnson and to be booked for a Technicolor short in support of Leon Errol. So what?

The Comforting Cobbs.

If Irvin S. Cobb and his talented daughter, Elizabeth Cobb Brody, had never achieved distinction in any other regard, they would stand out as unique among the writers who have marketed their wares in Hollywood.

Each, as is well known, enjoys a wide measure of fame as an author of short stories and novels. Mrs. Brody writes independently of her famous dad and he, naturally, manages to grub along without revision of his MSS. by his daughter, yet this fact frequently is obscured in the remarks of literary commentators.

When it was brought to the attention of Irvin S. that he was suspected of writing his daughter's stories merely as a device for concealing the actual source of stories in a style different from that by which he was most widely known, the Sage of Paducah's only comment was:

"Well, I'll be damned."

They Should Worry!

But to get back to the point of these rambling observations, when Mr. Cobb and his daughter were in Hollywood recently for the purpose of selling certain of their works to the film producers, both professed an utter indifference as to the form in which their works might appear on the screen. Their attitude was no end philosophical and comforting to the cinema moguls, as expressed by Cobb, pere.

Mr. Cobb's idea is that "when you buy a piece of ham from a butcher, he doesn't care whether you boil it, fry it or eat it raw." Both he and his daughter feel the same about scenarios.

So he has sold 15 "Judge Priest" stories to be made into a single feature picture for Will Rogers, by Fox, and she has sold her third novel, "She Was a Lady," as a starring vehicle for Helen Twelvetrees.

These fellow-Hoosiers keep bobbing up all over the place. What should come to light now in a grist of items from Columbia Pictures but that Carole Lombard was christened Jane Alice Peters, October 6, 1909, in Fort Wayne, Ind., about 100 miles east on the Pennsylvania from our side yard. And October is a swell month to be born in, as Kathryn Givney, of the National Theater Players, also will tell you. Not that it matters.

Why Agents Get Gray.

Speaking of Columbia Pictures, the boys on the road for the producing company of which that high strung Southern gentleman, Mr. Sam Galanty, is branch manager in Washington, whose duty it is to market the product released by their bosses, are impressed by the sharp contrast between entertainment and propaganda.

They cite as examples of the opposing schools of activity, "It Happened One Night" and "No Greater Glory." Of the former there were 265 prints in circulation simultaneously in Manhattan only, the greatest number ever distributed in so limited a territory in the history of the company. Many of them played repeat dates as rapidly as they could be booked. "No Greater Glory," on the other hand, concededly as fine a picture of its kind as has ever been made, is getting nowhere with great speed.

The Gable-Colbert vehicle is a source of great wealth and a joy forever; the Molnar preachment—although it isn't that, at all—what someone has quaintly described as a pain in the neck.

Far ahead OF LAST YEAR'S GREAT SALES RECORD

THIS FAMOUS WINNING COMBINATION OF FEATURES
not found in any other low-priced car

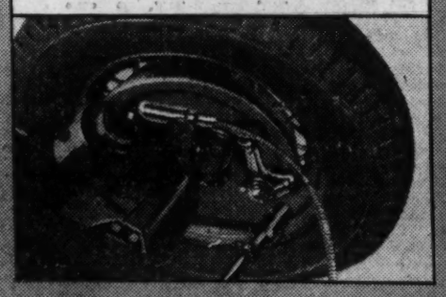

CHEVROLET It was a great record of leadership that Chevrolet made in 1933! It's an even greater, more impressive record that Chevrolet is making for 1934! Already, sales are tens of thousands of cars ahead of last year. Production is running higher than that of any other automobile company in the world. And every day, from state after state, comes the same report on registrations: Chevrolet is leading all other cars!

The big reason for such preference is plainly shown at the right. Chevrolet has so many vital features that others in the low-price field have left out: Knee-Action wheels that are fully enclosed for complete safety and absolute dependability. A six-cylinder valve-in-head engine with an exclusive "Blue-Flame" head. Big, "cable-controlled" brakes, the best in the low-price field. Large, spacious bodies by Fisher, with Fisher No Draft Ventilation. And real "shock-proof" steering that brings new ease and comfort to driving. No other low-priced automobile has a single one of these five leading 1934 features. That's why no other can be backed by such a confident statement as this:

Alexandria Old Homes Visit Near

Robert E. Lee's House Among Sight-Seeing Attractions.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Most persons who travel in England or on the Continent promise themselves to visit the old castles.

There is something about an old, old place that is fascinating and awe-inspiring. This country boasts no old, moss-grown castles, but it does have lovely colonial homes to show. These residences seem to breathe welcome to all who enter their quaint gardens and view their handsome interiors.

The historic old town of Alexandria, across the Potomac from the Capital, has a wealth of such famous houses. Each spring a tour of them is conducted by the Rector's Aid Society of St. Paul's Episcopal Church. The tour this year is scheduled Saturday.

Robert E. Lee Home.

One of the homes to be visited is one on Oronoco street where Robert E. Lee came to live at the death of his father, Gen. Henry (Light Horse Harry) Lee. Oronoco street was then known as "The Rolling Road" down which the planters rolled their tobacco to the Government warehouses, located at the foot of the street. Dr. and Mrs. R. R. Sayres now make their home in the old house.

The next old home on the list is a place on Alfred street, now belonging to Senator and Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, the latter known in the literary world as Frances Parkinson Keyes. This charming old place seems to reflect the personalities of this couple both so distinguished in separate fields of work.

On South Washington street is a quaint little house built a century and a half ago, the architecture of which is related to the oldest buildings in Virginia. It was once the home of a famous Quaker silversmith, Mordical Miller, and is now the residence of Mrs. Hubert Snowden.

Rostrum for Lafayette.

In 1824 Gen. Lafayette made an address to the people of Alexandria from the steps of the home of Benjamin Delaney on Duke street. This lovely old sample of colonial architecture was built in 1795 and is now the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Horner. On Prince street is an old revolutionary period home that has been carefully restored and suitably refurnished with early American antiques by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin George.

Four generations of the Leadbeater family have occupied the house at 213 South Pitt street. In the old-fashioned garden there are 18 plants that have been growing there for almost 100 years. Maj. and Mrs. Charles Barrett are the present owners. Across the street there is St. Paul's Church, which was erected in 1817. Its interior is patterned after that of St. James' Church, Picadilly, London, of which Sir Christopher Wren was the architect.

The mellowed paneling and lovely antiques in these homes with their bright picturesque gardens have a way of taking the visitors out of the hurry and bustle of the present day back to colonial times.

Culbertson on Bridge

Hammurabi's Theory Reversed.

In bridge, as in life, it is not always good bidding that brings the best results. Occasionally, as a matter of fact, extremely bad bidding may bring to a player a score far better than is made by those conveying correct information about their holdings and determining logically the best final contract. The hand below, which was played in a duplicate game, is an amusing example:

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.).

East	South	West	North
Pass (1)	Pass	1◇ (2)	Pass
3NT (3)	Pass	Pass	Dbl. (4)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Obviously East should bid one club. The pass is utterly inexcusable.
2—After a pass by East, West's hand is entirely too weak to open in rubber bridge. However, in duplicate it has become general custom to open even with this type of hand.
3—This bid violates every sound principle of bridge. The hand is void of the suit bid by partner, which suggests great difficulty in handling it at no-trump. The correct response is two clubs.
4—With strength in three suits—one bid by the opponents—it must be admitted that North has a fairly tempting Double.

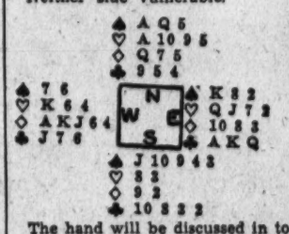

The reader will note that had the North and South hands been reversed, East would have been defeated, as in that case his hand would have contained only one reentry and he could thus never have cashed his clubs.

As the hand actually lay, however, South was in trouble for a good lead, and opened his top spade. In consequence East made his contract and two overtricks as well.

It is possible, as the cards lie, to defeat the contract one trick with an opening lead of a diamond and the refusal by South to win the club King with the Ace.

Tomorrow's Hand.

West, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

Summer Style Seers Advise White Frocks

Crinoline Materials Win Favor of Hollywood Gown Makers.

Hollywood, May 1 (AP).—White, in any material that is cool, and the modern substitutes for fresh, crisp crinoline are advised for summer wear by Hollywood stylists.

From informal dresses worn in the morning, from beach togs, tennis frocks and street wear gowns of formal importance, Orry Kelly says white is the most adaptable and flattering of all colors for a woman to choose.

This theory is illustrated in a gown designed by Kelly for Ann Dvorak. It is made simply, of sheer white crepe, and the skirt is intricately cut in a molded line, with a slight fullness toward the floor. The bodice has conical slits at the shoulder line, set in with flesh-toned marquisette and garnished with two huge crystal buttons, which form an anchorage for a detachable cape wrap of military dash.

Two interesting touches are the use of long sleeves for a summer evening gown, and the draped sash, which ties in front.

With printed frocks, the practical combination of an ensemble jacket of solid white is suggested by Designer Kelly.

Royer, Fox sartorial expert, is sponsoring the new vogue of crispness. He is designing gowns for summer in such brittle materials as organdies, mousseline de sole, stiff piques and failles, net, tulle and maline. Despite their apparent frailty, they make themselves suitable for every summer occasion.

As an example of this motif, there is Claire Trevor's simple dance dress of blue embroidered organdie. A pleated flounce edges the hem of the skirt and the shoulder cuffs simulate a fichu collar. White rick-rack braid edges the flounces and there are self-covered buttons all the way down the dress front. At the base of the V-neckline there is a chocolate cire bow and a girdle of the same material.

Although Marian Nixon was one of the first to wear the new extra-large hats, she went shopping the other day in a white sports ensemble topped by a small sailor of white patent leather. It had a peaked crown, tucked-in edge and a trim white cord of patent leather wound about, crossing in front.

Erasing Facial Ravages This Expert's Metier

By Ruth Anne Davis.

SOME YEARS ago a young lady in London became a pupil of Mme. Adair, foremost beauty authority and originator of the muscle strapping treatment. When most people hear of the latter they think of complicated strap bandaging, but in this instance the term refers to the rhythmic pat of the hands on the face and neck to invigorate and strengthen the muscles.

Mme. Adair originated and perfected the treatment, and lest it should become lost to posterity took a few pupils whom she carefully trained.

The young English lady soon became so adept she came to this country and started a salon in Washington. She also began to manufacture a complete line of products.

Her reputation had spread before her. She had practiced for years on the faces of English aristocrats, and now, as master of her trade, she came to this country. Her success was phenomenal and she trained several pupils to help carry on the good work in her Washington salon.

Prominent women have almost worn a path to her doorway. They found her restful and revivifying treatments went a long way toward restoring the youthful contour of their faces. A series of them—and she gives these at special prices—is the death knell to double chins and sagging cheeks.

After a trying day one hour in her salon will erase the ravages from fatigued faces and bring a rested, refreshened look.

Not Too Bright.

A favorite shade of nail polish is called Diane red. It's that in between crimson, neither too light nor too bright. Particularly when worn with twilight blue it offers a delightful contrast.

The color has gone a long way toward making it popular, but the fact it was made on a cream base has gone even further. Once it has been applied to the nails it maintains a smooth, glossy finish proof against cracking.

Larger Than a Minute.

Some white compacts with seed pearl tops are dainty accessories. They're a bit larger than a minute, and so light and fragile they may be carried in the sheerest purse and never cause a bulge.

They're suited to a budget—only 79 cents!

Miniature Locks.

The miniature locks in a local shop look more like toys than anything else. But they were designed for practical use.

They can fasten to dog collars to keep them securely locked without being an extra burden to even a small dog. They will fit into the catch of a mailbox and protect it from everything but blasting.

And they sell for one dime.

Tan Irish Basket.

A mint basket is a novel attraction in a local shop. It is a small wicker basket, which can be used as a tray when empty. It comes with an assortment of sweets and delicacies including several boxes of delicious mint patties; four packages of Newport thin cream mints in shades of white, yellow, green, and pink, each group wrapped in cellophane. Also some barber pole peppermint sticks, green mint jelly patties, a jar of green mint jelly (that absolutely melts in the mouth) and some small jars of green mint cherries.

When gentlemen visit candy shops to select sweetmeats for their sweethearts they're frequently torn between at least half a dozen packages. They want something that shows they've given some thought to it; they want something that appeals to the eye as well as the palate. Here's an affair that fills the ticket.

P. S. It is likewise a good solution to the prize problem.

Incorporates Plenty.

One two-panel screen is a modern example of a lot of utility in a small space.

When the panels fold open there's a nice little fire or corner screen. The inside of one of the panels lets down into a small typing table. When the whole contraption isn't in use it can be folded up into one panel and tucked out of sight.

The company which manufactures these will make them in any design suggested, and will line them with wall paper to match a specific room. Attractive modernistic chairs may be bought to match.

Whether you've any intention of buying, it will be interesting to stop by and give them a thorough once-over. They're that novel.

Spiral Whirls.

Costume bracelets called the "Miami whirl" are new arrivals in Washington. They're made of circles of small beads strung on elastic string, look a feathery mass of spirals and interpret the good times supposed to be had in Miami.

They come in coral, brown, green, yellow, orange and blue, with clips to match.

Older Women Give World Much, Declares Norwegian

THE WORLD of affairs keeps a place for the woman who does a good job of rearing children, says Mme. Marie Michelet, above. They have more to give than the younger woman, thinks this organizer of housewives from Norway.

THE WORLD has a great need for the middle-aged woman who has lived richly and can give the benefit of her experience to other people, says Fru Professor Marie Michelet, of Norway.

Mme. Michelet, the only foreign representative at the convention of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association now being held at the Dodge Hotel, is president of the International Federation of the North League of Housewives' Organizations of Norway, Sweden, Finland and Denmark. She is also vice president of the Associated Country Women of the World.

Has More to Give.

"The woman who has devoted years to rearing her children should not feel there is no place for her in the world when the are grown up," Mme. Michelet continued.

"For if she has done a good job with her children she has been growing constantly, and she has much more to give the world than when she was a young woman."

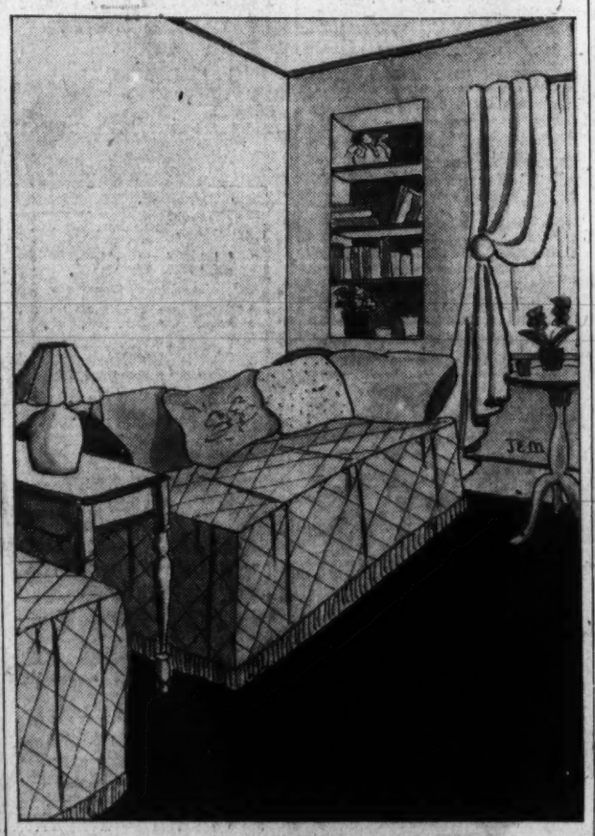

Norwegian women believe homemaking is a full time job, Mme. Michelet said.

"We have no objection to a woman's working in order to support herself and her family," she said, "but when it isn't necessary for economic reasons she should devote her time to creating the spirit that makes a home a place where children can grow and develop. The woman who says she is bored and can find nothing to do at home is not developing the resources within herself."

The purpose of the organization, of which Mme. Michelet is president, is to teach housewives to make their homes a place of beauty and run them on an efficiency basis so they will have time to acquire a knowledge of the arts and literature, to broaden their horizon.

Both Mme. Michelet and her husband, Dr. S. T. Michelet, are known for their work in education in Norway. Mme. Michelet has always been especially interested in matters connected with the home, youth and children. Dr. Michelet is dean of the Theological Seminary at the University of Auslo, and is a well-known lecturer on religious subjects.

Early American Pieces Adapted To Comfortable, Informal Home

By Jo Ellen Maxson.

HAVE YOU EVER thought of keying your home to your own personality? An apartment furnished by one bride accomplishes this. It is expressive of comfort and informality, of a person who would feel most at home in sport clothes. Early American furniture was well adapted to this type, with its sturdiness and good craftsmanship.

Today's illustration shows the living-room in this three room apartment. The bride expects to own her own New England colonial home within a few years, and with this idea in mind has selected American colonial pieces, some antiques and some excellent reproductions, which will be suitable for her house later on.

An ingenious arrangement of two studio couches affords sleeping accommodations for overnight guests and answers the seating problem for impromptu gatherings. They are placed end to end along the largest wall space, with a hand-joined maple table between them.

They are covered in natural-colored linen with a diamond-shaped pattern in yellow and yellow fringe. Pillows are covered in the various colors used in the room. A lamp of turquoise pottery with a cheerful yellow shade gives a gay note of color.

Between the two windows is a maple lowboy with original brasses, fitted with leather appointments so it may also be used as a desk. A rush-seat, ladder-back chair accompanies the lowboy, and in the wall space above is hung a lovely old mirror in a maple frame.

Two comfortable armchairs are placed slightly vis-a-vis near the windows, one covered in turquoise chintz with yellow weltings, and the other in a colonial bouquet patterned linen. Small maple tables are placed conveniently near the chairs.

Miss Maxson gives help in home decorating problems. Call NA. 4205 for an appointment, or write her in care of The Washington Post.

Workers React To the Weather, Survey Shows

Great Emotional Stimulus From This Source, More Than Politics.

PHILADELPHIA, May 1 (Spl.).—The weather is the chief emotional stimulus back of the average worker. This has been revealed in a study of emotions of workers in this country and Germany made by Dr. Rexford B. Hersey, assistant professor of industry in the Wharton School of Finance and Industry in the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Hersey's studios have shown the average American worker derives 70 times as much emotional stimulus from the weather as he does from politics. The average worker in Germany records an even greater emotional response to the weather.

Physical conditions, including sickness, injuries, feelings of fatigue or energy availability, exerted an influence of 28 per cent on the Americans as against 21 per cent on the Germans. Strictly financial problems gave the Germans 10 per cent of their emotional stimuli, as compared with 2 per cent for the Americans, and politics provided them with another 10 per cent, as compared with only one-tenth of 1 per cent for the workers in this country.

In connection with these wide differences, Dr. Hersey pointed out the American survey was made when economic conditions in the United States were favorable and pclitical conditions normal, while during the German study conditions in that country were unsettled.

From his study, Dr. Hersey believes workers in the United States are less political minded than those of Germany. He does not believe workers anywhere will devote much attention to broad, abstract political problems unless compelled by force or necessity.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Food for Young Babies.

Care of the health of babies in the second half of the first year of life needs no further attention from health agencies and research laboratories. Physicians and mothers have almost all the information they need. The few shortcomings that remain we can expect to be worked out as a result of natural and unstimulated progress. Such need as remains in that field is principally a matter of getting the known information applied. The need is for more knowledge and better methods for babies under six months of age and particularly for those less than three months of age.

In one large hospital long a leader in the science of medicine, they are advocating taking young babies off breast milk. The report is that whenever they can find a suggestion of an excuse they advise the mother to wean her young baby and put it on the bottle. It was scarcely yesterday that we were driving as hard as we knew how to persuade mothers to keep babies at the breast as long as possible or as near one year as possible.

The reasons for the change are several:

One is the fact that cow's milk has become safer and generally better, whereas human milk has become poorer. When the only cow's milk was dirty, laden with bacteria, old, and warm, it was unsafe as well as unfit for baby use. Now that pasteurization is general and refrigeration is coming within the range of economic possibilities, cow's milk is reasonably safe.

On the other hand, between fashion and food, human milk has become unsatisfactory. Mothers do not supply much milk and what they have does not hold out for long. One part of this trouble is a deficiency of foods rich in vitamin B complex in the dietary. This vitamin group is especially rich in yeasts of various kinds and in yeast concentrates, in the germ of wheat and other grains, in honest-to-goodness whole grain flours and cereals, and in lesser, but considerable quantities, in many other foods.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"Taurus."

If May 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m., from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. until midnight. The danger periods are from 6 to 8 a. m., from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 7 to 9 p. m.

In your business or social life on this date, it would seem that it will be very advisable for you to refrain from asking anyone to do something which, if you will only make the exertion, can be attended to by yourself. This will not be a propitious day for those seeking favors, unless the request made is a very reasonable desire or actual need.

The woman born on May 2 may find it advisable to consult with others, regarding the matter of clothing. You will find it very good taste to never allow yourself to be induced into making an ostentatious display in either jewelry or clothing. You are of the type that will make a better impression if you adhere to the more conservative styles in the matter of personal adornment.

The woman born on May 2 has a loyal nature, and will stick to her family and friends through thick and thin. Married life, as a rule, helps develop her character. If this is your birthday, appreciate the loving thought, rather than the value as measured in dollars and cents, back of the tokens received, which have been given to show loving remembrance of this day, and which starts a new year in your life.

To Mentor.

By Katherine Smith.

If you should pass your hand across my eyes
And tear the fragile veil of dreams away
I will not mind though night is short and day
Too dreary with awakening. If, wise
To judgements of the world, your finger lies
Upon my lips where thoughtless laughter may Become too light, I will not ever say
That you were wrong. Too, you may criticize
My mental movement; you may hope to mold
My moods to suit your own, less mad and free,
At least give me the right to hope the cold
Sure caution of your heart's properiety
Will thaw before you have become too old
To understand the childishness in me.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Sunday Night Supper the Time to Bring Out the Grill.

By Susan Mills.

SUNDAY NIGHT is a grilling time. Avoiding a pun is difficult, but modern cooking being what it is and modern tastes being what they are, the statement stands and may be accepted quite literally.

Grilled cheese sandwiches are no new thing. We get them in drug stores for lunch and at tearooms for supper. But when the housewife begins to grill there is no limit to the combinations she may use and the delicious Sunday night suppers she may serve.

Open-face sandwiches of cheese and tomato grilled, offer a combination of flavors sure to please the palate. If more complicated grilled dishes are in order here are some suggestions.

The combination grill usually consists of grilled vegetables and acid fruits cooked in the grill pan with the meat. Vegetables such as tomatoes, eggplant, cucumbers, white and sweet potatoes, carrots, beets, and turnips make attractive combinations with lamb chops, hamburger steak, and little link sausages or sausage cakes, bacon, sweetbreads or ham. Fruits such as apples, bananas, pineapple, and sometimes apricots and peaches are cooked in grill combination to add unusual flavors to the meat and vegetables.

Lamb Chop Grill.

Saratoga chops (cut from the boned and rolled shoulder of lamb) are nice for this dish. Brown 4 chops on one side. Place the chops in the center of the grill pan or fire-proof platter. At one end place 4 slices of eggplant which have been dotted with butter and sprinkled with grated cheese.

At the other end place 4 slices of pineapple which have been dipped in melted butter. In between place 4 large mushroom caps which have been dipped in melted butter. Place the grill pan on the tray of the broiler oven about 2 inches from the gas burner, and turn the flame down to what would be a moderate oven temperature. Cook until the chops are done and the eggplant and pineapple are browned.

Ground Steak Combination Grill.

Ground steak patties make an equally good grill combination with tomatoes and sweet potatoes. They are cooked just as the chops are. The sweet potatoes are especially good if a paste of 4 tablespoons brown sugar and 2 tablespoons butter is made to spread over them.

A garnish of a sprig of parsley or of watercress and a cube of tart jelly or a dash of paprika can be used to add color.

Dean Says Job Chances Better

New York, April 30 (Spl.).—College women face increased opportunities in the professional world despite their recent depression setback, believes Dean Virginia Gildersleeve of Barnard College.

Speaking recently before an assembly of upper classwomen, Dean Gildersleeve predicted the civil service field should be a fruitful one for women since service formerly done by private agencies had been taken over by the Government. Among the other fields of opportunity she cited were teaching, medicine, scientific research, social work, business and adult education.

"All good workers are needed," said Dean Gildersleeve. "Now that the fog is lifting, anyone of you can find work to do. Whether you will be paid or not, I do not know. I am not an economist. But I do know there will always be some statesman who will provide for all of us to be fed and housed meanwhile. Although at present there is a dearth of paid positions, you must not fear that you are a lost or unwanted generation."

I WAS A SPY!

By MARTHE McKENNA

What Has Gone Before.

Marthe Cnockaert McKenna, Belgian woman, served as a British secret agent during the World War. In previous installments of this fascinating recital, she told of the tumultuous events—death and destruction—that marked the German invasion of her country. She became attached as a nurse to a German military hospital. Her family was scattered during the war. Lucille Deldonck, an elderly woman, tells her that her three brothers are with the Belgian army. She learns her father and mother are alive. Lucille urges her to become a spy. You can pick up the story at this point and continue it daily in The Washington Post.

"But how am I to transmit my reports?" I put in.

"Have a little patience, Marthe, and you will learn everything. Let us start at the beginning. To the British Intelligence you are known as 'Laura.' You will send all your messages in code signed that name. The code you will use is ingenious, yet easily mastered or deciphered by anyone possessing the key. The first of your tasks will be to learn the formula of this code by heart so thoroughly that you will never, never make a mistake. The moment you have done this you will destroy the formula; you can understand that for your own safety the sooner you have burnt such a damning piece of evidence the better." I took the folded paper which Lucelle handed me without any comment, and pushed it in the top of my stocking. Lucelle chuckled quietly.

Instructions Given.

"That is not a very clever or original place to hide such a dangerous piece of paper, Martha. If anyone were to search you that is the first place they would look. Put it in your hair. And now to continue. You will receive your instructions through the old vegetable woman, known among the Germans as Canteen Ma. When you have a message to send, after coding it you go down the Rue de la Place until you reach the Grand Place. Next on the right here you will see an alleyway. Enter this, tap three times, pause, tap twice again on the fifth window on the left-hand side, then wait. One of our agents there, known as 'No. 63,' will take your message, which will be transmitted at once to the British Intelligence Section over the frontier by a number of volunteer runners in relays, for it is unwise for a message ever to remain in the same hands for long——"

When I had assured her that I understood perfectly what I was to do, Lucelle went on once again. She told me to destroy every message I received directly I had read it, and advised me that when I had written a message for transmission I should take it to No. 63 immediately and not conceal it in the house until some seemingly more auspicious time. Then she told me of the "safety-pin men," who were apparently a very active branch of the anti-German espionage system. These men sometimes carried out the most desperate and astonishing enterprises. I should know a "safety-pin man" by the two white-metal safety-pins which he carried beneath the lapel of his coat. In a few days, she said, a strange man would call at our house and ask for me. If he showed me two safety-pins in his lapel, I was to do my best to persuade my hostess either to give him lodging in the house or to find him lodging with her friends near by. This man was in Roulers "on a special mission" and would perhaps only remain a short time. During that time I was to take any message he might wish to transmit and give it to No. 63.

Lucelle rose. "Unfortunately, Martha, I have reason to believe that the 'Vampires' know that I am in this district. I shall leave tonight as soon as you have gone, and I hope to have crossed the frontier at an early hour tomorrow. A little general advice, Martha—a spy needs above all else to keep her wits about her every moment of her life, asleep or awake—eyes, ears, brains and intelligence are the tools of the good spy. If you are caught it will in all probability be your own fault. Remember in everything you say, in everything you do, you must give the impression that the very last thing in the world you would think of being is a spy—there may be other spies working around you, but do not bother yourself with their activities unless it is necessary in the course of your work; the less you know of your fellow-spies the less the 'Vampires' are likely to wring out of you if they catch you. Good-by, Martha, and God be with you."

The house seemed deserted as I groped my way downstairs, but a hand caught my wrist as I reached the foot, led me through the darkness, and I was let out through the same door by which I had entered.

A Stranger Arrives.

Two days later my mother told me when I came in from the hospital that a man had called earlier in the day, asking for me. I had warned her that such a man might come, and that if I happened to be out at the time she was to ask him to return when I should be at home. He came to the door again soon afterward. He was a big, handsome, mustached fellow of middle age in the clothes of a laboring man.

"Good day, mademoiselle, is there any chance of finding lodging here? I'm one of the unfortunate ones who lost pretty well everything in the invasion. They tell me the work up here is well paid for, so I'm going to try my luck."

"Step inside for a moment," I invited, "and I will ask the owner of this house what she can do for you."

Directly he was within the shelter of the doorway he shot a quick glance about him to see that he was unobserved, then hastily lifted his lapel and for a fleeting instant I saw two metal safety-pins. He was a cheerful type of man for whom my hostess seemed to take an instant fancy. She offered him a bed in the attic, the only space in the house still unoccupied, and the stranger accepted gratefully. Within an hour this mysterious stranger was on the friendliest terms with everyone in the house, including the two German officers. He spoke fluent German, good French and fair Flemish, and was evidently a man of good class.

Thanks to him the evening meal that night and for many nights to come was a hilarious affair. He had apparently been Jack-of-all-trades in his time, from seaman to engineer in the Argentine, and poured forth an amazing flow of anecdotes of a distinctly Rabelaisian character. The two Germans were so pleased with him that they used to treat him in their room or in one of the cafes to orgies of wine and cigars.

Washington Women Receive Confederate Honor; Mrs. Coyle Chosen Sponsor of South for Reunion

Will Be Commander's Hostess For Functions at June Meeting

The Remaining "Men in Gray" Will Gather in Chattanooga; Mrs. Coyle, Standing by an Old Loyalty, Will Wear Cotton Frocks for the Occasion.

By Helen Fetter Cook.

TO A WASHINGTON woman has fallen one of the highest honors a Southern woman can receive—that of being chosen by Gen. Homer Atkinson, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, to be sponsor of the South for the forty-fourth reunion since the organization was founded.

Gen. Atkinson has just issued this announcement from his headquarters in Richmond, Va., presenting the honor to Mabel Rhett Goode Coyle, wife of Lieut. Col. Randolph Coyle, assistant paymaster, United States Marine Corps.

The position is that of hostess for the commander in chief for all the stately, official events at these reunions.

This year the affair will be held in Chattanooga, Tenn., Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 6, 7 and 8.

Mrs. Coyle, formerly Mabel Rhett Goode, of Mobile, Ala., is no newcomer to Confederate reunions. In 1910 she served as maid of honor for the granddaughter of Jefferson Davis—then Lucy Hayes—who was sponsor for the South in Mobile.

Six years later Mrs. Coyle was maid of honor for the Raphael Semmes Camp at the reunion held in Birmingham, Ala., and the following year, 1917, she was sponsor for the same camp at the reunion held in Washington.

These reunions are stirring events with the proud rows of men in gray with their red-tasseled, big hats. Each year they have met there have been fewer of them and of those few more and more have become snowy-haired.

Although there is no official robe or crown for the "Sponsor for the South," Mrs. Coyle is planning some special costumes for the various events during the three days of the reunion. She has chosen several frocks of fine cotton materials, in special deference to the cotton crops of the Southern States.

Favors Red.

In the big parade she will wear a red and white sports suit, and if it is warm the evening of the big ball which closes the festivities, she will wear a red organdy, very bouffant and ruffled.

Mrs. Coyle's interest in cotton found dramatic expresson during the World War when as a debutante in Mobile she gathered other debutantes and they all picked a field of cotton—30 pounds of it—in a day and auctioned it off for the Red Cross.

Although a native of Alabama, Mrs. Coyle belongs to Washington from early girlhood. After attending Miss Anna Gee's school in Mobile and Miss Liggett's school in Detroit, she was a student here at Mrs. Sommer's school, now Mount Vernon Seminary.

A Record of Service.

Her ancestry on both sides is sturdily American with a record of constant service to the country from pre-Revolutionary times.

When Col. and Mrs. Coyle and their attractive young red-headed son, Pat, leave for the big reunion at Chattanooga, they will have the pleasure of knowing that, for the first time at these reunions, the full U. S. Marine Band will be there to do the heroes honor. This was arranged by special appropriation made by Congress. A special train, "The Commander-in-Chief," will carry Gen. Atkinson and Gen. William McK. Evans, commander of the department of Virginia, and 75 other veterans, most of them considerably past their eightieth birthday, to Chattanooga.

Col. Coyle goes in the capacity of personal aid to the commander-in-chief, and bears the Confederate title of brigadier general. The complete military staff of the United Confederate Veterans will number about 150.

Another Washington woman to have special honor accorded her in connection with this reunion is Jessica Randolph Smith, daughter of Orrin Smith, who designed and made the first Confederate flag. Miss Smith has been appointed colorbearer on Gen. Atkinson's personal staff.

MRS. RANDOLPH COYLE, above, will be a queen in a cotton gown when she presides as "Sponsor for the South," at the annual reunion of United Confederate Veterans in Chattanooga in June. It's the highest honor the South can pay a woman.

The George Washington University Hospital Women's Board will meet at 10:30 o'clock today at the Mayflower Hotel.

Career Held No Substitute For Home-Making Interest

THE LIMELIGHT and fanfare that constitute a part of every successful career are not acceptable as substitutes for domestic interests, thinks Mrs. Brooks Fletcher, wife of Representative Fletcher, of Ohio. She is a musician and experienced public spaker in her own right, has played an important role in her husband's political life, and is now preparing to assist him in his forthcoming campaign for the Governorship of Ohio.

Can Combine Them.

"It is impossible for any woman to destroy her domestic inclinations in favor of a career," she said yesterday. "She can, however, combine her home-interest with her career so neither suffers."

With these remarks as a preface, this attractive pocket-sized young woman who could pass as a debutante, modestly recounted the high points in her career.

"I think I am fortunate," she said, "that my part in public life is in line with my husband's career. I realize, of course, many women pursue callings separate from their homes and husbands and still succeed, but I wonder if they enjoy their work as much. As I was trained to be a musician and a public speaker I have been able to work along with my husband. Our interests are identical, and we can plan our work together. At political meetings we share the platform. I usually give a musical prelude and a short talk of special interest to women before my husband begins his speech. Then, while he talks, I take his statements down in shorthand, later transcribing them for the newspapers."

Mrs. Fletcher said, however, this activity had never entirely supplanted her interest in cooking, housekeeping and all the other ingredients that go to make up efficient homemaking.

Women Enjoy Domesticity.

"I believe most any woman, no matter if she is a genius or possesses moderate talent, enjoys executing some domestic duties. A successful actress, for instance, whose entire time is devoted to her art, doubtless harbors a desire for a home, where she can give some time to simple domestic duties all women have enjoyed through the ages. I find pleasure in keeping my apartment here in Washington and my home in Marion, Ohio. I believe any women deprived of such a privilege is never entirely contented. I realize, however, few women will admit this, as they regard a love of domestic things as a feminine weakness, not to be encouraged into full development. I am rather proud of the fact that I do enjoy cooking, sweeping and dusting, even though much of my time is spent on activities outside the home."

The part of Ohio, once known as the Harding District, that Mr. Fletcher represents, knows Mrs. Fletcher as well as her husband. For, during one campaign Mr. Fletcher was seriously injured in an automobile accident, and she took his place on the platform, filled all his speaking enagements, and efficiently carried on every phase of his work until he was ready to take it up again.

It was this work that led Senator Atlee Pomerene publicly to pay her the tribute of suggesting if her husband became Governor of Ohio, Mrs. Fletcher's charm and ability would be unusual assets to the governor's mansion, and that as a leader she deserved to take her place with such leaders among Ohio women as Mrs. Warren G. Harding and Judge Florence Allen.

Born in Nebraska, Mrs. Fletcher was launched on her career as a singer before she was graduated from high school. Starring in "The Mikado" she was presented in 173 cities of the United States and Canada.

Later, after finishing at the University of Nebraska, she continued her study of voice and appeared on the concert stage and the lecture platform from Coast to Coast.

MRS. BROOKS FLETCHER, above, thinks women are happiest when combining homemaking with outside interests. She should know. Wife of Representative Fletcher, of Ohio, she is also a singer, a platform speaker, and an ardent campaigner for her husband.

Poe Set to Music.

ONE OF THE nicest musical programs given for the Pen Women's convention last week was presented by the Washington Composers' Club. And one of the most musical and colorful works in it was a suite of settings made by LaSalle Spier for five of Edgar Allan Poe's poems. He wrote the music for string quartet, piano, and barytone. It was presented by Louis Ferrare, Alexander Levin, violinists; Samuel Feldman, viola; Marcel Ancher, 'cellist; and Harlan Randall, barytone, with Mr. Spier at the piano.

The cycle was excellently varied, the songs including "To Helen," "A Dream Within a Dream," "To One in Paradise," "Eldorado" and the inevitable "Annabelle Lee." The tragic shadow that stalks all Poe's works was reflected in Mr. Spier's minor-keyed music.

• • • •

Not the least interesting thing about the works was the fact they were written in Mr. Spier's studio on Bancroft place, the soundproofing of which — due to an unappreciative neighbor—has cost Mr. Spier $2,065 to date. An expensive muse—music.

Woman Diver Finds Treasure Fathoms Down

She Considers Profession Hazardous but Extremely Thrilling.

DEEP-SEA diving is not the average woman's idea of a suitable career, but Margaret Campbell Goodman, the only one of her sex to follow such hazardous endeavor, revels in wrecks and treasures buried at the bottom of the sea.

"When one considers the adventure of salvaging treasure from the sea," said Mrs. Goodman, "the hazards can be discounted. If there is anything more thrilling than recovering relics buried 180 feet under water for more than half a century, I don't know what it is."

Mrs. Goodman was referring to her adventure of leading a crew in salvaging 67 tons of copper from the steamship Pewabic, which went down in Lake Huron in 1865 with a loss of 155 lives. Buried 30 fathoms, the Pewabic had been given up by men divers, but the petite, distinctly feminine Mrs. Goodman organized a company and recovered not only the copper, but a small ship's vault which contained $55,000 in paper currency.

Some Afraid.

"Women—and many men—are afraid to go in for diving," she continued, "because the dangers of going down too quickly and staying down too long are those any diver must take into consideration. Such hazards can be avoided, however, if one realizes diving is a scientific problem—the supreme art in wrestling buried treasures."

She further explained she did much research before attempting a salvaging job.

"When I am not actually engaged in exploring a wreck or in organizing a crew," she asserted, "I am usually busy doing research either for myself or for other divers. In this way I run little risk of diving to find a ship which contains no treasure."

Mrs. Campbell also devotes part of her time to lecturing and writing. In addition to writing the Sea Diver's section used in Catherine Filene Shouse's book, "Careers for Women," she recently completed a book of her own, entitled, "What I Found on the Bottom of the Sea." It is now being published and recounts some of her experiences as the only woman deep-sea diver in the world.

Abandons Subject.

"Sometimes I leave the subject of diving entirely out of my writing," she said, "and devote my attention to writing poetry and plays."

She is the author of a number of one-act plays, short stories, and serials, most of which have been illustrated by her husband.

"Of course, I find enjoyment in writing plays and poetry," she commented, "but my real and lasting interest is, of course, diving."

At present, she is devoting her time to organizing a salvage crew scheduled to retrieve lost treasure from Lakie Erie this summer.

In discussing ships sunk in the Atlantic, Mrs. Goodman said there was a possibility the Lusitania might some day be reached by modern equipment. The Titanic, however, went down where the ocean is too deep ever to permit exploration.

Children Exist For the State, Nazis Declare

Berlin, April 27 (U.P.). — A mother exists only for her child, and her child exists only for the state, according to the latest political philosophy indorsed by certain Nazis.

Supplementing an article written by Karl Friedrich Zahn, Nazi "chaplain of youth," in which he said children are no longer private property, a well-known professor of medicine informed a woman who feared the physical results of childbirth.

"We are not permitted to interrupt conception in any case where a woman has a 2 per cent chance to live. The state is more interested in babies than in mothers."

Zahn's article said:

"Children no longer are private property. They belong to the German nation. Whoever will not acknowledge that fact must send his children abroad, as many sent gold, in order to remove them from the scene of Germany's regeneration."

The Frou-Frou Blouse Gets Big Fashion Hand

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, May 2.—Fashion is so enamoured of the idea of tucking frills and ruffles under her chin (she realizes how much it flatters her) that she's gone in, in a wholesale way, for soft fluffy blouses. Which is quite different from last year when most blouses were decidedly on the tailored side.

That's not saying that tailored blouses aren't in fashion. Because they are. For sports wear and business wear they're much smarter and more appropriate than the frillier ones.

And of these tailored blouses the shirtwaist type (one variety is sketched at the top of the picture) has become a classic.

But now folks are going to dressy luncheons, teas and cocktail parties in blouses. Even to dinners and dinner-dances. And for such events, softer, more dressy types are the thing.

Two almost forgotten materials have come back in these . . . sheer georgette and lightweight crepe de chine. They are often trimmed with fine val lace.

Cotton net wins a lot of approval, daintily tucked and pleated or crisply ruffled. (One of these is shown at the lower right.) And this is not only plain white or pastel net, but net printed in lovely floral patterns.

In this printed net there are very dressy blouses, dressy enough for those cocktail parties or even the dinner dance.

Also for this very formal wear, especially with the new dinner suits with skirts of slipper length, metal threaded sheer fabrics are used. And printed organdies and marquisettes pastel satins and crepes and warp printed taffetas.

Another smart crisp fabric is dotted Swiss, used in both light and dark colors. And fashionable among the softer fabrics are bastiste, adorned with fine hand work, voile and tissue gingham.

Blouses of the types described are available in Washington in all the better shops and department stores.

Repeal Brought 'Whisky Faces,' Says Beautician

Legal Liquor Is Wreaking Havoc on Lovely Visages, He Declares.

CHICAGO, May 1 (U.P.).—Repeal and a wave of feminine drinking has sent women with "whisky faces" flocking hysterically to beauty parlors, M. Henri Gorden, make-up adviser to Hollywood's stars, said today.

Gorden, just back from the movie capital where he was beauty expert for Joan Crawford, Jean Harlow and other stars, calls himself a "beauty psychologist."

As for most of the new legal liquor and its effect on pulchritude, Mr. Gorden's comments were very disparaging.

"Quick gin, whisky that is too young and poor blends are giving women whisky faces—veins, hard lines and bad complexions," he said.

"The feminine drinkers are stampeding into beauty shops all over the country for treatment, or are trying to cover up their repeal blemishes with cosmetics."

"Beauty and bum alcohol don't mix. We must get these women away from the bottle."

Gorden, said the complexions of women in Chicago, New York, and other large cities are not as attractive as those of women in small towns.

FERA Opens D. C. Relief Probe Today

Hopkins Wants Facts on Administration, High Costs.

Federal Inquiry Will Determine Efficiency of Local Staff.

In an effort to give the Federal Emergency Relief Administration an exact picture of the District relief situation, a Federal expert today will begin a check of local relief administration.

This was disclosed late yesterday when Robert Watson, field statistician of the FERA, was assigned to study District administration of relief. He will begin in the accounting and auditing division.

Federal officials said the inquiry is partly routine. However, it was learned at the Federal headquarters that assignment of Watson is the first specific step taken by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal administrator, in his promised investigation of the local situation.

Favor Federal Probe.

Local officials were said to be heartily in favor of the Federal inquiry, which will be directed toward discovering whether an adequate or superfluous staff handling District relief and why such a heavy relief load exists. At the Federal headquarters, it was said that the local officials had promised thorough cooperation.

Watson is expected to take several days in his check. The local relief situation was brought to a head last week b yHopkins when he asserted there was too great a relief load in Washington for its type of city. Federal officials have been largely in the dark as to the exact type of work being carried on and Hopkins said he was determined to learn the full details.

It was stated at the Federal headquarters that an impression prevailed that the local administration was over-manned, and Hopkins wanted this report run down.

Gotwals Charge Probe Set.

Another angle of the relief problem in the District that is expected to be cleared up is the charge of Engineer Commissioner John C. Gotwals that one-third of the relief recipients are not entitled to its because they are not bona fide residents. This declaration was attacked by Leroy A. Halbert, director or emergency relief, who termed it excessive.

Added to this have been many reports of relief being impeded by red tape. It is generally conceded that the local situation, which now is costing the Federal relief administration around $1,000,000 monthly, is not satisfactory.

Mead Pushes Air Mail Bill

House Committee Gives Substitute Measure Its Approval.

A substitute for the air-mail bill passed by the Senate last Saturday was approved yesterday by the House Postoffice Committee, calling for one year contracts to carry mail and a five-man commission to study the entire aviation field and make recommendations to the next Congress for permanent legislation.

Chairman James M. Mead of the committee said he would ask for a special rule for the House to consider the measure as soon as possible.

The commission called for by the bill would consist of five members to be appointed by the President, none of them to be connected with the Government. Not more than three members may be of the same political party.

Suspect in Slaying Held in Hyattsville

Paul C. Dunnington, colored, 28, Bladensburg, was arrested by police at Hyattsville yesterday and held for investigation in connection with the fatal shooting of Samuel Brown, colored, 27, a few hours earlier.

Constable Andrew Gash and Deputy Sheriff Wilbur Eskite, who made the arrest, said the shooting occurred at Bladensburg, following an argument. A shotgun was used, they said. An inquest will be held by Acting Corner Henry O'Neil.

4 Questioned As 2 Victims Of Gunman Die

Police Continue Roundup to Catch Elusive Murderer.

Four colored suspects were being grilled by police last night in an effort to find the murderer of Newell T. Styles, 35-year-old bank teller, and James Johnson, 38, colored, both of whom were shot fatally by a mysterious gunman Saturday night.

Styles died at Emergency Hospital yesterday morning. Johnson, the second victim of the same assailant, who pulled his trigger under the influence of liquor or a drug for no apparent cause, succumbed at Garfield Hospital yesterday evening.

Stepping out of the darkness in the 900 block of M street northwest, Saturday night, where Styles, the father of two children, had parked his car, the gun wielder fired as his victim stepped from the running board. Johnson was shot as the criminal fled.

Styles, who lived at 1410 Military road northwest, was employed by the Security Savings and Commercial Bank, Ninth and G streets. Besides his children, he is survived by his widow. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late yesterday.

Long before Styles died, Detective Sergt. George E. Darnall sent Detective Sergts. Jerry Flaherty and Clyde Strange on the case.

Tribesman Opposes Indians' 'New Deal'

Sees Rich Indians Losers Under Plan.

The Administration's proposed "New Deal for Indians" legislation is likely to have the effect of making wealthy red men give up their property to landless Indians, Chief Noah Sauskin of the Yakima Tribe in Oregon told the House Indian Affairs Committee yesterday.

Chief Noah, speaking through an interpreter, also objected to the provisions in the bill providing for education of the Indians in public schools. He said that when boarding schools were conducted on the Reservations youths were taught vocational subjects which left them better fitted for life than they are under the present public school system.

Ralph Fredenberg, fepresenting the Menominee Trime of Wisconsin, and Joseph W. Brown, of the Blackfeet Tribal Council, both spoke in favor of the bill.

Civic Leaders Laud The Post's Essay Contest

Dr. A. T. Hall, O. T. Wingo Praise Aid Given Study of Government.

The encouragement offered students of government through the Washington Post Scholarship Competition was commended in messages received at The Post yesterday from two local leaders in Government research, Dr. Arnold Bennett Hall, director of the Brookings Institution, and Otis T. Wingo, jr., executive secretary of the National Institution of Public Affairs.

Dr. Hall, who also is a member of the executive committee of the National Institution of Public Affairs, has long felt the lack of adequate encouragement and training of potential governmental leaders in this country. As founder and chairman of the National Conference on Science of Politics, political science lecturer, president of the University of Oregon, and, since 1932, director of the Brookings institution, he has, himself, contributed much in past years toward advancement of education and science in the political field.

"I have followed with much interest the progress of The Post Scholarship Competition," stated Dr. Hall in a communication to the editor, "and believe you are doing a very constructive service. I wish to congratulate you upon it."

Constructive Effort.

"Reaching down into the high schools and encouraging constructive and competitive effort of this type will conceivably uncover for the public service many potential geniuses who otherwise might never come to light. I wish you every possible success in your enterprise."

Mr. Wingo, whose institution is undertaking to select college juniors and seniors and post graduates, through regional eliminations, and bring them to Washington each winter for three months practical training and lecture courses in governmental problems, stated his hope that The Post Competition would unearth much latent political talent in the youth of this country.

"I am especially interested in the fact that your division winners, who are competing for scholarships in campus finals during the present month, are in most cases the honor students of their schools. It is encouraging to directors of my undertaking to learn that the leading graduates of high schools are in so many cases ambitious for political, rather than business, training and that your winners will have the opportunity to pursue their further studies in universities here in the Nation's Capital. All success to you in this fine work."

Catholic U. Finals.

The winner of the scholarship offered by the Catholic University of America will be chosen on Saturday next in an all-day finals on the campus of that institution, with seven boys, who have defeated hundreds of opponents in preliminaries, contending for the prize. They include Albert J. Laun, Mount St. Mary's Preparatory School, Emmitsburg, Md.; Robert H. Gardiner, jr., Boyce, Va., Agricultural High School, and the following local winners:

Joseph Michalowicz, Gonzaga High School; John Patrick Walsh, St. John's High School; Earle W. Martyne, Eastern High School; Richard Logan, Western High School, and Robert M. Winfree, McKinley High School.

Finals for the scholarship offered by the School of Foreign Service at Georgetown University will be conducted May 9 at that institution, with ten finalists competing in examinations supervised by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, regent, and Dr. Thomas H. Healy, assistant dean of the school.

Nineteen girls and seven boys will convene from all parts of the competition's area Saturday, May 12, at the College of Liberal Arts of American University, to compete for two scholarships offered by that institution, one for a girl and one for a boy.

At Howard University finals, held last Saturday on its campus, Ernestine Greene, honor senior at Cardozo High School in this city, was awarded the full tuition scholarship offered by Howard's Undergraduate College. An intelligence standard higher than the National average was reported by the Howard examining committee in its estimate of the 14 finalists who participated in that institution's psychological and academic tests for the scholarship award.

Fresh Bonus Army Is Due In D.C. Today

Inflation Fears Behind New Movement to Collect Now.

With a vanguard of 100 marchers due to arrive today and 1,000 more already on the road, Washington is due to entertain another bonus march of considerable proportions, Harold Hickerson, secretary of the Veterans National Rank and File Committee, which has ordered the invasion, said yesterday.

Tomorrok, Hickerson, he and members of the committee will go to the White House and demand that the Government furnish food and shelter to the veterans, who, he says, are coming to demand cash payment of the bonus, full restoration of former veterans' benefits, and an unemployment relief program.

Perhaps as many marchers as the more than 20,000 of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces ejected by soldiery in 1932 will rally to Washington, Hickerson declared. Meanwhile, John Alferi, the "one-man bonus army," who arrived here a month ago, said that 600 or 700 veterans were already in Washington, quartered in "flop houses."

Alferi Discounts March.

Alferi, who says that he is not interested in the march, belittled Hickerson's estimates, saying that he did not believe that more than 700 men would be here by May 10. He urged the marchers to be orderly or they will be termed "a bunch of bums and troublemakers."

One reason for the march, Hickerson said, is that among veterans there is a growing belief that there will be a currency inflation and the bonus will be paid with "dollars worth 5 cents." For the same cause, they are against the Patman bill, he said.

Hickerson said that he had received no reply from Monday's letter to the President which said:

"The committee expects you to use your office in procuring a permit for a parade of veterans. . . ."

Fort Hunt Decried.

Fort Hunt, where the Army cooks broiled bacon for 3,300 marchers, quartered in Army tents, during last summer's march, will not be acceptable as a hotel for this season's bonus marchers, Hickerson said.

The committee desires tents within two miles of the city, the secretary said, adding that the circus grounds at Fifth and New York avenue northeast would be acceptable as would Anacostia Park, for "sentimental reasons." It was in Anacostia Park that a majority of the 1932 marchers built huts, which were fired by the evacuation troops.

Bands of veterans in the far West, who have started for Washington, have been arrested by United States marshals, although unmolestetd by local officers, Hickerson said. He said that this meant the Administration was trying to prevent the gathering.

Gaul's "The Holy City" To Be Given Sunday

Alfred Robert Gaul's "The Holy City" will be presented by the Washington Oratorio Society next Sunday at 4 p. m. in the Central High School auditorium, under the direction of George F. Kortzenborn. The event is sponsored by the Community Center Department.

This oratorio, which has enjoyed a wide popularity, contains many melodic numbers, and is distinguished for its four fine choral figures. The soloists will be Lillian Latham, soprano; Jessie Dunlop Werner, contralto; Kroom Bagranov, tenor, and Robert Frederick Freund, barytone. Gertrude Dyer will be at the organ and Marjorie Davis at the piano.

Apartment Raiders Fail to Make Her Tell Where $300 Is Hidden.

Angered when Mrs. Jean Petter, 39, refused to reveal the hiding place of her husband's money, two armed thugs, after forcing entrance to her apartment yesterday, clubbed her into unconsciousness and escaped through downtown streets.

Mrs. Petter told police the two strangers appeared at her second-floor apartment in the 400 block of G street northwest shortly after 7 a. m. They crowded past her when she opened the door in response to their knocks.

Both men, she declared, drew guns and demanded to know where her husband kept his money. She refused to disclose the hiding place, Mrs. Petter said, and after ransacking the apartment the men ordered her to open a trunk. She again refused and one of them struck her with the butt of his revolver.

Mrs. Petter fell unconscious to the floor. The men fled to the street and disappeared before passers-by or residents of the building knew what had happened.

Neighbors took Mrs. Petter to Emergency Hospital. Physicians reported she suffered severe lacerations of her head and face. The woman told police her husband was a huckster and that approximately $300 was secreted in the trunk she was ordered to open.

Michigan Votes Down Public Works Bonds

Detroit, May 1 (AP).—Approximately 300,000 Michigan taxpayers voted in the State-wide referendum Monday on the administration proposal for a bond issue of $37,874,458 to provide employment in public works, and close to 250,000 of them turned thumbs down on the suggestion.

When the tabulation of returns was discontinued today the negative vote stood at 244,110 against 46,773 affirmative ballots. The returns came from 3,221 of the State's 3,438 precincts. Only one county was missing.

Army Asked to Dump Mud at Gravelly Point

To speed work toward preparing Gravelly Point for development as an airport, as provided in the Gibson bill, the directors of the Washington Chamber of Commerce recommended yesterday that the chief engineer of the Army be authorized to dump earth on the site whenever dredging is being done in the Potomac.

This, it was pointed out, would contribute to the filling in of the point which is now covered by about three feet of water.

Millen-Faber Murder Trial Halt Is Refused

Dedham, Mass., May 1 (AP).—The Federal court, through Judge James M. Morton, today refused to halt the Millen-Faber murder trial.

Ruling on a petition of counsel for Murton and Irving Millen, who with Abe Faber are charged with slaying a policeman during a bank robbery in Needham, February 2, Judge Morton said he would not interfere with the conduct of the trial, now in its third week at Dedham courthouse.

Funeral Rites For Gen. Scott Set Tomorrow

Full Military Honors to Attend Burial in Arlington.

Funeral services will be held for Gen. Hugh L. Scott, retired former chief of staff of the Army, at Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow.

Last rites for the famous Indian fighter, who also was known as the friend of the Red Man, will be accompanied by full military honors. Funeral services will be held at 10:30 a. m. at Washington Cathedral, with Bishop James A. Freeman officiating, and burial at Arlington will follow.

The cortege will be met at the Fort Myer gate of the cemetery by a military guard.

Spent Last Years at Princeton.

Gen. Scott died Monday night at Walter Reed Hospital in his eighty-first year. He was taken to the hospital two months ago from his home in Princeton, N. J., where he had spent the final years of his retirement near the university which is rich in the tradition of his family.

With him at his death were his wife and one of the three daughters who survive him.

As soon as he was graduated from West Point in 1876, Gen. Scott was sent against the Sioux in South Dakota and Montana. At the time of his death he was chairman of the New Jersey State highway commission. He served in this post also in 1932, when the Pulaski Skyway was dedicated at Newark and made, at this time, one of his last public appearances.

Recorded Sign Language.

As recently as 1931 he called the Indian tribes, his friends and former foes, into a final pow-wow at Browning, Mont., where he made a permanent record of the sign language of the Red Man for the Library of Congress.

As a result of this pow-wow, and Gen. Ccott's studious observations and painstaking recording, the language, which otherwise might have become extinct, was preserved intact for posterity.

It was Gen. Scott who recommended Gen. Pershing to be commander of the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War.

Pershing Pays Honor.

Gen. Pershing paid touching tribute to Gen. Scott yesterday.

"The passing of Gen. Scott ends a most remarkable career," Gen. Pershing said. "Devotion to duty and loyalty to authority were his outstanding traits of character. The Army has produced no finer soldier. He lived up to the lofty ideals of West Point and he was the embodiment of the highest type of officer and gentleman."

Gen. Scott is survived by his widow and three daughters, Mrs. David Stockton and Miss Huston Scott, both of Princeton, N. J., and Miss Mary Blanchard Scott, of New York. He also leaves a son, Lewis Merrill Scott. A second son, Col. David Hunter Scott, died in active service in the World War.

D. C. Budget Raise Likely After Parley

Douglas and Members of Senate Committee Talk Finances.

New System of Handling Urged as Solution for Future.

Increases in appropriations for various municipal functions and an increase in the Federal appropriation above the figure recommended by the Budget Bureau was forecast yesterday following a discussion of District fiscal affairs between the Senate District Appropriations subcommittee and Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget.

Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, committee chairman, described the discussion as "satisfactory and beneficial" to the committee and the District. The discussion took place behind closed doors and neither Mr. Douglas nor members of the committee would disclose what was said.

The conference, however, was believed to have furthered the growing movement among members of the Senate interested in District affairs to work out a new system of handling District appropriations and fixing the amount of the annual Federal appropriation toward the maintenance and development of the National Capital.

Senators Favorable.

The question is too complicated and the life of the present session is too short, however, for the question to be threshed out in connection with the pending annual appropriation bill committee, members feel.

Senator Thomas, Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), New York, and Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, have declared themselves in favor of a well-considered revision of the existing machinery.

Senator Capper said he planned to draft a measure to achieve the desired end and introduce it to the Senate before adjournment, so that it could be available for discussion during the recess between sessions.

Hearing Resumed Today.

Senator Copeland has proposed elimination of the Budget Bureau from District appropriation matters. Under his proposal, which has not been reduced to definite, detailed form, the District Commissioners would make their appropriation recommendations directly to Congress.

Such a proposal was advanced several months ago by Melvin C. Hazen, District Commissioner, but it met with considerable opposition among members of the House and also with some of the members of the Senate.

Hearings on various items in the appropriation bill will be resumed at 10:30 a. m. today, with representatives of various civic and business organizations and individuals to be heard. Senator Thomas said he expected to complete the hearings today or tomorrow.

3 Boy's Club Members Win Trips to Chicago

Free trips to the Century of Progress Exposition were awarded yesterday by the Boys Club of Washington to three of its outstanding members, Byron Sharp, 15, Irving Hayman, 16, and Arthur Dintaman, 14.

Sharp's trip came as a reward for his exceptional work in the wood working shop. Hayman displayed his ability in the print shop, while Dintaman's hand drawing and cartooning gained him the much coveted trip.

Walt Mason, Himself

The Knight.

The brave knight had his say, upon a bygone day; he charmed the birds with golden words as he went on his way. "My love is young and fair, my love has golden hair, with eyes so blue and heart so true that none with her compare." To show his heart was right he sallied forth to fight, and some one's spear went through his gear, and so he died that night. And ballads celebrate that brave and dauntless skate, who died to show, as lovers go, he was a heavyweight. It was a foolish trick; 'twould make fair women sick in these stern days if loving jays should die and fail to click. The modern knight must strive to keep himself alive, so he can buy the needed pie and honey from the hive. We see him bravely soar down to the dry goods store, to pay those bills of gentle Jill's, so she can run some more. To buy her handsome hats, imported Maltese cats, and silken hose and furbelows, he strains his weary slats. He stakes her with a car and this is better far than 'tis to prance with sword and lance, some other knights to jar Insurance he'll provide, to guard his lovely bride, in case, some year, the gangs appear and take him for a ride. The old knight was a jest; the modern knight is best: he puts up ice, at any price, until he goes to rest.

Four Upsets Mark Post Golf Play

Mrs. Rowdall, Mrs. Marr, Mrs. Simons and Mrs. Beller Beaten.

Elizabeth Houghton and Mrs. MacKenzie Are Triumphant.

OLD MAN UPSET cast his spell over the treacherous Chevy Chase links yesterday in the first round of The Washington Post match play with handicap golf tournament, and four of the favored players were abruptly eliminated.

Those who felt the sting of defeat were Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, of Congressional; Mrs. Howard J. Simons, of Manor, Mrs. J. W. Beller, of Chevy Chase, and Mrs. J. A. Marr, of Columbia.

Mrs. Beller, a 10 handicap player, conceded Mrs. William Morrison Smith, of Columbia, 7 strokes, and lost by 5 and 3. Mrs. N. J. Waldron, of Beaver Dam, with an 18 handicap, playing in her best form, defeated Mrs. Simons, 12 handicap entry, 4 and 3. Mrs. Dowdall, spotting Mrs. Bishop Hill, of Chevy Chase, 5 strokes, bowed by 3 and 2, and Mrs. Marr, with a 12 handicap, lost to Mrs. David McPherson, of Manor, 18 handicap, 4 and 3.

Gain Second Round.

Meanwhile, last year's champion, Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of the host club, and the low net winner, Mrs. Roland Mackenzie, of Congressional, advanced to the second round. Miss Houghton, giving away 6 shots, conquered Mrs. C. B. Stewart, of Washington, 4 and 3. Miss Houghton finished with a 94. Mrs. Mackenzie, 13 handicap player, gave away 4 strockes to Mrs. J. J. McCarthy, of Congressional, after being 1 own at the end of the ninth. Mrs. Mackenzie shot a 92.

In the most exciting match of the day Mrs. Alma Von Steiner, of Congressional, defeated Mrs. Harvey Cooper, of Kenwood, 2 and 1 in 26 holes. They were even at the end of eighteen, and the rules of handicap tournaments call for nine additional holes. Mrs. Morris E. Irwin, of Beaver Dam, 1933 runner-up, won from Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, of Woodmont, in an interesting match, and Mrs. H. R. Quinter, Columbia star, scored a 45—48—93 in overcoming Mrs. J. F. Godfrey, public links ace, 4 and 3. Mrs. Quinter, giving away 4 strokes, saw a good first nine score ruined by a 9 and a 5 on the eighth and ninth holes.

Mrs. Wrong Defaults.

Mrs. Hume H. Wrong, Chevy Chase, defaulted to Mrs. George H. Parker, Kenwood, after they had tied at the end of 18 holes. Mrs. McCook-Knox, of the home club, scored quite a victory over Mrs. David Key, former English golfer, 4 and 3, and Miss Florence Scott, Manor, won a thriller from Mrs. A. W. Tucker, Beaver Dam, 1 up.

The defeated 16 will form a consolation division this morning. Play will be resumed at 8:50, with close matches predicted in the second round of the title flight.

Nats, Needing Relief Hurler, May Bring Back Alec McColl

By Frank H. Young.

LIKE the fellow who went all over the world seeking a four-leaf clover and failed to find one until he reached his own doorstep when returning home, President Clark Griffith thinks he has discovered the relief pitcher he seeks for the Nats right in his own back yard. Alec McColl, the veteran rookie, is the lad referred to and he is due to pitch for the Lookouts tomorrow afternoon. If he performs well, he will be immediately recalled by the Nats.

McColl, the right-hander who is just the type Manager Joe Cronin needs to help out Jack Russell in utility roles, underwent an arm operation last winter and then could not get his salary wing working at the Biloxi training camp this spring. He was sent to Chattanooga, where he put himself under the care of the Lookouts' trainer. Recently McColl wrote Griffith that he had tested out his arm and found it O. K., but the Nat owner wants to make sure before bringing McColl back.

Condition Critical.

With Russell tired out and in need of a rest, due to having been called into action in eight of the 13 games the Nats have already played, his assignment last Monday being his fifth in a row, Cronin is really up against it. He apparently has not much confidence in Ed Linke and Mark Filley, young right-handers; does not want to overwork his "Big Four" of Earl Whitehill, Walter Stewart, Monte Weaver and Al Thomas by using them as starters and relief men, too, and "Gen." Al Crowder is not ready. This leaves only Bob Burke and Ray Prim, both southpaws, for relief duty, and a right-handed worker to help out in this respect is absolutely needed.

The New York Yankees will end their visit here this afternoon, while Al Thomas is named to do the Nat flinging. He will be opposed by chesty Johnny Allen.

Wilbert (Uncle Robbie) Robinson, one of baseball's immortals, whose last big league job was managing the Brooklyn Daffiness Boys, was a visitor at yesterday's game. He is now president of the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern Association, and is in search of cast-off big league talent. He got none here.

The Yanks could hit everything but singles in the first inning, their four hits being a homer by Gehrig, a triple by Ruth and doubles by Hoag and Lazzeri.

Andy Sierra, the elongated southpaw pitcher recommended to the Nats by Senator Pat Harrison and tried out at the Biloxi camp, got plenty of experience there but now finds that he will be unable to use it. He wrote Manager Cronin yesterday from his Gulfport home saying that he has been declared ineligible to pitch for the local high school team. His amateur status was not questioned, for Sierra drew no pay, but the school fathers took the ground that what he learned in the big league camp gave him too much of an advantage over the other school league flingers.

Red Sox Pound A's Hurlers; Win, 7to 2

Salters, Bishop Hitting Stars; Mackmen Held Scoreless Until 9th.

BOSTON, May 1 (AP).—Henry Johnson, Boston Red Sox right-handed ace, was in sparkling form for eight innings today as his mates slugged a trio of Philadelphia pitchers for 12 hits and a 7-2 victory. Johnson had eight strike-outs and held the Athletics scoreless until the ninth, when doubles by Ed Coleman, Jimmy Foxx and Eric McNair provided a pair of runs.

Cain Knocked Out.

The Sox belted Merritt ("Sugar") Cain for ten hits before driving him from the mound in the seventh. Bill Walters knicked him for a homer with one on in the sixth. Julius Solters helped Johnson gain his first victory of the season by slamming out a single, double and triple, and Maxey Bishop obliged with two singles and a double.

Tribe Tops Chisox Behind Hudlin, 12-1

Pounds Out 15-Hit Total, Including 4 Homers.

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Cleveland's Indians backed up Willis Hudlin's fine pitching today with a home-run assault to wallop the Chicago White Sox, 12 to 1, and even the series.

Hudlin, making his 1934 debut, held the Sox, who laced Cleveland hurlers for 18 hits yesterday, to five singles and scoreless until the eighth inning. While the big right-hander was stopping the Sox, his mates clouted Milt Gaston, John Pomorski, Lee Stine and Ted Lyons for 15 blows, including home runs by Joe Vosmik, Earl Averill, Odell Hale and Bill Knickerbocker. Vosmik's homer was his second in two days, and Knickerbocker's came with the bases loaded in the sixth, topping a five-run rally.

Roesch Tops Qualifying With 73

Fondren Cards a 71, but Withdraws; 100 More Compete Today.

FRANK ROESCH, young host club star and former District champion, set the pace yesterday in the first day's qualifying round of the Washington Golf and Country Club invitation tournament. With only one bad hole to mar an otherwise sparkling round, Roesch basked in the glory that was his some years ago by shooting a 73, three over par, to hold a two-stroke lead over M. Parker Nolan, long-driving Indian Spring ace; Capt. Kendall J. Fielder, of Army and Navy, and Ralph Fowler, of the home club.

Roesch found himself in front by reason of the unexpected withdrawal of W. D. (Dub) Fondren, 26-year-old Augusta, Ga., champion, who blazed home late in the afternoon with a brilliant 71. Immediately upon holing out for his par 4 on the home green, the curly-haired Dixie star announced that he would not turn in his card because pressing business would prevent him from participating in the match play rounds.

Is Near Record.

Fondren, out in 36 and back in 35, came within two shots of equalling the competitive course record. He started with a birdie 3, three-putted four greens, and lipped the cup for eagles on the fourth and fifteenth.

Roesch was 1 under par until he was short with his approach on the ninth, where he took a 4 to round the turn in 35. Roesch's only real bad hole came on the fifteenth, a 446-yarder, par 5. He was ditched on his drive, ditched on his second, and took a 7.

A streak of bad putting cost Tommy Webb, jr., of Washington, a 77, the same score posted by Martin F. McCarthy, Columbia; R. T. Harrell, Washington, and J. D. Stefano, an unattached player. Miller Stevinson, the Columbia "war horse," sho t78, as did Beverly Mason, jr., of Chevy Chase, who played with Fondren. Thirteen golfers broke 80.

200 in Competition.

Close to 100 competed yesterday, and just that many will try their luck today. Some of the better known golfers—Harry Pitt, Luther Steward, Gene Vinson, and Roger Peacock, will be on the firing line today.

Cards of Roesch and Fondren:

Out par ...... 4 3 4 5 4 4 4 4 3—35

Tigers Bench Goslin, Beat Browns

Hank Greenberg Placed in Clean-up Post, Help in 5-to-4 Win.

DETROIT, May 1 (AP).—Manager Mickey Cochrane benched Leon (Goose) Goslin and moved Hank Greenberg into the clean-up position today and the result was a 5-to-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The Tigers came from behind to take the victory after trailing until the eighth inning, when, with two out, Greenberg and Walker singled and then scored when White tripled. Walker's run constituted the deciding margin.

Neither Fischer nor Hadley, who started on the mound for Detroit and St. Louis, respectively, finished the game. The former was supplanted by a pinch hitter in the seventh after allowing eight hits. Hadley retired in the sixth after being touched for seven. Marberry finished for Detroit while the Browns called on first Knott and then Wells.

Roosevelt Nine Nips Tech in 12th, 8-7

ROOSEVELT HIGH overcome a 5-run lead in an interhigh series game against Tech at Eastern Stadium yesterday and finally outlasted the Manual Trainers in a 12-inning battle to win, 8 to 7. The steady relief pitching of bespeckled Jimmy Elgin, after Roosevelt had battered two Tech twirlers for 14 hits and 7 runs in the first six innings, was one of two principal factors in the successful uphill battle of the Techmen. Elgin allowed three hits and pitched shut-out ball for the last six and one-third frames.

The other was the timely hitting of Stevie Beach, Tech right fielder, who scored the tying run in the ninth on Sonny Hurley's single after lining cleanly over the infield, stealing second and taking third on an infield out, and won the game in the twelfth with a rousing triple to center with Wilmuth on first.

Giants Conquer Dodgers, Cut Cubs' Lead

NEW YORK, May 1 (AP). — The Giants today won their second game in a row from their neighbors across the East River, the Brooklyn Dodgers, and reduced Chicago's National League lead to a half game. But it wasn't until after they had suffered several scares that they came out on the long end of a 10-to-9 score.

Uhle Leader In Winning Attack

Washington Outhits Foe, Stages Three Rallies Without Avail.

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor of The Post).

THE glory that was Greece is not to be mentioned in the same inhalation with the glory that returned to the vaunted bats of the New York Yankees yesterday, and by that token, an old-fashioned series of eruptions from the Yankees hitters, the Nats went down to something resembling inglorious defeat, 10 to 5.

Just by way of illustrating what was happening out there at Griffith's bal lyard yesterday, it might be mentioned that it required the Yankees more than six innings to get an ordinary single. But of doubles, triples and home runs there had been plenty, as an overgrown box score can attest.

But is was still a ball game in the ninth, a 5-5 bal lgame, but their little world crashed down about the ears of the Washington pitchers in that final inning when five large and luscious Yankee runs came stampeding across the plate to put the Nats i ntheir place—fifth place.

Yankees are Outhit.

Numerically speaking, the Nats outhit the Yankees, 15 to 14, but, barring an overnight change in the rules, they are stil lpaying off on runs scored and thus the Yanks handed the Nats a second straight set-back.

They had another hitting pitcher with them yesterday, did the Yanks. He was wancient George Uhle, who stepped up to the plate in that ninth with the winning run on third base, and whacked a rollicking triple over Fred Schulte's head in center field to deposit the victory to the credit of the Yanks.

They had hitting pitchers, hitting outfielders, hitting infielders and hitting catchers, did the Yanks, and the box score tells eloquently of their deeds against four Washington pitchers—Walter Stewart, Al Crowder, Bobby Burke and Ray Primm, all of whom performed with equal futility.

Three-Baggers Aplenty.

They were specializing in triples mostly, with Babe Ruth, Ben Chapman, Don Heffner, Uhle and Earl Combs pounding out three-baggers, but Gehrig, the laddie known as Lou, lent a little home-run relief with a circuit clout over the left field wall and some two-base hits by Hoag, Lazzeri and Ruth helped to break the monotony of the three-baggers.

As I was saying, it was still a ball game in the ninth with the score tied at 5-5, and the starting pitchers, Wally Stewart and Danny MacFayden, long since departed, but Alvin Crowder ran into a one-two punch in that ninth.

Little Don Heffner, the Baltimore recruit, swung from his heels on one of Crowder's pitches and smacked a triple into center field. They let Uhle bat for himself in deference to the fact that he can hit, and with the three and two count on him, Uhle larruped a pitch into deep center for three bases. Out went Crowder and in came Bobby Burke, but the Yankees withheld

Somebody Finishes Fast to Triumph in Three-Horse Blanket Finish at Pimlico

Round Table Beaten by Head

Gains Place in Feature by Same Margin Over Snappy Stories.

Apprehensive Is Opener Winner, $15,50; Chase Goes to Inception.

By Walter Haight.
(Post Staff Correspondent.)

PIMLICO RACE TRACK, May 1.—Somebody, a game little colt which aims to earn a living racing for the Maemere Farm, brought a few loads of hay and oats for his barn today when he poked his head in front of Round Table, which poked his head in front of Snapp Story. The occasion was the thrilling finish of The Towson, a mile and 70 yards contest which drew a field of six and furnished the feature race of the afternoon.

In fact, Somebody was nobody until nine-tenths of the race had been completed. The colt was last on the dash for the first turn, while Moon Glory and Believer fought for the lead. On the backstretch, Round Table came up to run Moon Glory into defeat, and Snappy Story and Somebody began their moves. At the head of the stretch, Round Table seemed to have things his own way, but the real battle began at the quarter pole. Here Somebody went up to struggle with Round Table and Snappy Story began to close on the top pair. In the final drive, Litzenberger just got Somebody up in time to nip the decision.

Only 5,000 on Hand.

Pimlico, where everything has been cut but the end of the spacious stands, drew a crowd estimated at 5,000, although the day was ideal for the sport at hand.

Apprehensive, the horse which Jockey Buddy Handford was riding when he was killed here a year ago, scored an easy victory over a group of six sprinters in the opening event. Earl Porter had the mount and brought the filly home four lengths in advance of Nourrice, an outsider. Rustic Cuba was third. Apprehensive overcame a squeezing on the back stretch to draw away at the finish. Meloy and Drumbo, heavily played, did not figure in the principal running. The winner was a $15.60 mutuel.

Mrs. Katherine E. Hitt, whose horses are beginning to figure with regularity in races here, saw her Barcaolle score a nose decision over First Roundup in the second race, a dash for juveniles. Blackbirder accounted for third money and might have won it all in a few more strides. The winner was the chief pacesetter and paid $13.10.

Inception Leads Jumpers.

Gentlemen riders and a group of jumpers furnished the entertainment in the third race. Victory came to the horse Inception and the rider, R. Woolfe. It was a bit of the hunting country horsemanship over a course of 2½ miles. Inception set all the pace after Areska ran out after leading the pack for half of the route. Iollan was second and Arundel was third. There was one fall in the race—dubbed the Mount Alto Steeplechase. Blue Zip skidded and tumbled at the fifteenth fence, but E. D. Bowman escaped with a shaking up. The victory was popular, Inception being backed into favoritism to pay a $6.50 mutuel.

Evangelist broke off the inside rail and was never headed in the fourth race, another juvenile dash. Jockey Burke rode home three lengths ahead of Mister Gander, a Whitneyite, making his first start, with No Saint third. Evangelist was one of several well-played horses and rewarded with an $8.70 mutuel.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARCAROLLE, $13.10, $6.50, $4.70; FIRST ROUNDUP, $6.10, $3.90; BLACKBIRDER, $3.70.

BARCAROLLE, hurried into command directly after the start, continued strongly when placed to a hard drive, and vigorously handled approaching the finish, just lasted long enough. FIRST ROUNDUP, a keen factor from the beginning, slipped through on the inside of the winner and finished in resolute fashion. BLACKBIRDER, slow to get going and forced to circle his field, came with a belated rush during the final drive. COLOR BEARER raced well placed and had no excuses. GUNWALE lost ground throughout. LITTLE WACKIE weakened gradually. TRULY YOURS broke sluggishly. He closed stoutly when in stride. RUSTIC JOE broke in a tangle, and was never a factor. HIGH IMAGE raced greenly.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—INCEPTION, $6.50, $4.30, $3.20; IOLLAN, $5.50, $4.00; ARUNDEL, $10.20.

INCEPTION, nicely handled from the beginning, fenced cleverly for the entire trip, and under mild pressure, had enough left to stall off IOLLAN. Latter, reserved off the first mile and one-half, responded stoutly when put to a drive, and then finished with good energy. ARUNDEL went in the thick of contention, but tired steadily in the late stages. KIM saved ground throughout, forced his way through a tight passage going to the twelfth fence, and then finished willingly. OUTLAW could not better his position. JUSTA KING ran out of the course at the thirteenth fence. He was taken back and completed the journey. WEEYA made a bad landing at the fourth jump, and trailed far back thereafter. BLUE ZIP fell at the fifteenth jump. ARESKA had nice speed for one and one-half miles. He bolted out of the course going to the thirteenth fence.

FOURTH RACE—Four and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. The Calvert. For 2-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 3:51. Off at 3:54. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EVANGELIST, $8.70, $4.80, $2.90; MISTER GANDER, $4.00, $2.80; NO SAINT, $2.50.

EVANGELIST began quickly, and displaying nice speed to resist NO SAINT in the early stages, was put to a hard drive when midway of the home stretch, and drew out under vigorous handling. MISTER GANDER broke slowly, secured racing room on the inside until entering the front stretch, and then closed stoutly. NO SAINT was hard ridden from the start. He faltered fast during the closing furlong. NIGHT SERGE showed a good performance, and finished on the inside. GOLDEN DREAM lost ground in the early stages. DANCING QUEEN was never able to better her position. PAPER MOON was outrun. TRIPLE STAR and LEAFLETTE were never factors.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,000; allowances. The Towson. For 3-year-olds. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:19. Off at 4:25. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOMEBODY, $6.90, $4.40, $2.90; ROUND TABLE, $6.90, $4.40; SNAPPY STORY, $4.70.

SOMEBODY, reserved off the early pace until reaching his best stride, came strongly in the final drive, and closing fast while finishing between ROUND TABLE and SNAPPY STORY, was up in the last strides. ROUND TABLE, prominent from the beginning, took command midway of the final turn, but bore out badly during the losing sixteenth, and faltered under punishment. SNAPPY STORY, going in improved fashion, was going stoutly at the end. MOON GLORY was rushed off his feet to set the pace, and weakened badly. LAW SUIT had no excuses. BELIEVER was done after five furlongs. EARNINGS was never a factor.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:49. Off at 4:50. Winner, W. G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—LAWLESS LADY, $8.10, $3.80, $2.90; ONEILL, $3.20, $2.70; ST. CHRISTOPHER, $3.20.

LAWLESS LADY moved into a forward position with a rush when settled on the back stretch, wore ONEILL down without effort, and then drew out at her leisure during the stretch run. ONEILL, hurried to the front, shook off FAIR BILLY while saving ground, but was no match for the winner when challenged. ST. CHRISTOPHER improved his position gradually, but could not threaten the leaders. ROYAL CHARGE went strongly for the first seven furlongs, then tired. LIGHT BREEZE was held safe. FAIR BILLY stopped. Pirates Beat Cubs, 4-1; Rookie Gives Five Hits

Pittsburgh, May 1 (AP).—Ralph Birkofer, rookie left-hander of the Pirates, stopped the rampaging Cubs today, holding the league leaders to five hits while the Pirates won, 4 to 1. The Cubs put together a double by Judges and a single by English in the eighth to save themselves from a shutout.

Birkofer added to his cause by driving out a long double that scored two runs in the second inning. The southpaw's second hit, a single in the fourth, drove Charles Root to the showers.

Dear Al: Pimlico Race Track, May 1.

The business of chasing Chase Me will be resumed tomorrow afternoon at this track. The big gelded son of Purchase is the racer which galloped to six victories last year after having spent most of his life as a pet of Mrs. John Bosley, jr., and her family. Chase Me, a mighty popular horse with the betting gentry, may bring this track a fair-sized midweek crowd. Pimlico needs a crowd, too. Pimlico, which once caused Congress to adjourn so that its members could see a match contest, is giving races these days with a cold shoulder, so to speak, with no music and no calling of the races over the loud speakers. If it were not for the occasional boos at the close finishes, I would expect the ghosts of some of the turf plungers of the 1870's to flitter out on the track and do a ballet dance. BILL.

First race—Rhadamanthus has disappointed several times. However, he might have disliked the Havre de Grace track and deserves another chance. Workman will have the mount and the Washington boy is in rare form. Gitapp and Black Falson appear to have the edge on the others.

Second race—Sun Teaparty comes to the races for the first time well recommended by trials and Kurtsinger may ride this one home at the first asking. Nevery Nella had a rough trip last out and could be second here. Olge to take care of the remainder of the field.

Third race—Adpheus likes the Pimlico jumping course and is said to have schooled well this spring. Bagatelle and Escapade are fair timbertoppers and will make a race of it.

Fourth race—Dawnchild received a miserable ride from Jockey Jacobs the other day and I'm not condemning her for that effort. Litzenberger is scheduled to ride tomorrow and I expect a whale of a difference. Chips and Repeal will be close.

Fifth race—Chase Me makes his first start of the year in this mile and 70 yards test and looks like the best bet of the day. His public trial here yesterday showed him to be in form. He packs weight but should handle it well. Chatmoss and Larranaga for the remainder.

Sixth race—Cattail drops down a peg here to run for a new owner and I believe he can take the measure of Crazy Jane. The latter is fit and ready. Clonard for the show.

Seventh race—King's Pleasure may resume his winning ways in this heat. The Happy Time gelding has Whoa Back and Sun Lore to beat.

Eighth race—All Rowes appears to stand out over this cheap field. Chief's Troubador will be dangerous if he gets in action. Brad has a fighting chance.

V. M. I. Teams Facing Old Rivals

Baseball Nine Plays W.&M. Today; Trackmen to Enter Meet.

LEXINGTON, Va., May 1 (Spl.).—V. M. I. teams will receive stiff competition from strong and ancient rivals this week. The varsity ball players will play twice on Alumni Field, entertaining William and Mary tomorrow and Virginia Tech on Saturday. The Techmen will be played for the second time this season, the first game at Blacksburg having been called on account of darkness with the teams deadlocked 5-5 in eight innings.

Varsity and freshman track teams will represent V. M. I. at Blacksburg in the State meet for Southern Conference teams. The Cadets placed second to Virginia last year when the meet was held on Alumni Field. V. M. I. hopes depend largely on Capt. Hill Wellford, undefeated in the 440 and 880; Gwynne Tayloe, sophomore sprinter who has bowed only to Little of William and Mary; Temple Ryland, State meet champion last year in the javelin throw and holder of the V. M. I. record in the event, and Bill Burruss, who shaded ten minutes in the 2-mile, run last week.

Nosed Out Tech.

The Cadets nosed out Tech by a single point in an exciting dual meet Saturday, but things may be different when Virginia and Washington and Lee scorers gather points. Jim Farley, weight man, and Hansdell Pasco, all-round entry, are the best bets of the Cadet freshmen. Henry Read and Stuart Smith are showing improvement in the 880 and mile runs, while Zimmerman and Scruggs are heaving the javelin well.

Coach Bill Raftery expects to start Irvin Smith on the mound against Virginia Tech Saturday. The same right-hander, or one of two sophomores, Bill O'Brien or Alex Neal, will get the call against the Indians. Marvin Bair, another sophomore, will be back in the outfield after having helped the track team triumph over V. P. I. when he scored eight points.

The Freshman ball players, with a victory over Greenbrier to their credit, played the V. P. I. Freshmen Tuesday. They will take on the Virginia Freshmen at Lexington Thursday, with their pitching ace, Wayne Lugar, on the mound.

Stocks Close Unchanged on Better Support

Demand Is Attributed to Covering; Sales Total 1,367,350 Shares.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Stocks found somewhat better support today, but rallying tendencies were poorly defined and net losses outnumbered advances about 2 to 1 even though the closing composite was unchanged.

Shares followed a narrower range than yesterday and many of the extreme fluctuations did not exceed a point. Covering presumably provided part of the demand.

Steels, rails and motors steadied, but tobaccos, some oils and a number of specialties found it impossible to catch up with the previous close. Trading was dull, amounting in the aggregate to 1,367,350 shares.

Silver Futures Tumble.

Silver futures tumbled about a cent at one time and closed with irregular changes. Bar metal lost a cent, to 41¾ cents, under last week's low. The rubber shares, particularly Goodyear and United States, rallied.

The day's news was again without much market bearing. American Telephone skidded a couple of points under offerings apparently prompted by the Supreme Court decision in the Illinois company's rate case. The loss was reduced. Douglas Aircraft was also heavy, together with Reynolds Tobacco "B," American Tobacco, Liggett & Myers, Standard Oil of California and several textiles.

Industrial Rayon and Celanese, however, were exceptions. California Packing, helped by a good earnings report, rose more than a point, joined by Du Pont, Santa Fe and United States Smelting, which gained about one each. United States Steel finished firmly and General Motors closed unchanged.

Bank Credit Decline.

In connection with the further decline in bank credit, the remarks of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, which commented on this situation in its monthly review, were interesting.

The bank said the failure of loans and investments to increase was "not an unusual development in the early stages of a business recovery," recalling that in 1921 loans continued to fall for about a year after the cycle had turned upward. This is because liquidation of old loans, facilitated by the recovery process, at first "tends to offset the extension of new loans."

Speaking of post-war conditions, the bank said: "It was not until business recovery was well under way in the second half of 1922 that a large expansion in bank loans occurred."

The dividend record is a striking manifestation of progress already achieved. Standard Statistics Co. reports that 515 favorable dividend actions were recorded in the first quarter, or more than three times the number for the same period of last year. Also, the 1934 quarter saw only 155 omissions and reduction contrasted with 882 a year ago.

Firmness of the dollar in foreign exchange dealings, some thought, reflected a belief that the Administration has no further currency experimentation in mind at this time.

One view here is that formal establishment of the equalization fund means the Treasury wants to keep the dollar at its gold parity rather than to attempt further depreciation. There has been and probably will be no official explanation of how the fund is to be employed.

Administration Appears to Be Distinguishing Between Silver as a Price Lever and as a Commodity That Needs Help.

By Ralph West Robey.

Reports of the President's attitude toward silver are so confusing that it is impossible to judge what the actual situation is. One day all the stories are to the effect that a firm stand is being taken against doing anything more for this metal and that the silver lobby is despondent then comes reports to the effect that a compromise has been offered, such as giving our currency a backing of 70 per cent gold to 30 per cent silver; then further dispatches saying that this is not true, at least unless some international agreement can be reached. And so it has gone for at least two weeks. The upshot is that no one knows whether we are coming or going or even moving at all.

If there is any rationalization back of these various shifts of view—granting that they have occurred to at least some extent—it must be one of distinguishing between using silver as a means for raising prices and using it as a means for coming to the rescue of certain economic groups. Theoretically, there is some basis for such a differentiation. Whether the White House is making it is another question. There have been one or two indications, however, that it is.

President's Arguments Indicated Questioning.

Thus the President said a few days ago that he was disappointed with the gold experiment, that in the case of silver the result would be even more open to question because of the unknown factors, that the silver group has shown itself to be a poor prophet in anticipating the results of a given action, and that he has little or no faith in thirty-day panaceas. All of this indicates that the Administration has experienced a marked change of heart since last October on the possibility of changing the price level through monetary means. For when the Warren gold-buying policy was adopted there must have been unbounding faith in the ability to raise prices by monetary means—and unbounding faith in thirty-day panaceas.

It seems to me, therefore, that one is justified in concluding that the Administration has learned a lesson about the efficacy of monetary manipulation as a lever on prices. This does not mean necessarily that it is believed that no monetary policy could have an effect upon prices, for obviously this is not true. Rather, it means that the Administration knows there is no direct and immediate relation between the metallic content of our currency and the price level. In consequence it now views using silver as a price lever as undesirable.

Road Has Been Kept Clear for Further Aid.

On the other side the President, apparently, consistently has kept the road open for trying to help silver as a commodity if a satisfactory means for doing this can be found. Why he thinks this is desirable—why silver should be singled out from the other commodities for special aid—has not been indicated. Perhaps the basis of the conclusion is nothing more subtle than the incessant statement of the silver lobby that a higher price for the metal would bring great recovery to the West.

That no such recovery would result from helping silver has been shown statistically too many times to need repetition. If in spite of this, nevertheless, the President thinks something should be done to help the silver producers there is an alternative plan that might be used. This would be to have the Secretary of the Treasury send each producer a check for whatever amount it is felt he deserves in aid. Such a plan obviously would be much simpler than trying to get an international agreement for raising the price of silver. Further, it would have the great additional advantage of enabling the public to see exactly what is happening.

Bonds Decline In Spite of Aid From Federals

Due to Government Issue Activity, Sales Total $13,275,000.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Strength of U. S. Government securities in today's bond market tended to obscure the sagging tendencies displayed by secondary and speculative corporation issues.

Due to expanded activity in the Government section, transfers for the day totaled $13,275,000, par value, against $11,541,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans showed a recession of two-tenths of a point at 87.2.

Demand for Federals.

Dealers reported that the renewed demand for Federal bonds apparently reflected the growing belief that currency inflation is not a part of the Administration's recovery program and that the present gold valuation of the dollar may be maintained, at least for some time to come.

The turnover in the Government list amounted to about $3,700,000 compared with $1,800,000 in the previous session. Six issues established new highs for the year or longer and gains ranged from one thirty-second to eight thirty-seconds of a point.

Treasury 3s ended above par for the first time in their two and one-half years of existence. Two new types of Federal obligations were listed on the New York Stock Exchange. They were the Home Owners Loan Corporation 4s and General Farm Mortgage 3½s. The former closed at 100.13 and the latter at 101.38.

Few Substantial Gainers.

Declines of fractions to around a point predominated in the rail utility and industrial groups, although there were a few substantial gainers. Paramount Broadway 5½s rallied 5 points on reorganization plans. Other Paramount loans advanced 1 to around 3. American Writing Paper 6s got up 2¾ and Bethlehem Steel refunding 5s advanced 1¼.

The more active losers of around a point or so included some bonds of Alleghany Corporation, Chicago & Western Indiana, General Cable, Great Northern, Illinois Central, Nickel Plate, St. Joseph Lead, Sharon Steel Hoop and Virginian Railway. Lehigh Valley Coal 5s dropped 4⅝ points.

The foreign division was dull and irregular. German government obligations sagged around a point each, but issues of Nord Railway, Bavaria, Colombia and Cordoba City advanced 1 to 2 or more.

Curb's Prices Drift Lower In Slow Sales

Firm Spots Develop as Trading Declines to 229,000 Shares.

New York, May 1 (AP).—A slightly lower drift predominated on the curb market today. A few firm spots were in evidence, however, primarily among specialties. Dealings were slow.

While the sharp reaction of the previous session was apparently stemmed, little appeared in the way of a rebound. The closing was slightly above the lows.

American Gas & Electric showed a net advance of a point, but Electric Bond & Share was fractionally easier. Ford of Canada A, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Sherwin-Williams each closed up a point or more. Dunlop Rubber in the first sale this year was 5½ points higher at 13½. Fisk was up slightly, but General Tire & Rubber lost a point.

Recessions of fractions to around a point were recorded by Gulf and Humble Oils, Newmont, Lerner Stores, Hiram Walker, Aluminum Company of America and New Jersey Zinc. Tubize Chatillon A sagged 4.

Transfers approximated 229,000 shares compared with 252,000 yesterday.

Wheat Slumps As Rain Halts Drought Fears

Big Deliveries of Corn Follow Price Drop; Oats, Mixed.

Chicago, May 1 (AP).—Possibilities of an immediate break-up of prevalent severe drought in domestic Wheat territory led to sharp setbacks of prices for all grains today.

Wheat suffered a maximum drop of 2⅝ cents a bushel, chiefly because some moisture today and likelihood of more tonight induced a sudden general profit-taking movement on the part of recent buyers.

The wheat market tumble was in the face of an unofficial estimate that United States winter wheat production this season would be 9,000,000 bushels less than the latest previous authoritative private forecast.

Wheat Closes Unsettled.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1⅜ to 2¼ cents under yesterday's finish; corn, ½ to 1 cent down; oats, unchanged to ⅜ off, and provisions showing 7 to 10 cents decline.

A cloudburst in the neighborhood of McCracken, Kans., where 4 inches of rain were reported, did much to remove drought as an immediate market influence and to end crop scare buying for at least the time being.

Weakness of the cotton market, together with a break in silver, tended further to cause selling of grains. Besides forecasts pointed to probable showers and cooler temperatures tomorrow in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota, with chances of rain or snow in North Dakota and Minnesota.

Lack of May Deliveries.

The fact that no deliveries whatever were tendered today on Chicago May wheat contracts had a steadying influence after the market had abruptly responded to changed weather prospects.

Another source of support was announcement that city mill stocks of wheat totaled 101,300,000 bushels, against 109,700,000 a year ago. Notwithstanding today's change of front by many traders, sentiment tonight was by no means unanimous that the drought had reached a turning point, and there were numerous predictions of renewed general buying tomorrow if moisture hopes failed to be fulfilled.

Corn and oats sympathized with downturns of wheat prices and were bearishly affected by big deliveries on Chicago May corn contracts, a total of 5,119,000 bushels for the day.

Provisions reflected hog market downturns.

Cotton Declines Further Under Liquidation

May Closes at 10.56 as General Market Falls 13 to 18 Points.

New York, May 1 (AP).—A further decline of $1 a bale attracted sufficient trade buying or covering to cause moderate rallies in cotton today, but liquidation continued with prices easing again in the later trading.

July contracts sold down to 10.70, making a decline of 2 cents per pound from the high level of last February, and closed at 10.73, the general market closing steady at net declines of 13 to 18 points.

Initial prices were 5 to 8 points lower. From this level the market broke into new low ground in sympathy with the early decline in silver and the weakness in wheat.

Some Orders Uncovered.

Some stop orders were uncovered on the decline, but after selling off to 10.54 for May and 10.85 for October, or about 18 to 20 points net lower, the market steadied on trade buying and covering.

This was sufficient to cause rallies of some 10 to 16 points from the lowest, with May selling up to 10.68 and October to 11.01, but the buying was not aggressive and prices weakened again later under renewed liquidation. Closing quotations were about 3 to 6 points up from the lowest.

The selling was again attributed partly to talk of diminishing prospects for inflationary measures.

There were reports of a continued slow spot demand and dullness in primary goods markets.

Liverpool was credited with buying here on the differences, and some buying was reported through houses with Japanese and continental connections.

Exports today 39,027 making 6,598,683 so far this season. Port receipts 18,259. United States port stocks 2,977,648.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was easier today under increased liquidation, promoted by the heaviness of grains, cotton, lard and hogs, with final prices 3 to 10 points net lower. Gold-Silver Prices Cut to New Lows

Shanghai Values Break 135-Year Record in Wild Trading.

Shanghai, May 1 (U.P.).—A new low for the 135 years during which records of gold and silver prices have been kept was set today amid wild activity on the Shanghai Exchange.

News reports interpreted as bearish from Washington and Nanking forced the two metals down. A drive against short interests also was a contributing factor. Rumors spread that China was preparing to place an export embargo on silver. The United Press was informed authoritatively that the Chinese ministry of finance would deny this rumor.

Inability of the banks to cover commitments paralyzed the market during the afternoon. Gold bar price, however, rose 46 points to 1,070.50. It was reported that seven native banks in Hongkong and Canton were bankrupted in the move to squeeze out the short interests.

New Rayon Pulp Plant Planned in Manchuria

In an effort to obtain a nearby source of supply for the pulp required by their industry, Japanese rayon manufacturers have organized a company in Manchuria which they hope may be able to produce a satisfactory product, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Assistant Trade Commissioner Donald D. Smith, Tokyo.

714 Phones Added To Capital's Lists

During March there was a net increase of 714 telephones in Washington, bringing the total number of telephones in the city to 181,324 on March 31, according to the report of operations of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. just filed with the Public Utilities Commission.

General increased business and convention activity of the city is probably reflected in the 21,203,000 calls made in March, as compared with 19,235,000 calls made during the month of 1933.

The company's operating revenues in March were $820,366, which, with expenses and interest totaling $664,249 deducted, left a balance before dividend of $156,087 for the month of March. Operating taxes during the month were $61,016. The cost of telephone plant in service March 31 was $35,177,232, according to a statement made by John A. Remon, general manager of the company.

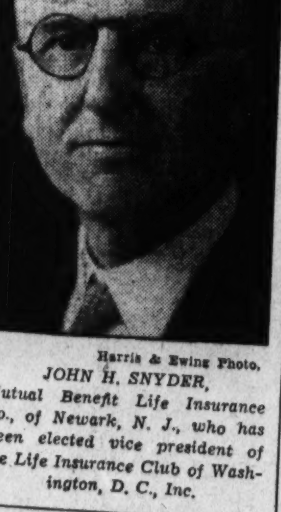

Silver Prices Slump Lowest Since Nov. 6

New York, May 1 (AP).—Silver prices slumped to new low levels for the current downward movement today.

Following yesterday's moderate declines futures yielded nearly a cent an ounce under heavy selling which was believed to represent further liquidation of holdings previously acquired in expectation of mandatory silver legislation.

Bar metal was quoted a cent lower at 41¾ cents an ounce, marking the lowest quotation since last November 6.

Sales of 30 Stores in 5th Reserve Area Increase

Richmond, Va., May 1 (AP).—Sales of 30 leading department stores in the Fifth Federal Reserve District increased 27.1 per cent during the first quarter of 1934, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today, in a comparison with the sales of the first three months of 1933.

The bank reported also that the volume of general spring business during March and early April was "above seasonal levels." It was in "marked contrast to trade a year earlier when the banking holiday and frozen funds in closed banks restricted nearly all business," said the bank's general summary of business for the monthly period. The District of Columbia and the five States of the district, Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, were covered in the report.

Bank Credits Fail to Expand, Reports Reveal

Financiers Point to Lack of Good Borrowers; Reserves Pile Up.

By Claude A. Jagger.

New York, May 1 (AP).—Bank credit, despite record-breaking excess reserves, still fails to expand.

The consolidated condition statement of weekly reporting member banks of the Federal Reserve System, which comprises about half the country's banking facilities, shows a drop in "other loans" or commercial loans of $19,000,000.

This comes on top of a drop of $75,000,000 in the previous week. For three successive weeks, until the last two statements, this loan item had shown gains, amounting in the aggregate to $55,000,000. Three successive gains had been a rare experience in the depression years and led some observers to suggest that bank credit expansion may have started in earnest, at last, but those gains have been more than canceled.

Scarcity of Borrowers.

Bankers still insist that good borrowers can not be found and point to the $1,500,000,000 excess reserves which the member banks have on deposit with the Reserve banks, where this huge surplus earns no interest, as a clear evidence of the bankers' desire to lend if borrowers could be found. This money would not be kept where it earns no interest, they insist, if profitable employment could be found for it.

The total potential bank credit expansion theoretically possible in the United States, with its record-breaking gold reserve of $7,700,000,000, reaches into figures of astronomical proportions, but still credit does not expand.

In the meantime, however, Administration quarters in Washington have indicated quite clearly that the sort of inflation favored, if any, is normal bank credit expansion, rather than inflation through printing money or monetizing waste sums of silver.

Business and Credit.

This, it is explained, is because the country normally does about 90 per cent of its business with bank credit, and only about 10 per cent with cash, and because bank credit can be controlled through the central banking system, if the system will aggressively endeavor to do it.

Whether bank credit will eventually, with business improved and confidence restored, begin to expand, remains to be seen. The policy of urging and scolding bankers in an effort to expand credit appears to have been abandoned.

Jesse Jones, head of the RFC and formerly an outspoken critic of the bankers' "timidity" about loan making, stated recently that the banks were really trying to make loans.

Other Loans Record.

The weekly condition statement published today for the week ended April 25 shows "all other" loans at $4,604,000,000, which is actually $99,000,000 under the level of a year ago. Loans on securities were $3,516,000,000, as much as $122,000,000 under the level of a year ago.

Bankers insist that the demand for short term commercial loans, of the character that it is proper for the commercial banks to make, remain limited.

Bankers have no intention of repeating the mistake made in the over liberal days of boomtime lending, and propose to stick to their function of making short term loans.

Long Credit Expansion.

Expansion of long credit, they say, should come through the sale of bonds and mortgages. With investment bankers still fearful of the securities act, and the real estate situation improved but still confused over mortgage moratoria and other factors, credit is not going out through these channels.

The big expansion of credit in the past year has been in Government credit, but the Government's plan now appears to call for curtailment of this pumping out of funds.

Wall Street now wonders whether Washington is preparing some new plan to stimulate credit, or whether it proposes to give the credit system more time to act of itself.

Building Now Joins Marching Of Industries to Higher Levels

Survey Shows Construction Is Providing 56 Per Cent of Total Work in Recovery Program; Real Estate Becomes More Active.

New York, May 1.—Contrary to the procedure of former recoveries from periods of acute economic disorder, capital goods, of which building construction is the largest and most important, are among the last to throw off the lethargy of long hibernation. From an almost complete prostration a year ago in sales, values, and attenuated income, National construction, fostered by public works and utilities accounted for 56 per cent of the total work of the last six months.

Practically all of the permits issued for commercial building have been for urgent repairs and necessary replacements, and while building of the better class of residences is increasing, few moderate or low-price dwellings are being constructed. Until much of the property now in the hands of the banks will have found other owners, there is little hope that this class of construction will increase.

Slum elimination projects, which would be of considerable help to the building trade, are slow in getting under way in most centers, and although the allotment of Federal funds has been substantial, comparatively little work actually has been started, as yet. Vacant factory buildings still are numerous, but the supply of apartments and private dwellings soon will be exhausted, if the present trend of families away from doubling up should continue at the present rate. Although the outlook is brighter than at any time in the last three years, recovery in the building trade doubtless will be slower than in any other industry, according to a survey which has just been completed by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc.

Real Estate More Active.

There has been some improvement in the sales of real estate in the small house class, and in the unusually large houses, where prices have been particularly attractive, there has been an increase in the number of transactions.

Speculative building and buying of real estate have been almost entirely absent. Cheerfulness regarding the future, nevertheless, is more in evidence than at any time in the past four years, because of the larger number of inquiries being received. Although there are many houses, factories, and commercial properties on the market at prices below reproduction cost, there has been an apparent firmness of prices during the past two or three months.

Residential rentals have increased somewhat and there are fewer vacancies of tenantable houses and stores. It is the general opinion that property values are certain to appreciate, as prices now are firmer, which will bring a stronger demand for new houses. While architects have more work on hand than in several years, the aggregate is small, when compared with the normal volume. More repair work is in prospect than for any period since 1929, as property owners have neglected their buildings so long that further postponement is impossible.

HOLC Is Stimulant.

Tearing down of old buildings continues, due to stricter enforcement of building laws and motivated by a desire to lessen tax bills. While a potential shortage of housing is increasing uninterruptedly, as the gain in families is estimated at three times greater than the production of new housing, little inclination has been shown, as yet, to supply it, despite the fact that an actual need for 800,000 homes now exists, the work on which would provide employment for at least 2,000,000 men.

Java Places Sugar Crop at 595,000 Tons

Island's Yield May Be Cut 57 Per Cent in '34; Stocks Down.

New York, May 1.—The 1934 Javan sugar crop, harvesting of which is about to commence, is forecast at 595,000 long tons, as contrasted with 1,379,000 tons manufactured last year, a decrease of 784,000 tons, or approximately 57 per cent, according to advices received by Lamborn & Co. from Semarang.

The 1934 out-turn is expected to be the smallest in 38 years, or since 1897, when 577,000 tons were produced.

Exports of sugar by Java during the crop year ended March 31, 1934, totaled 1,088,760 long tons as against 1,310,439 tons in the previous season, a falling off of 221,679 tons, or 16.9 per cent.

The stock of sugar in Java on April 1, 1934, approximated 2,411,827 long tons, as compared with 2,492,622 tons on hand on the same date in 1933, a decrease of 80,795 tons, or 3.2 per cent.

Yankees Hammer Nats Into Defeat

recognition of the change. Earl Combs smacked a triple into left center and there were still none out, with two runs across.

Ruth Gets Double.

Well, Burke lasted until Crosetti singled and Ruth doubled, and then in came Ray Prim to get Gehrig out and find himself socked for a single by Ben Chapman that accounted for the fifth Yankee run of the inning, four of which were superfluous.

The Nats had been battling gamely all day to get back in the ball game after the Yanks scored three runs in the first on a double by Hoag, a triple by Ruth and circuit clout No. 2 by Gehrig, and they got these runs back in the third with a triple by Manush and a single by Stone as the pivotal blows.

But the Yanks stepped into a 4-3 lead in the fourth when Chapman led off with a triple to right center and scored on Lazzeri's long fly that Stone dropped. They picked up another run in the seventh to make it 5-3 and the Nats got one back in their half on singles by Myer, Cronin and Schulte.

Pinch-Hitter Bob Boken started the downfall of young Harry Smythe when he opened the eighth with a single and the Nats tied the game when Myer's hot shot to Lazzeri brought Boken home from third. So the game went into the ninth and you know what happened.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

Billy the Kid, famous boy bandit of the old West, is credited, or charged, with the killing of 21 men by the time he reached his twenty-first birthday. Some authorities have expressed doubt of this number, but those who knew him best and those who knew the old West best say that the number might well be set beyond 21 if Mexicans and Indians are to be included in it.

Billy was still a youth when he was killed by his one-time friend, Sheriff Pat Garrett.

Most airplane pilots find plenty to keep both hands and feet busy when taking off in a ship or when going through such maneuvers as the loop, barrel roll and spin. One hand they keep on the stick, the other on the throttle, and both feet on the rudder. But Johnny Crowell gets along remarkably well with his feet alone.

Flying a two-place open ship, with both of his hands tied above his head, he took off, climbed to 2,000 feet, where he did a series of loops, then landed the plane again without touching any of the controls with his hands. He had held the stick between his knees. The first flight was so successful that he went up again with both hands tied, and this time did a barrel roll and spin, setting his ship down on a predetermined spot.
